Hello Dolly Menu At Playhouse

THE CURRENT fare at the Country Dinner Playhouse is, "Hello Dolly." The production of "Dolly" is not up to the usual high powered offerings that I, and the rest of the people, are accustomed to at the Country Dinner Playhouse.

While it is one tremendous job to take a giant of a show, such as "Dolly", and produce it with a relatively small cast on a small, arena stage, I still feel that director John Bowab failed to bring out the best of "Hello Dolly." I have seen musicals, "Fiddler on the Roof," as one example, produced on a dinner theatre stage, that kept all of its charm, story and excitement.

Dolly is condensed so much, that it is almost mutilated. In fact, it was difficult for me to realize that I was watching the musical, "Hello Dolly."

ANOTHER big let down for me, was the star, Marion Marlowe. Granted, she did receive a standing ovation. Marion cannot perform well without electronics. She needs microphones. Marion's voice just does not project. This is true in both her singing and speaking voice. There were minutes when Marion sounded like the Marion Marlowe the audience is used to hearing. But, these were too few and far between.

Thank goodness for some strong supporting cast members. Nancy Tompkins as Irene Malloy is the star as far as talent and ability is concerned. She, along with a couple of others, saves the show. Nancy has a beautiful voice, dances well and really comes across the lights in playing a convincing part. Another one, in the same category, is Joy Smothermon, playing the role of Minnie Fay. This is a small part, but Joy handles it for everything it is worth, and practically steals the show. What a great voice.

The part of Cornelius Hackel is handled very well by Worth Howe. This young fellow knows comedy, has a good sense of timing and seemed at ease on stage.

These people, along with others, rather elaborate costumes and some pretty good choreography saved Marion Marlowe and the condensed book of "Hello Dolly."

GO SEE for yourself, I promise you the evening will not be a total loss. Yet, it will not be what most of you expect with a show like, "Hello Dolly" and Marion Marlowe.

APPEARING nightly at the beautiful Carriage House Restaurant is Jeanie & and Casual Approach. A duo with a successful record of top clubs, the sexy Jeanie entertains for cocktails and dinner, playing music for dancing or easy listening.

Grog Shop Is Goodie

For a bang up evening, you must plan to visit the Grog Shop at Stouffer's University Inn. Be it a Tuesday, which is the Oldies, But Goodies Night, or Sunday afternoon when there is live entertainment, dancing and Grog or any night during the week.

HELPING to make it a sure fire place to go is the Mike Kamen Duo. Yep, it is a duo. But, when you walk in you had better look closely. If not, you will swear there is a trio or quartet on stage.

Mike Kamen is the leader, as well as the versatile performer. Mike plays organ, electric piano, guitar, banjo and harmonica. Often times, he plays two or three of these at once. No matter which instrument he handles, Mike handles them expertly. Mike plays the keyboards as a true master. His fingers literally fly across the banjo strings. When he picks up the guitar, Mike treats you to some mighty pretty chords and harmonies. His harmonica beautiful.

Now, if that's not enough, wait until you hear this fellow sing. Owning a deep voice, loaded with pretty tonal qualities, Mike could easily make it strictly as a vocalist.

HELPING out is the other half of the duo, Terry Myer. What a nice, smooth drummer, who also adds some fine vocal harmony to the duo.

You name it and they will play it. Be it, contemporary, old standards, country and western or music from the 50's.

Stopping by on Tuesday, I was treated to the Grog Shop's Oldies, But Goodies Night. Not only does the Mike Kamen Duo play more music from this era, but two or three times an evening, personable Bill Sweetser takes over as M.C. and conducts twist and jitterbug dance contests. Prizes are awarded, and believe me, the crowds love it. And, don't think this special night doesn't draw the people, young and old, student, politican and folks from just about every walk of life.

BESIDES the dance contests, Bill plays records from the 50's, with special feature dances. Such as where the girls choose their partner. Also, Bill has Name the Record contests, where you must name the song and the artist. Prizes also are awarded. As I said, the Tuesday's Oldies, But Goodies Night really packs them in.

On Sundays, Mike Kamen Duo provides music from 3 p.m. until 8 p.m. I can't think of a better way to have some fun on Sunday afternoon. It is a great place to meet people, that's for sure.

So, if you are between the ages of 18 and 80, stop in at the Grog Shop soon. Besides the tops in entertainment, there is always something special going on that proves to be a heap of fun. It all happens at the Grog Shop, Stouffer's University Inn.

Skipping Around Town

Beginning, today, Oct. 3, at the Drexel Theatre, the movie, "Maurie," will have its world premiere.

"Maurie," is about Cincinnati Royal basketball star, Maurie Stokes and team mate Jack Twyman. Maurie Stokes is portrayed by Columbus' East High Graduate, Bernie Casey. The movie revolves around a true life drama. Following a near fatal injury to Stokes, Twyman obtained legal custody of his teammate, Maurie Stokes, and over the next ten years managed to raise $1 million dollars. Twyman's heroic efforts were more than matched by Maurie's Herculean comeback. "Maurie," is hot in color, and promises to be an entertaining, heart-warming show. It is rated "G." It is at the Drexel Theatre for a limited engagement...The Jerry and Nick Duo has been drawing nice crowds to the intimate lounge at the Holiday Inn North. You won't find a better duo, playing nice soft music for listening and dancing anywhere in town. You'll find Jerry and Nick at the Holiday Inn-North Thursday through Saturday. Tuesday through Saturday Jerry plays the only Hammond X 77 in Columbus for your dining pleasure. Wait until you hear this fabulous organ. And, Jerry White is a genius at the keyboard. If it is music, pure and simple, that you want, then I have to recommend the Holiday Inn-North....The swinging, laugh packed Keith-Charles Duo are knocking them dead again at the Lincoln Lodge Motel. What an entertaining duo. Charles is a master at the organ, and Keith dishes out plenty of good vocals and first rate comedy. Make sure you see them...For the best Polynesian cuisine in the city, The Waikiki is a must. The atmosphere is superb, the food out of this world. Everything is exotic about the place, except the check. Yep, prices are reasonable. By the way, their exotic drinks are super good. The Waikiki is open on Sundays, also. I think it is much better than that other place, on the east side of town. Speaking of exotic things, the fabulous Tsai Sisters are back at the Ramada Inn North. This is an all girl group from the Far East, who play a host of instruments, sing and serve up a top notch show. They played there in January, and people have been asking for them back ever since...The beautiful new Holiday Inn-OSU is going great guns. They have two separate rooms of entertainment six nights a week. The eleventh floor Lounge, is gorgeous and intimate. In this room, Deepoes, a trio playing nice, soft music for your listening and dancing pleasure are tops in my book. Then off of the main lobby, in the Ohioan Lounge, Quintessence is providing the entertainment. This is more of a show group. Between the five talented men, they play over twenty instruments. Their slogan, which is true, is music from Bach to Rock....That's all for now, see you Around Town.

MEMBER COLUMBUS MOVERS & WAREHOUSEMEN'S ASSN.

Little Artist With Big Exhibit

by Elsie V. Weaver

Groveport-Mrs. Gina Clarridge, 350 Clark Ct., Groveport, is an exhibiting artist who has had no formal art training. In fact, the only "master" she has talked to on the subject is the late Nolan Pennell. She used to go watch him paint in German Village and he would answer the many questions she asked him about paint application, art materials, and perspective. Her knowledge of sketching, color theory and other fine points she learned from reading art books.

That was 13 years ago, and she has been turning out oil paintings and experimenting with her own art forms at a prodigious rate every since.

Her current showing of the past year's accomplishments opened Sept. 15 and will remain until Nov. 15 in the lobby of the Ohio Public Employees Retirement System building, 277 E. Town St.

On exhibit are 14 pieces of art in three different media. Most are oil paintings, chiefly landscapes and seascapes, and most of them are large. The largest painting is three feet by five feet. The scenes are mostly places she has visited, Lake Erie, Cape Hatteras, N. Carolina and Maine. They are of widely-varying moods-bright and gay, or brooding and dark, like the changeable moods of nature.

Also hung are string abstracts and wood hangings.

The "String-Stracts," her name for the former constructions, are made with string pulled taut around nails driven into the background board. She makes them to order in colors people ask for to match or contrast with their interior decoration colors.

The wood constructions are natural driftwood chunks or roots of trees which she paints and mounts on canvas, then frames. One large knarled tree trunk piece, with branching "horns," "neck" and "ears" is entitled "Buffalo Head," which it greatly resembles.

She has been exhibiting often lately in various shows, in shopping centers and libraries. In the Village Art Show of Groveport in August where she entered three pieces, she came away with two blue ribbons.

In her home studio, Mrs. Clarridge is a "stand-up artist" using a wall easel and working on at least three works at one time.

Her next show will be held at Buckeye Federal Savings and Loan Co.'s downtown offices, 36 E. Gay St., during the month of November.

"Old Blue" Swims On And On

Five years and 90 miles later "Old Blue", stocked by the Division of Wildlife in Mt. Gilead Reservoir, was caught near Darbyville in Big Darby Creek.

The large Flathead Catfish was tagged and released in Mt. Gilead Reservoir June 13, 1968. Apparently Old Blue, tag number 00105, escaped from Mt. Gilead Reservoir, swam down Whetstone Creek to Delaware Reservoir, continued south via the Olentangy River to the Scioto River. Continuing down the Scioto River to the confluence of Big Darby Creek with the river, he then swam up Big Darby Creek to the vicinity of Darbyville, where his travels were interrupted on September 20, 1973 by Circleville angler Russ Whaley.

Tom Waldon, State Game Protector residing in Pickaway County, was contacted by Russ and his fellow anglers Sam Tomlinson and Ralph Hall. Thus began the search for "Old Blue's" original home some 90 miles away.

Stocked by the Division of Wildlife, "Old Blue" was sponsored by the Mt. Gilead J.C.'s who offered $25.00 to the person catching the fish. Charles Shealy, State Game Protector residing in Morrow County, confirms that the Mt. Gilead J.C.'s will award the prize money in the near future.

After having been temporarily detained, the 13 pound 4 ounce Mt. Gilead "Old Blue" was released unharmed in Hargus Lake. If he retains his rambling way who knows where he might be caught the next time.

Pymatuning Campground

The 3,580 acre reservoir on the western shores of which this park is located lies partly in Pennsylvania, with 438 Class "A" sites in a recently expanded area, the campground is the second largest in the state park system.

Within the controlled area, campers enjoy the convience of modern wash-houses with showers and coin operated laundry facilities (included one heated for off season use) and restrooms, electrical hookups on 309 sites, a trailer waste disposal station, a commissary and a beach.

An interpretive program is directed by a seasonal naturalist during the summer. Fishing is excellent for bass and walleyes and there are boats for rent. Motors of up to 10 horsepower are permitted.

There are also 50 primitive sites for family campers near the northwest corner of the 4,919 acre park and there is a primitive area near park headquarters designated for use by organized groups. The main park area on the Ohio side is reached via Pymatuning Lake road from S.R. 85 or U.S. 322.

BOB TOMPOS, of Helen Hutchley's, Fishinger and Dublin Rd. Columbus, with his 3 lb, 17" largemouth bass caught recently at Hoover Reservoir. Bob was casting the silver Rebel Humpback deep diveing lure next to weed beds on the east shore between the first and second bridge.

Hot Fishing In Cold Weather Can Be Fun

WITH COLD weather just ahead, many anglers are thinking about storing their fishing gear until next spring.

This could be the biggest mistake of the year, since much good fishing awaits those who are interested enough to learn some new methods, and acquire a little extra clothing.

Spooning for bass is one of the latest innvoations in winter fishing. Yes new technique got its start in some of the Ozark lakes where ardent anglers grew tired of waiting around all winter for something to do.

THEY BEGAN experimenting and came up with several methods of fishing spoons that take bass during the cold weather. And information reaching Mercury outboards' fishing department indicates that most of the bass taken during the cold months are big fish – often much larger than those caught during the rest of the year.

A favorite method of spooning is to locate old roadbeds and fencelines that are now flooded. These harbor big bass, and the idea is to cast beyond them, then retrieve over them with slow flutters of the spoon. Often, bass will hit just after the cast, while the spoon is falling.

It's diffucit to feel the hit, say the Mercury experts, since the fish take the spoon very softly. Many first-time spoon fishermen don't realize they've had a strike. To be prepared for the light tap of the fish, you should lean into the case with your body and follow the lure as it drops in the water. Hold a tight line, and be prepared to strike instantly.

ANOTHER winter spooning method calls for fishing alongside standing timber in lakes where the trees were flooded. Best places are trees along old creek beds or river channels. Drop the spoon straight down, stopping each five feet to jig it up and let it flutter back down. The fish will probably hit on the downward fall. When you find the correct level underwater, you can move from tree to tree, taking bass at each one.

Nature's Bountiful Crop Is Free Horn Of Plenty

LIFE TAKES on a new dimension during fall when nature's bountiful crop of wild fruits and nuts is ready for harvest. If you've never experienced the mouth-puckering taste of a green persimmon, or the tangy freshness of ripe wild grapes, there's a treat waiting for the picking on a nearby lake.

Although you should always seek permission to enter private lands, Mercury outboards' outdoor recreation department reminds us that most large reservoirs are ringed by a belt of public-owned land.

This is usually under control of the Corps of Engineers, but often administered by other federal or state agencies. The important thing is that these lands are available for your use, and they often contain an abundance of natural wild foods.

PERSIMMONS are one of nature's most desired fruits – if they are sweet. They're not ripe until after the first frost when the cold causes the starch content to ferment slightly and become sugar. Use your boat to look for persimmon trees in old fields, and along hills bordering flooded bottom lands.

Ripe persimmons can be eaten right from the tree. They are also used in bread and cake recipes, and they can be packed in sugar and saved for later use.

Hickory nuts, walnuts, beech nuts and pecans are common trees throughout much of the Midwest and East. Walnut, pecan, and beech nut trees prefer rich bottom lands, while hickory trees grow on the hills away from the water. Nuts can be removed from the hulls and stored in a refrigerator until needed for cookies, cakes and other dishes.

Wild grapes are also plentiful. Their vines can be spotted growing on other trees, and although the fruit is often high in the host tree, they're worth the effort to retrieve. Grapes are used for making jam and jelly, and some find the wild variety ideal for making wine.

ONE FINAL thought from the Mercury staff is to visit a bookstore or library and obtain copies of books describing wild trees and shrubs that grow in your part of the country.

Crusaders Edge Otterbein

CAPITAL slipped by Otterbein 9-7 last Saturday night in the old "Nerve Bowl" played before a capacity crowd in Otterbein's Memorial Stadium.

Watterson grad Joe Duffy, a 6-1 sure handed senior tight end, booted an 18 yard field goal with only 41 seconds left in the game to give the Crusaders the rightful claim to small college champs of Franklin County.

Capital struck the scoreboard for a six-pointer with 7:39 left in the first half when all-conference running back Craig Snider bolted off tackle for two yards and the the TD after most of the first half was spent chasing punts by both teams. The extra point try was wide giving the Capmen a 6-0 lead.

But the Otters of Moe Agler were not to be denied on this night of frustration, a night that saw the pigskin punted away 17 times, as they received the second half kickoff and immediately marched 63 yards in 14 plays for a TD and the lead.

Jim Cox scored that one from the one yard line and Joe Lopez added the point after to stake the Cardinals to a 7-6 lead. The crucial play in that drive was a one yard gain by premier running back Steve Schnarr, a Grove City native, on a fourth and one situation.

Defense then once again took charge of the game until freshman Dave Truex returned an Otterbein punt 20 yards to the Card 25 yard line with 5:20 left in the game.

10 plays and four and one-half minutes later Duffy provided his heroics and Caps celebration on this 50th year of Crusader football. Incidently, Duffy entered the scuffle as Capital's second string place-kicker. Duffy also collected 61 yards in three pass receptions.

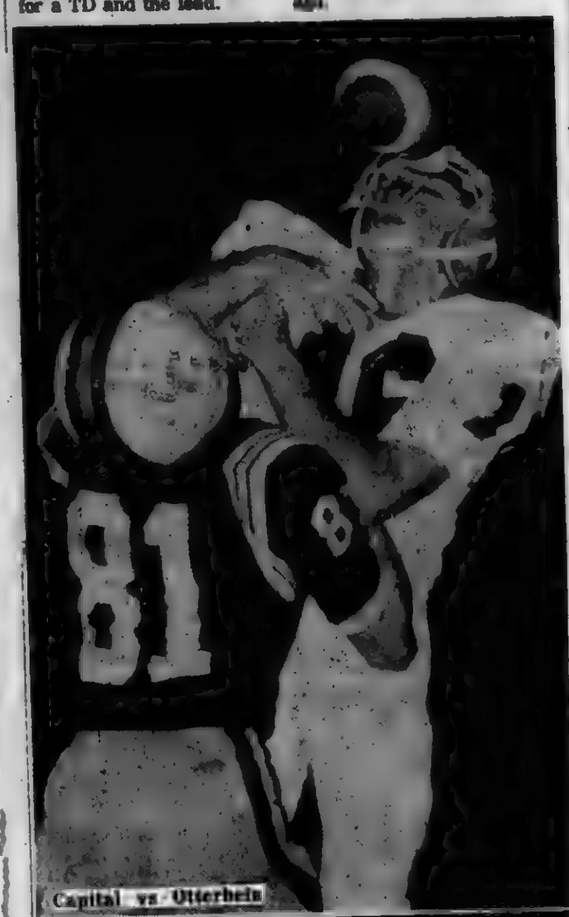
THIS satisfying victory gives Coach Gene Slaughter's gang a six game bulge in this ancient 47 year old rivalry, and its 11th victory in 12 tries since Slaughter arrived on the Capital scene 13 years ago.

Walnut Ridge vs Hartley

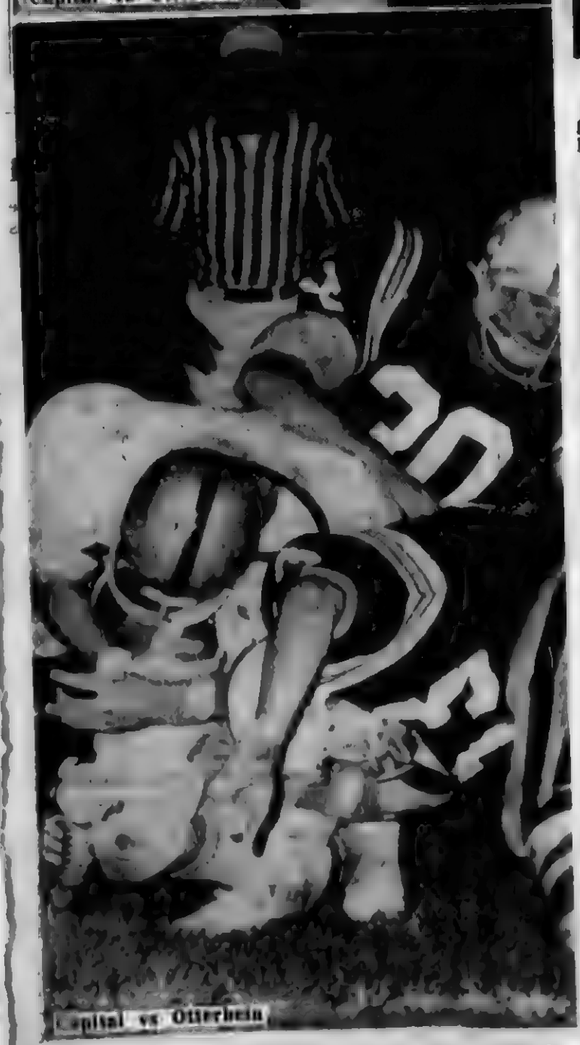
FOURTH QUARTER action by Walnut Ridge against Bishop Hartley was as fast and furious as the first. Matt Guttman (35) Ridge back, scotted for six yards in this action. Ridgers in white are Al Solder (78) and Jeff Welch (72). Hawks are Pat Wile (43), Tim Burns (44) and Paul Kegelmayer (51). Ridge won, 19-6.

Walnut Ridge vs Hartley

A FUMBLE BY Walnut Ridge on the Hartley 5 yard line late in the second quarter stopped a Scot threat when the Hawks recovered the loose ball that everyone seems to be watching.



Capital vs Otterbein

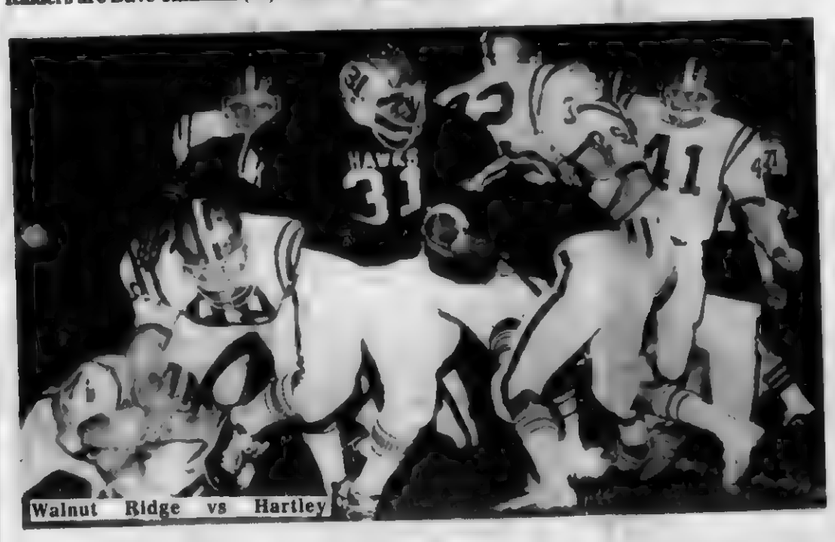


Capital vs Otterbein

CAPITAL'S dandy Crusaders had plenty of moxie going for them as they outlasted Otterbein 9-7 in their traditional Franklin County college-university grid championship. Two of the shining lights in the win are involved in these two photos. At top, is Capital defensive back Larry Focht (16) batting away a Jim Bontadelli pass intended for No. 81, Neil Mairs. The bottom photo shows workhorse full-back Craig Snider going in for the only Capital TD halfway through the second period to put Cap into a 6-0 lead. A late Cap field goal with 41 seconds to play was the deciding clincher. The win was No. 2 for Cap against no losses and they travel to Denison Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. clash.

Reynoldsburg vs Westland

AN AGGRESSIVE Reynoldsburg defense stopped this Westland threat in the first half in a game won by Reynoldsburg 28-21. Half-back Tom Rice (42) is the Westland ball carrier while Raiders are Dave Tinkham (12) and Paul Malernee (25).



Walnut Ridge vs Hartley

HARTLEY'S Tony Cunningham (31) did plenty of running for the Hawks in their losing cause to Walnut Ridge. Here, he breaks through the line for a five yard gain and is just about to be stopped by Ridge's Jim Gilmer (58).

Walnut Ridge vs Hartley

LET'S CRAWL away together might be what Walnut Ridge's Zack Bingmer (21) and Hartley's Doug Williams (34 with ball) are thinking as they end up on all fours after colliding in this head-knocker.

Consistency Winning For Most League Leading Teams

By Sandy Schwartz

IT WAS quite a week this fourth week of schoolboy football, and some key league races are shaping up this early in the season.

Gahanna romped to its 17th straight win over a three year span to highlight the Ohio Capital Conference but Worthington and Whitehall also emerged victorious to keep the 2-0 OCC pace.

Eastmoor dumped Central to move atop the City League South and Northland dropped Mifflin to shed light on another CL North crown race.

Gahanna's consistent Lions amassed 346 rushing yards, 165 by super back Greg Bates in dumping Westerville 20-7. Whitehall edged Delaware 12-7 as Rick Robinson and Mark Hunter tallied six-pointers to pad the Ram win.

High stepping John Madry sprinted Worthington to its 21-0 conquest of Mt. Vernon. Z-back Gary Chambers collected a pair of TD's for Smokey Wion's men. And Reynoldsburg squared its OCC mark at 1-1 with a 28-21 thriller over Westland. Bob Beasley hauled in a seven yard strike from QB Mike Cronin with :14 seconds remaining in the game to give the Raiders their winning margin and first OCC win in four years.

IN THE 74th running of the City League, Eastmoor mangled Central 34-8 in the south division's spotlight game. Ray Griffin sparkled in collecting three Warrior scores. Marion Franklin dropped West 15-7 in another CL contest, both Marion scores coming with less then six minutes remaining in the game.

Northland continued its dynasty of the north side of Broad Street with a 20-0 dubbing of newcomer Mifflin.

In another CL north game East lost a squeaker to Brookhaven 8-7.

BEXLEY couldn't find the goal line in losing to Urbana 6-0 in a tough Mid-Eighter and Teays Valley nipped Franklin Heights 14-12 despite a valiant effort by Falcon running back Gary Jones in a Metro League tilt. Jones rolled up 202 rushing yards in 20 carries.

In area non-league action Catholic league members didn't fare real well as Walnut Ridge scuffed Hartley 19-6 and AAA smoothy Cincinnati Elder clobbered Watterson 25-0. New Albany edged Academy 13-6 and St. Charles kept its slate clean with a 21-12 win over Dayton Kiser.

Terry Logan and Matt Guttman scored TD's for Walnut Ridge but Hartley found contolation in registering the first score of the year against the Scots. Ed Radcliff hauled in a 13 yard pass fromMike Disabato for that score, the drive was set up by a Paul Kegelmeyer interception.

Friday night's keen action finds West at Mohawk, Central at Walnut Ridge and Eastmoor hosting Marion Franklin in the City South, while East travels to Mifflin in the City North.

Scuffling in the OCC has Worthington going to Westerville for a key match-up there while Reynoldsburg is at Delaware and Gahanna is at Westland. Whitehall will try to make it three straight, Mt. Vernon being the foe in the other OCC game.

Franklin Heights entertains Hamilton Township in a Metro tilt while Ron Shay's Watterson group will try to regroup at South.

DeSales is at Hartley in a Catholic League opener while Saturday's grid menu shows Hilliard at Bexley in the Mid-Eight. Academy is at Hawken and St. Charles goes to Newark Catholic in non-league combat.

Academy vs New Albany

NEW ALBANY'S Yogi Criner was a ball carrier and passer who kept Columbus Academy at bay last Friday to enable the Eagles to notch a win. Here, he goes through the middle for four yards with Academy's Geoff Geupel (55) at him and Jon Sehring (33) coming up to assist.

Ballot Language Question Needs A New Interpretation

By Ted Brown
Secretary of State
State of Ohio

WE AMERICANS are accustomed to thinking of our nation as a "democracy" and our form of government as "democratic". The U.S. Consitution, however, does not employ these terms, but rather guarantees to each state a "republican" form of government.

The difference is that in a republic the laws are made by representatives of the people, while in a true democracy the laws would be made directly by the people themselves.

OVER THE years changes have come about to make the "republiblic" more "democratic". Many political scientists view the history of American government as a process in which we have moved gradually away from the indriect "republican" concept of government to grant a more direct voice to the people in many areas of government.

When the U.S Constitution was first written, for example, the people had no direct voice in the election of either the U.S Senators or the President of the United States, the former being elected by the state legislatures and the latter by an electoral college in no way chosen or bound by the electorate.

THE VOTERS had no voice in the nomination of candidates by political parties and no means by which in initiate legislation when their elected representatives failed to act or to block legislation that did not enjoy popular support.

Today, by contrast, U.S Senators are elected directly by the people they represent. Time has all but desptroyed the independence of the electoral college. In most states direct primaries have replaced unrepresentative systems of nominating party candidates for state and local office.

AND, PERHAPS more significant than any other change, many states now have adopted initiative and referendum procedures. All states but one require the approval of the voters before an amendment to the state constitution is adopted.

Ohio voters are now called upon to decide a wide variety of matters directly , including tax levies, bond issues, reorganization of school districts, zoning, local option on liquor sales, annexations, initiative and referendum questions and approval or relection of constitutional amendments.

With increased rights, however, come increased responsibilities as well. When decisions are placed directly in the hands of the people, it is not enough that they elct knowledgeable and capable officials. They must also inform themselves about the issues to be voted upon and be able to understand the questions presented.

IN THE early days of this century, it was not difficutl for the voters to understand ballot issues. The questions were usually brief and simply worded. No reference was made to the specific sections of the law or of the constitution affected by the vote

The voter could readily determine the precise question on which he was voting and could vote "yes" or "no" without wondering if he had in reailty voted the opposite of his true intent.

THE COURTS in those early years were quite permissive on the matter of ballot language. A 1922 desicsion, followed as precedent for many years, said that "the printed matter upon the ballot was not designed to perform the function of informing the voters of the text and effect of the permissive on the matter of ballot language . A 1922 desicsion, followed as precedent for many years, said that "the printed matter upon the ballot was not designed to perform the function of informing the voters of the text and effect of the propositions, but was chiefly for purposes of identification."

The proposal had to be clearly stated, but the law did not require the ballot to contain a text, and a court could not strike an issue from the ballot because of objections to the language unless it would "mislead, deceive or defraud the voters."

Thus, whether the ballot question was prescribed by the legislature or by the Secretary of State, it could be simply stated in layman's terms without fear that a court would set it aside and require a more formal and legalistic question.

NO ISSUE would be ordered off the ballot so long as "a careful analysis of the printed matter shows the substance of such provision."

That has all changed in the last twenty years. In 1953 the Ohio General Assembly enacted Section 3505.06 of the Revised Code. This law required the questions and issues ballot to contain either a full text or a condensed text of the proposal to be voted upon.

The ballot question for local issues is prescribed by the Board of Elections, while the Secretary of State or the legislature prepares the question in the case of state wide issues and constitutional amendments.

In either case the question prescribed may be (and often has been) set aside by court order if the court feels that it fails to "properly describe the question, issue or amendment."

THIS SOMETIMES occurs too late for the question to be rephrased in time for the printing of new ballots or for absent voters to vote on the repharsed question. In 1972, for example, the question of authorizing a state lottery was scheduled to be voted on at the May 2 election.

April 28 the Ohio Supreme Court ruled the issue off the ballot, giving among its reasons that the law required a condensed text that is "complete, and from which no essential part is omitted." Thus the law prevents the Secxretary of State or local Boards of Elections from wording ballot questions simply, and phrasing must often sound like a bill before the legislature in order to meet with court approval.

THE TIME has come to change that law and go back to the kind of simplified ballot language used earlier in the century.

There are three reasons why I have become convinced of the necessity of this change:

1. Proposed amendments are being placed on the ballot in greater numbers than ever before. In the fifty years between 1913 and 1963, thirty-two amendments were approved by the voters. Since 1963 twenty-eight more have approved. Thus in the last ten years our constitution has seen almost as many amendments as in the previous fifty years. Seven such amendments were on the ballot last May; at least four more will be submitted this November.

2. Amendments are getting more complex. For example, the full text of the Vietnam bonus amendment, Issue 4 on this Novemeber's ballot, is ten pages long. No condensed text can really convey all that is contained in the amendment, yet a full text is obviously impossible. A general question referring to the most basic features in the only ralistic approach.

3. The voters are expressing frustration and anger over the phrasing of ballot questions. Some become cynical, even suggesting that the questions are deliberately designed to confuse them. Wide-spread confision over the effect of a "yes" or "no" vote on the state income tax amendment last fall is cited as an example.

FLEXIBILITY in phrasing ballot language must be restored. To accomplish that he has recommended to the Ohio Constitutional Revision Commission an amendment creating a Commission to prescribe the ballot language. The requirement for a full or condensed text would be repealed. The ballot would have to properly describe the substance of the proposed amendement, but the rule would be restored that ballot language can not be set aside by the courts unless it misleads the voters. "So long as the question allows a full and fair expression of the voters' choice, they should not be disenfrachiesd."

PASSAGE of his proposal will have several advantages:

First, it would allow the ballot to be phrased in a manner that can be readily understood by the voters, rather than merely in a manner acceptable to the courts.

Second, it will reduce voters' cynicism about the whole process of voting on such issues.

Third, it will get us back to the principle that on matters as basic as this, the choice of the people can be fully expressed only if they understand the question"

If the trend of making government more "democratic" means anything at all, it is that the voice of the people must be heard in a clear way.

NUTRITION A LA CARTE

• People ask me about cholesterol and I tell them research has a long way to go before we will have answers. The question of whether the foods we eat have anything to do with heart disease has not been settled. Meantime, drastic changes in your diet should not be made without medical advice.

• Medical research has shown that the great majority of babies in excellent or good condition at birth are babies of mothers whose diets were excellent or good. The mothers, too, enjoyed better health and had fewer complications in pregnancy. This is why mothers-to-be should know and practice good nutrition.

• Is there an overweight or obese teenager in your house? At Harvard they found that such youngsters gain weight not because they eat more than their thinner schoolmates, but because they exercise less. They were physically inactive 90% of the time and often ate less food.

• Phosphorus in your diet — and milk is a good source — is needed in every living cell. It's involved in chemical interactions with protein, fats, and carbohydrates in giving the body energy and essential materials for growth and repair. Phosphorus is available in many foods, especially those rich in protein or calcium.

• For dental health eat a balanced diet and choose snacks that won't stick to your teeth. Good snacks include milk, fresh fruits, crisp celery or carrot sticks, lettuce or cabbage. Also, unsweetened ready-to-eat cereal. You can make a delightful snack by dipping celery ends into softened cream cheese dip.

• A little safety along with good meals for your family is a good idea. The kitchen can be one of the most dangerous places in the house if we aren't careful. Keep hot things out of the reach of children. Also poisons, sharp utensils, electric appliances, and especially hot grease and cooking oils.

• Anemia is a frequent problem among women of childbearing age and teen-age girls. It is caused by inadequate iron reserves in the body and not enough iron in the diet. Good food sources of iron include whole grain and enriched cereal products, eggs, meat and poultry, apricots, prunes, and raisins.

DRIVER ERROR

Driver error is a major factor in driving accidents says the Ohio Department of Highway Safety. Most frequently this involves driving too fast for road conditions. Factors which can result in driver error are physical, mental and emotional deficiencies; intoxication; fatigue; lack of knowledge and skill; inattention and recklessness. Steer clear of driver error.

TIRED DRIVING

Avoid steady driving around your usual bedtime, warns your Ohio Department of Highway Safety. Your alertness level drops sharply about the time you're accustomed to going to bed. The driver's seat should be vacated any time eyes start burning, eyelids become heavy, or gaze begins to freeze on the scene ahead.

VA Approving Home Loans Again

The Veterans Administration has resumed approving G.I. home loans as a result of the President's signing a new law July 26 extending VA's authority to set interest rates.

Donald E. Johnson, Administrator of Veterans Affairs, has announced he has established 7.75 per cent as the new maximum interest rate on VA guaranteed, insured and direct home loans. Johnson determined the new rate after consultation with Secretary James T. Lynn of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"This increase will permit the continuation of the VA loan program as a viable instrment for the use of home buying veterans," Johnson said. "This will be especially meaningful to our younger Vietnam era veterans who now obtain some 75 per cent of all VA loans."

The VA Administrator noted that VA approved 362,000 home loans in the just-ended Fiscal Year 1973.

Also named to a six-year term was Augustine R. Marusi, president and chairman of the board of Borden, Inc. Marusi holds an honorary doctor of laws degree from Capital.

Other newcomers to the board are: Robert E. Dorfmeyer of Rocky River, Ohio who is vice president and assistant to the president of Glidden-Durkee Division, SCM Corporation in Cleveland, and the Rev. David W. Lynn of Toledo, who presently serves as pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church. Lynn formerly was pastor of Hope Lutheran Church located on Lilley Ave. in Columbus.

Re-elected to board posts were Bradley T. J. Mettee, attorney and financial consultant from Baltimore, Md.; the Rev. William L. HEARD UNDER THE DRYER

Remember when civilization used to stand at the crossroads and wonder which way to turn? These days, it has to find the right cloverleaf at 60 miles an hour.

The year was an active one for pupils in fine and performing arts programs. Twelve high school bands, orchestras and choruses and six junior high musical groups received the highest possible rating in state competition.

Over 10,000 persons enjoyed the performances of 3,500 students in the Biennial City-Wide Music Festival sponsored by the Columbus Council of PTAs. School musical groups took part in many civic and community affairs.

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra, as a part of the school system's concert series, performed at four high schools and six junior highs, and ensembles of the orchestra performed for students at 63 elementary schools.

ART STUDENTS from 12 Columbus high schools joined pupils from other Central Ohio senior highs in an Arts Action Weekend sponsored by the Greater Columbus Arts Council as the start of an ongoing program to involve young people in the cultural life of the city.

Art students from four high schools received awards of merit in the 1973 Governor's Youth Art Exhibit.

Vol. VXI No. 45 Total 934 — Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday, October 10, 1973 — 15 Cents

CONGRESSMAN Samuel L. Devine, left, was on hand in Washington D.C. last Wednesday to congratulate Ted Flickinger, center, Director of Bexley Parks and Recreation Department and John Brennan, Supervisor of Recreation, on the department's winning of a national award for outstanding program and community participation. The honor brought with it the gold plaque shown in the picture, a white banner to fly on the Jeffrey Park flagpole and a $1000 cash award.

Dealing With Book, Mustache

Controversial Issues Come Before Board

by Sandy Schwartz
Special Staff Writer

Columbus--The Columbus School Board's Oct. 2 regular meeting heard a plea from an irate parent to "establish some kind of guidelines for reading materials in the schools."

Mrs. Glenn Payne, 561 Elizabeth Ave., said that her 15 year old daughter, a sophomore at Eastmoor High School, was instructed to buy the book entitled "The Learning Tree," written by Gordon Parks. Mrs. Payne objects to the content of the book claiming it is "filthy" and that it "makes fun of God."

Mrs. Payne is a member of AWARE (American Women Already Richly Endowed). She stated that she had kept her daughter home from school for two days and that she would continue to do so until action was taken.

"In the meantime, until something is done, I will keep her at home, but I can not keep her home indefinitely," she added.

BOARD PRESIDENT Thomas Moyer said that immediate action would be taken on the issue. Moyer asked Mrs. Marie Castleman, chairman of the Curriculum Committee and board member, "to study the underlying issue of this book and report whether it should be used in the school system."

But Mrs. Payne did say, "I feel that the board is basically helpful and I'm confident that something will be done."

The Board was also informed of another controversial issue, that being a Notice of Summons from the United States District Court. The summons concerns Duane D. Gibson.

Gibson is the Walnut Ridge student who was ordered to shave his mustache and when he didn't comply was suspended from school for five days. Gibson was ultimately told to shave or attend another school and a suit has been filed.

IT WAS disclosed that the Board's community relations committee is looking for public reaction to a proposal by board member Paul Langdon. The proposal is that public participation (the times when a citizen may directly address the board) be moved from regular business meetings to committee-of-the-whole sessions.

Mrs. Marilyn Redden, community relations committee chairman, added that the committee will consider whether to recommend Langdon's proposal to the full board at a meeting Thursday, Oct. 25, at 10:00 a.m. in the board room of the Education Center, 270 E. State St.

In other action the board appointed Brubaker-Brandt, Incorporated architect of the new Southeast Career-Vocational Center which will be built somewhere in the southeast area of the city. A definite site has not yet been picked.

Also awarded was a $249,650 contract with Ed Ross Construction Company for general contracting and electrical work and a $75,579 contract with Eastern Piping Corporation for plumbing.

Contracts for remodeling and addition work at Sullivant Elementary School are $184,201 with Dawson-Evans Construction, $46,600 with Armstrong Electric, $24,600 with J.A. Croson Plumbing and Heating, and $28,700 with R.H. Reeb Plumbing and Piping.

DR. WALTON WALKER suggested that the board keep the public aware of the rising costs on construction sites and that the board make sure the money is available to honor these contracts.

The school board also considered a proposal to finance membership to the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for the Columbus High Schools.

The annual membership is currently being paid by each school through money earned by sales, dances and other school sponsored activities. The board requires each school to be a member in good standing with the association.

Also included in this proposal would be the payment by the board of expenses for each high school that was being evaluated for the North Central Association. These expenses would be regulated by the Superintendent and would not exceed $800. Generally two schools undergo an evaluation each year.

Also included in the board meeting were personnel changes, raises and appointments.

Bexley Parks Wins National Award

Bexley- The Bexley Parks and Recreation Department is one of five Grand Award Winners of the 1973 National Gold Medal Awards for excellence in park and recreation management. They became the only small city in Ohio ever to win the award and only the third Ohio city to win.

The Gold Medal Awards, sponsored by the non-profit Sports Foundation, Inc., were presented Oct. 3 at the general session of the National Recreation and Park Association (NRPA) Congress held at the Sheraton Park Hotel, Washington, D.C. Seven thousand members were in attendance.

Bexley won in Class V (population under 20,000). The city was also a Gold Medal Awards Finalist in 1971 and 1972. Other 1973 Class V finalists were the Parks and Recreation Departments of Westerville, Ohio; New Brighton, Minn. and McAlester, Okla.

Among the outstanding elements of Bexley's program city by the judging panel were its increase in annual per capita spending from $1.94 in 1967 to $5.83 in 1972; community support and citizen-involvement as evidenced by the department's Citizen Advisory Council; renovation of the town's once-neglected Jeffrey Mansion into a community center for cultural and recreational use; and effective cooperation with local school districts to open school facilities for community use more than 250 days per year.

The judging panel also noted the department's 18 outdoor conservation study classes as well as its federally funded work-study program for local university students.

Key criteria in Gold Medal Awards judging of park and recreation programs include sound financing, far-sighted land acquisition, creative leadership, diversified programming, cooperation with federal, state, and local agencies, and overall responsiveness to the community's recreational desires and needs.

The Bexley Parks and Recreation Department, one of 21 Class V entrants ruled qualified out of 141 originally nominated, was nominated for the Gold Medal Awards competition by Berry's Sporting Goods, Inc.

Theodore B. Flickinger is Director of Parks and Recreation, Bexley. Along with the other Grand Award Winners, his department received a Grand Award Winner plaque, a Gold Medal Awards flag, and $1,000 cash for implementation of a needed project for which no other funds are currently available.

Members of the 1973 Gold Medal Awards judging panel are nationally recognized leaders in the field of park and recreation planning, programming and management.

Flickinger is completing his tenure in the Bexley Parks and Recreation Department at the end of the current week. He will become a member of the teaching staff of Ohio State University. His successor will be named within the next two weeks, according to Flickinger, as the field of 14 applicants has been narrowed to three by the Parks and Recreation Board.

Whitehall Police In New Headquarters

WHITEHALL-Police Chief Ralph Walker and the Whitehall Police Department moved into their new building, 365 S. Yearling Rd. over the past weekend. The building, which cost over $500,000, was under construction for 15 months. Originally scheduled to open in May, bad weather and other setbacks delayed the opening until the present. Floyd M. Cecil, Director of Public Safety, said the construction was paid for by a bond issue. The new headquarters will soon have a full staff of 30 officers, four clerk typists, four radio operators and a dog warden. The area north of the building will be landscaped further, with a fountain square scheduled to be added. No date has been set at this time for the dedication ceremonies and open house.

One Will Wear The VICA Crown Tomorrow

THE TITLE of Miss Eastland VICA will be bestowed on one of these five Eastland students posing here with a favorite instructor, Mrs. Margaret Croner, third from right. The crowning will take place at 1 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 11 at a VICA (Vocational Industrial Clubs of America) assembly at Eastland. The queen will eventually compete for a regional title and, if successful, for the State VICA Queen title, now held by a 1973 Eastland (via Groveport-Madison) graduate, Miss Lynn Fields, Groveport. All represent various segments of the VICA program and from left they are Lynn Hochull, Whitehall, Miss Carpentry; Barb Libbert, Gahanna Lincoln, Miss Machine Trades; Debbie Spurlock, Groveport, Miss Dental Assistant; Mrs. Croner; Debbie Hunter, Pickerington, Miss Welding and Tammy Beavers, Whitehall, Miss Electricity. With such an excellent crop to pick from the harvest should be rewarding for representation for the school.

Fuel Energy Committee To Be Chosen

School Superintendent Dr. John Ellis announced Monday, October 1, that he will appoint a committee of school personnel to look into ways the school system can deal with possible fuel shortages that may occur as early as this winter.

Ellis noted predictions of fuel supplies are "notoriously inaccurate," but said he believes there is a chance that this winter or next the school system "will get the word that emergency procedures should be instituted."

The superintendent named Charles Hall, assistant superintendent for business affairs, to head the committee and said members will include central office and building administrators, teachers, custodians, secretaries and maintenance personnel.

He said he will ask the committee to come up with recommendations for dealing with emergency fuel shortages and ways the schools can "discharge their responsibilities to be providers of accurate information that will help people make judgements about what they do."

Specific tasks that Ellis said the committee will have include attempting to predict trouble spots if fuel shortages occur, determining possible fuel conservation methods that will not interfere with the school program and establishing a system of tentative priorities for operating schools if fuel becomes unavailable.

THE SUPERINTENDENT pointed out that the committee's work will be confined to current school operations and will not extend to recommending energy systems for new school construction.

The committee will be asked to submit its first report December 1, Ellis said.

Higher Speed Limits Correspond With Deaths

EXCESSIVE speed is accountable for nearly one-third of all traffic fatalities, according to the National Safety Council.

And the Council's safety statistics indicate that states with low legal speed limits have much better traffic safety records than states with high speed limits, the Insurance Information Institute reports.

In 1972, only one of the nine states whose highest speed limit is less than 70 miles an hour had a higher fatality rate than the national average of 27.2 deaths for every 100,000 persons or 4.5 deaths for every 100 million vehicle miles.

CONVERSELY, not one of the 10 states whose highest speed limit exceeds 70 miles an hour or has a "reasonable and proper" limit had a better than average rate.

States with speed limits of 70 miles an hour on Interstate highways, as recommended by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, were in mid-range.

Ohio, with a maximum speed limit of 70, ranked 11th in fatalities with 22.7 traffic deaths per 100,000 population.

OHIO ALSO was tied with two states in ranking 14th on a mileage basis, with 3.9 deaths for every 100 million vehicle miles.

Ohio's highway fatalities increased from 2373 in 1971 to 2451 last year. Despite this increase, the state's record still was better than the national average, the Institute added.

But any increase in needless deaths is a danger situation.

IN EVALUATING these facts, the Institute pointed out that speed limits alone do not determine a state's accident record.

"At the same time, it's impossible to ignore the high correlation between high speed limits and unacceptably poor traffic records year after year," I.I.I. District Manager Michael W. Collins said.

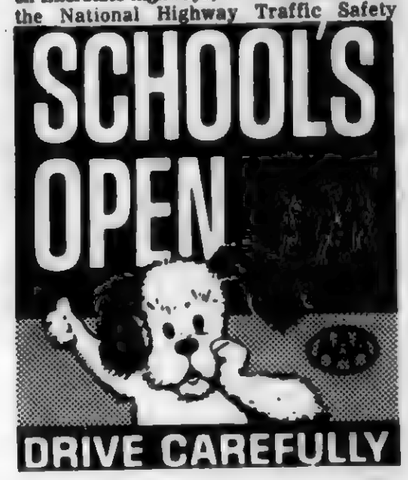
"Let's face it; the states with the six best records on a population basis all had speed limits of less than 70 miles an hour, while three of the four states with worst traffic records had no limits at all or a speed limit higher than 70 miles an hour."

WITH SPEEDING a direct cause of approximately 18,000 highway fatalities a year, additional correlation is clear.

"The driver who exceeds the maximum speed limit on any road in Rhode Island by 10 miles an hour is still driving only 70 miles an hour or less," Mr. Collins went on.

"In Wyoming, he might be driving 85 miles an hour while only breaking the law by the same amount.

"And in Nevada and Montana, almost anything goes, so the states have a highway fatality record about four times as bad as Rhode Island."



They 'Carry On' For Everyone

The newspaper exists and thrives because it reaches people ... people in homes, on a regular basis and in large numbers. That is where the circulation department comes in.

The circulation department does a variety of jobs ranging from mail delivery, to street sales and newsstand operations. But for the largest majority of newspapers in the United States, the primary circulation building programs are dependent upon a carrier force.

Probably nowhere else in the business world can there be found businesses which rely on 9-15 year old boys and girls for their existence.

Even more ironic, these boys and girls don't even work for the newspaper. They are independent businessmen.

This means that the newspaper circulation department has a great deal in common with civic institutions such as the YMCA, schools and churches.

The YMCA develops physical skills, better health, physical discipline. A newspaper route develops many of these same characteristics also.

But if large numbers of participants in Y programs prove mediocre or fail to measure up, the Y will still go on. If the same thing happens to a carrier force, the newspaper will lose money and may even go under.

The newspaper has a great deal in common with the schools. The school teaches young people reading, writing and arithmetic, logic and citizenship.

Newspapers teach carriers salesmanship, good business habits, dependability and more. If a carrier fails, he antagonizes the people on his route and may lose them as customers forever.

The role of the church is to teach morals, honesty and a proper standard of character development.

A newspaper route does the same, stressing honesty, business development, and fair play.

So newspapers are in the youth development area in a big way ... in a vital way. Newspapers have to do it and do it well because the newspaper itself and all it stands for in the community depends on it.

If carriers were to be outlawed tomorrow, chances are that the creative minds at the various newspapers would find another solution ... indeed, some newspapers already have. But the change over for the newspapers using carriers today would be slow and expensive, creating a whole new cost vs. service picture and the chance for reduced services.

So this year, as the nation takes a week to pay its respects to the newspaper industry, and the role it plays in the American dream, it behooves all to stop just a minute and take note of some of the unsung heroes that make it all possible ... the carrier at the bottom of the management ladder on whose salesmanship, service and business sense the whole multi-million dollar newspaper industry rests, and the district managers, zone managers, and staff men who keep the carriers going, training them, motivating them and helping develop the character of tomorrow's leaders in the process.

CARRYING...

The Thick Of Things

"The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceeding fine."

So goes the saying.

The mills of the more "god-like" decision-makers of earth, courts and congresses, emulate that slowness, but that's as far as it goes. They are human institutions and imperfect, as we are often reminded by events.

Meanwhile there is nothing god-like about a newspaper.

Its presses don't grind at all — they whirr exceedingly fast.

As an imperfect human institution that is also always in a hurry, we are imperfect indeed.

Wisely, the function we serve does not require perfection. It requires only that there be an open marketplace for ideas and claims, so that the truth can "emerge triumphant" eventually.

Ours is a helter-skelter kind of service that is unique. The newspaper is the supermarket of the mass media. You can browse among the departments of your choice, examine the labels we call headlines, and select for yourself the items you care about.

The reporting style we use offers you still another choice. You can have as much of our food-for-thought as you want. You not only can stop with the headlines, you can quit after the lead facts or delve deeper if it suits you.

No other technique for gathering and laying out news and comment gives you this range of freedom of choice and a system of "labels" to make your choice most effective whenever you choose to exercise it.

In spite of the fact that we are always dealing with events that are bird-on-the-wing and can't "stop time" to do our thing as the courts, congress, researchers, and academicians so often do, the record shows that American newspapers are scarcely more error-prone in the long run than those other human institutions.

Yet our greatest virtue is that we do not pretend to be carving tablets of stone as they often do.

The daily newspaper, thus, with all its sins is a unique and invaluable institution and we are proud of the business we're in.

National Newspaper Week is a fitting tribute to the press, but the newspaper comes out every day, and in this on-going service every day is newspaper day in a practical way.

Our free and varied press may not give society "final solutions" to its problems — but it will always keep readers in the thick of things and ABLE TO COPE.

We shall strive to keep meeting that basic obligation.

At The Parks This Week

The first phase of construction at Highbanks Metropolitan Park is nearing completion and the park was opened to the public in late September. Available initially is a small picnic area and 2-½ miles of woodland hiking trails. Knowing that the view of the Olentangy River Valley from the high shale cliffs will be of great interest, park naturalists and rangers will lead groups to the overlook on Sundays at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. in October. The trail used will only be open for conducted trips. Meet at the park's information shelter. Highbanks is on U.S. 23 (North High Street) 3 miles north of I-270.

Sharon Woods: "Here and There in the U.S.A." is Naturalist Jim Fry's topic for a slide program Wednesday, October 17, at 8 p.m. in the Nature Barn. New England, Washington D. C., Florida, the Smokies, Michigan, St. Louis, and Wyoming are among the places he will visit.

An exhibition of early American skills, including the use of antique hand tools, and the making of arrowheads and muzzle-loading guns, is scheduled for Sunday, October 14, from 1 to 4 p.m. in Beech-Maple Lodge.

Tree walks with naturalists as leaders leave from the trading post each Sunday at 2 p.m.

The topic of the monthly astronomy program will be the 1973 Solar Eclipse. Jane Gann of the co-sponsoring Columbus Astronomical Society will narrate the slides she took of the total eclipse. She and a number of other astronomers were aboard the Canberra off the West African coast. The talk is at 8 p.m. Saturday, October 20, in Beech-Maple Lodge.

The weekend of October 20 and 21 will see a popular pioneer activity re-enacted at Darby Creek Metropolitan Park. Using an antique apple press, bushels of apples will be crushed and pressed into cider. Also many apples will be peeled and cooked, along with cider in a large copper kettle hung over an open fire, into apple butter. A variety of apples will be used and samples will be available for tasting. Hours are noon to 5 p.m. Darby Creek is on Koebel-Suydam Road 3 miles south of West Broad Street.

Lectures Of Note Will Feature Greatest Artists

Five international personalities will appear in Columbus for "Lectures of Note," a lecture series sponsored by the Women's Association of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra as a fund raising project for the Symphony.

The 5-lecture series will be presented in the Ohio Theatre at 10 a.m. weekdays in deference to women who must be home at noontime.

Each lecture will be preceded by a social hour at 9:30 a.m. with organ interlude.

The series kicks off October 18 with Sir Rudolph Bing, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera for 22 years. His topic will be "5,001 Nights in the Opera" and his experience should offer "backstage" information about opera and opera people.

The second lecture, November 7, will feature David Niven. In addition to his acting career, which is familiar to most, Mr. Niven was a lumberjack and a construction worker in Canada, was the first screen star to volunteer for service in World War II, and is a best selling author. "Around the World of David Niven" is his topic, and it promises to be a most interesting talk.

Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen will speak February 14 on "Life Is Worth Living," his philosophy that has won worldwide acclaim. An amazing inspiration to millions around the world, Archbishop Sheen is an experienced speaker who always has something important to say.

A highlight in any lecture series, Olivia de Havilland will appear March 7. "From the City of Stars to the City of Lights" is her topic, and an appropriate title it is for a lady who has led as diversified a life as Miss de Havilland. She knew Hollywood in its heyday, and is now living in Paris. She's sure to have stories galore, which coupled with her effervescent wit will captivate the audience.

Rounding out the series April 11, the "party architect" Clive David, will speak on "Party Planning Par Excellence." Mr. David has planned parties for international dignitaries. His experiences plus some helpful tips on successful parties guarantee an interesting, informative talk.

The Women's Association hopes to make "Lectures of Note" an annual event.

Season tickets are $12.50 and can be ordered by calling the Ohio Theatre Box Office, 469-0939. The Ohio Theatre seats 3,000.

Higher Speed Limits Correspond With Deaths

EXCESSIVE speed is accountable for nearly one-third of all traffic fatalities, according to the National Safety Council.

And the Council's safety statistics indicate that states with low legal speed limits have much better traffic safety records than states with high speed limits, the Insurance Information Institute reports.

In 1972, only one of the nine states whose highest speed limit is less than 70 miles an hour had a higher fatality rate than the national average of 27.2 deaths for every 100,000 persons or 4.5 deaths for every 100 million vehicle miles.

CONVERSELY, not one of the 10 states whose highest speed limit exceeds 70 miles an hour or has a "reasonable and proper" limit had a better than average rate.

States with speed limits of 70 miles an hour on Interstate highways, as recommended by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, were in mid-range.

Ohio, with a maximum speed limit of 70, ranked 11th in fatalities with 22.7 traffic deaths per 100,000 population.

OHIO ALSO was tied with two states in ranking 14th on a mileage basis, with 3.9 deaths for every 100 million vehicle miles.

Ohio's highway fatalities increased from 2373 in 1971 to 2451 last year. Despite this increase, the state's record still was better than the national average, the Institute added.

But any increase in needless deaths is a danger situation.

IN EVALUATING these facts, the Institute pointed out that speed limits alone do not determine a state's accident record.

"At the same time, it's impossible to ignore the high correlation between high speed limits and unacceptably poor traffic records year after year," I.I.I. District Manager Michael W. Collins said.

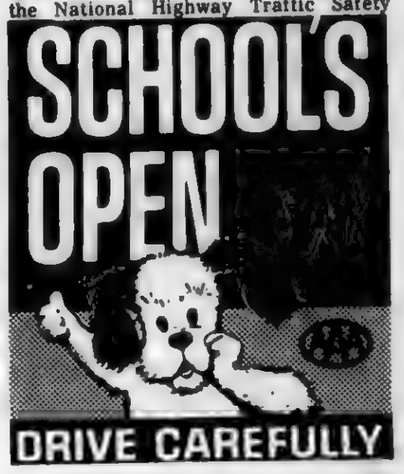
"Let's face it; the states with the six best records on a population basis all had speed limits of less than 70 miles an hour, while three of the four states with worst traffic records had no limits at all or a speed limit higher than 70 miles an hour."

WITH SPEEDING a direct cause of approximately 18,000 highway fatalities a year, additional correlation is clear.

"The driver who exceeds the maximum speed limit on any road in Rhode Island by 10 miles an hour is still driving only 70 miles an hour or less," Mr. Collins went on.

"In Wyoming, he might be driving 85 miles an hour while only breaking the law by the same amount.

"And in Nevada and Montana, almost anything goes, so the states have a highway fatality record about four times as bad as Rhode Island."



They 'Carry On' For Everyone

The newspaper exists and thrives because it reaches people ... people in homes, on a regular basis and in large numbers. That is where the circulation department comes in.

The circulation department does a variety of jobs ranging from mail delivery, to street sales and newsstand operations. But for the largest majority of newspapers in the United States, the primary circulation building programs are dependent upon a carrier force.

Probably nowhere else in the business world can there be found businesses which rely on 9-15 year old boys and girls for their existence.

Even more ironic, these boys and girls don't even work for the newspaper. They are independent businessmen.

This means that the newspaper circulation department has a great deal in common with civic institutions such as the YMCA, schools and churches.

The YMCA develops physical skills, better health, physical discipline. A newspaper route develops many of these same characteristics also.

But if large numbers of participants in Y programs prove mediocre or fail to measure up, the Y will still go on. If the same thing happens to a carrier force, the newspaper will lose money and may even go under.

The newspaper has a great deal in common with the schools. The school teaches young people reading, writing and arithmetic, logic and citizenship.

Newspapers teach carriers salesmanship, good business habits, dependability and more. If a carrier fails, he antagonizes the people on his route and may lose them as customers forever.

The role of the church is to teach morals, honesty and a proper standard of character development.

A newspaper route does the same, stressing honesty, business development, and fair play.

So newspapers are in the youth development area in a big way ... in a vital way. Newspapers have to do it and do it well because the newspaper itself and all it stands for in the community depends on it.

If carriers were to be outlawed tomorrow, chances are that the creative minds at the various newspapers would find another solution ... indeed, some newspapers already have. But the change over for the newspapers using carriers today would be slow and expensive, creating a whole new cost vs. service picture and the chance for reduced services.

So this year, as the nation takes a week to pay its respects to the newspaper industry, and the role it plays in the American dream, it behooves all to stop just a minute and take note of some of the unsung heroes that make it all possible ... the carrier at the bottom of the management ladder on whose salesmanship, service and business sense the whole multi-million dollar newspaper industry rests, and the district managers, zone managers, and staff men who keep the carriers going, training them, motivating them and helping develop the character of tomorrow's leaders in the process.

CARRYING...

The Thick Of Things

"The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceeding fine."

So goes the saying.

The mills of the more "god-like" decision-makers of earth, courts and congresses, emulate that slowness, but that's as far as it goes. They are human institutions and imperfect, as we are often reminded by events.

Meanwhile there is nothing god-like about a newspaper.

Its presses don't grind at all — they whirr exceedingly fast.

As an imperfect human institution that is also always in a hurry, we are imperfect indeed.

Wisely, the function we serve does not require perfection. It requires only that there be an open marketplace for ideas and claims, so that the truth can "emerge triumphant" eventually.

Ours is a helter-skelter kind of service that is unique. The newspaper is the supermarket of the mass media. You can browse among the departments of your choice, examine the labels we call headlines, and select for yourself the items you care about.

The reporting style we use offers you still another choice. You can have as much of our food-for-thought as you want. You not only can stop with the headlines, you can quit after the lead facts or delve deeper if it suits you.

No other technique for gathering and laying out news and comment gives you this range of freedom of choice and a system of "labels" to make your choice most effective whenever you choose to exercise it.

In spite of the fact that we are always dealing with events that are bird-on-the-wing and can't "stop time" to do our thing as the courts, congress, researchers, and academicians so often do, the record shows that American newspapers are scarcely more error-prone in the long run than those other human institutions.

Yet our greatest virtue is that we do not pretend to be carving tablets of stone as they often do.

The daily newspaper, thus, with all its sins is a unique and invaluable institution and we are proud of the business we're in.

National Newspaper Week is a fitting tribute to the press, but the newspaper comes out every day, and in this on-going service every day is newspaper day in a practical way.

Our free and varied press may not give society "final solutions" to its problems — but it will always keep readers in the thick of things and ABLE TO COPE.

We shall strive to keep meeting that basic obligation.

Red Cross Plans Disaster Classes

The Red Cross will hold a disaster nurses class October 25 at the Red Cross, 995 E. Broad St., Columbus, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Taught by Mrs. Clara Schuster, R.N., the class will cover such subjects as visualizing the impact of disaster, mobilizing resources, shelter operations, disaster nursing skills, and other vital information needed by a nurse interested in serving disaster victims.

Mrs. Schuster has a B.S. in Nursing from Cornell University, a Master's Degree in Education from Boston University, has several courses in disaster nursing, and was charge nurse at the disaster shelter in Elmira, New York in the summer of 1972.

Nurses interested in taking this course should call the Red Cross, 253-7981 for registration.

At The Parks This Week

The first phase of construction at Highbanks Metropolitan Park is nearing completion and the park was opened to the public in late September. Available initially is a small picnic area and 2-½ miles of woodland hiking trails. Knowing that the view of the Olentangy River Valley from the high shale cliffs will be of great interest, park naturalists and rangers will lead groups to the overlook on Sundays at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. in October. The trail used will only be open for conducted trips. Meet at the park's information shelter. Highbanks is on U.S. 23 (North High Street) 3 miles north of I-270.

Sharon Woods: "Here and There in the U.S.A." is Naturalist Jim Fry's topic for a slide program Wednesday, October 17, at 8 p.m. in the Nature Barn. New England, Washington D. C., Florida, the Smokies, Michigan, St. Louis, and Wyoming are among the places he will visit.

An exhibition of early American skills, including the use of antique hand tools, and the making of arrowheads and muzzle-loading guns, is scheduled for Sunday, October 14, from 1 to 4 p.m. in Beech-Maple Lodge.

Tree walks with naturalists as leaders leave from the trading post each Sunday at 2 p.m.

The topic of the monthly astronomy program will be the 1973 Solar Eclipse. Jane Gann of the co-sponsoring Columbus Astronomical Society will narrate the slides she took of the total eclipse. She and a number of other astronomers were aboard the Canberra off the West African coast. The talk is at 8 p.m. Saturday, October 20, in Beech-Maple Lodge.

The weekend of October 20 and 21 will see a popular pioneer activity re-enacted at Darby Creek Metropolitan Park. Using an antique apple press, bushels of apples will be crushed and pressed into cider. Also many apples will be peeled and cooked, along with cider in a large copper kettle hung over an open fire, into apple butter. A variety of apples will be used and samples will be available for tasting. Hours are noon to 8 p.m. Darby Creek is on Koebel-Suydam Road 3 miles south of West Broad Street.

Professor Jack Matthews, of the English Department, Ohio University, Athens, will speak on "Fair Criticism". This is part of a series of discussions on How To Read A Book.

Matthews has published five novels, a collection of stories, and a volume of poetry. He has received various literary prizes, and during 1970-71 was Distinguished Writer in Residence at Wichita State University. He teaches courses in creative writing at Ohio University.

Lions' Den
by Nancy Lessem

(Editor's note: Today we introduce Bexley High School's new Spectator East columnist, Nancy Lessem, who will write the "Lions' Den." Nancy is editor-in-chief of her high school's newspaper, "The Torch" and member of Quill and Scroll journalistic honor society.)

THE BEXLEY HIGH SCHOOL English department has made some major course changes in the upper levels, which are proving to be very successful.

Instead of the traditional year-long general English courses, juniors and seniors can now choose from 10 semester courses.

English is still a required subject for juniors and reccommended for seniors, Juniors must select two semesters of English, one of which must be a composition course chosen to fit the student's needs.

College-bound seniors are encouraged to take one of these courses.

Students can now study a wide variety of topics ranging from comedy, fantasy, and science fiction to mass media and a critical view of social conditions, as presented in Protest and Social Criticism. Other specific courses Bexley now offers are World Literature, Great American and British Authors, and Comment and Controversy, a course designed to acquaint students with the vast amount of material based on fact.

SEVERAL Bexley students have become Semi-finalists and Commended Scholars, as announced by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC). The corporation bases its decisions on the students' performance on the 1972 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

The six semi-finalists are Mary Dennis, Gary Grebus, Bonnie Katz, Joanna Siegel, Deborah Waterman, and Sue Williard. They have the chance to receive one of the 3000 $1,000 scholarships that NMSC will distribute.

The commended scholars are Lisa Coney, Steven J. Greenberg, Eric Hunley, Gayle Leonhardt and Gayle Smith.

BEXLEY'S annual homecoming game will be held on Saturday, Oct. 13, with the Lions tackling the Grove City Greyhounds. The homecoming dance will follow from 8:30 to 11:00 p.m. The band "Shane" will entertain. The cost of the dance will be $1.50 per person and $3.00 per couple.

The Top Five of the Homecoming Court were chosen on Oct. 4. The senior girls are Bonnie Braid, Cynthia Davis, Katy Duffy, Kathy Halla and Gayle Smith.

EVENINGS...PURE GOLD!

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

Bare decolletage red matte jersey formal gown with matching cape stole lavishly bordered in red Coq feathers...by Kasper.

Halston's big evening story...all over gold sequins on chiffon.

(Photos by Linda Stern)

Adele Simpson's terra cotta matte jersey formal gown with low cut V neckline and matching cardigan emblazoned with gold diamantes.

Sari silks with gold threads in shades of green, rust and blue, for two creations by Papillon...strapless dress with ruffled bodice and long sleeved, smocked front gown.

THERE MAY BE A SHORTAGE OF GOLD in the United States Treasury, but there's certainly no shortage of gold in evening fashions for the Holidays ahead. A shimmer of metal appears through almost all the gowns...sheer metallic chiffons, gold-patterned sari silks, gold-shot matte jerseys, gold sequins on paisley, all-over sequins on chiffon, and rhinestone studded satin and crepe...all fluid, liquid, luxurious!

RUNNING NECK to neck with these luxury fabrics are the matte jerseys and crepe gowns...only this year in sensational new colors. White now has the depth of ivory or rich cream. Camel, foggy grey, sage green, teal blue, lavender and russet are subtle and sophisticated. Mysterious murky darks go earthy in hunter green, brown, henna and burgundy...then there's black. Beautifully cut and manipulated...bare with halter tops, one shoulder bared, or strapless...often with the added plus of a matching stole bordered with feathers, or a pailletted cardigan.

EVENING EMPHASIS is definitely on excitement, with each talented and creative designer doing his own thing:

KASPER for Joan Leslie, "wants a woman to move into a mood of siren glamour...sleek and beautiful." He shows evening pajamas, the evening cardigan jacket dress, the restaurant dress...naked or covered up...glamorous black, paillettes and jewels, feathers.

HALSTON SAYS, "there's a new dimension of glitter and a new feeling for glamour. Transparency is very important, if the figure can take it"...his newest, hand-painted pastel striped sequins.

ADELE SIMPSON'S constant awareness of how events and fashion intermingle, has evening clothes inspired by the exhibition "GOLD" at the Metropolitan Museum...a solidly paved gold sequin sweater dress, slender bare dresses with wide gold bands, and gold lurex dresses paved in diamantes.

PAPPILLON'S Susan Sheiman remarks, "our evening clothes are deliberately spectacular...the long dresses are sheer, lustrous, soft and full. We love the look of silk satin banded organza, the lurex flecked or ribbon-plaid organza, and the gold sari silks in water color tints."

Throughout all the new evening collections, the message is...knock-em dead in the grand manner!

Lang-Obrecht Are Wed

East Columbus--Miss Barbara Ann Lang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Lang, 2910 Berwick Blvd. and Thomas Arthur Obrecht, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Obrecht, Allen Park, Mich., were united in marriage on Oct. 6 in Christ The King Church. The Revs. James Hanley, Anthony Borrelli and George R. Follen officiated at the morning ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin crepe designed with empire bodice, a bib effect of Irish crochet, cuff neckline and full bishop sleeves with wide lace cuffs. The hemline of the softly gathered skirt and attached chapel train was enhanced with a deep flounce edged with lace. The full length veil of silk illusion was bordered with lace and fell from a matching headpiece.

MRS. THOMAS A. OBRECHT

Mrs. Keith Farren was matron of honor. Other attendants were the Misses Christine E. and Mary P. Lang, the bride's sisters; Mrs. Stephen Lang, the bride's sister-in-law, and Mrs. Robert Clark, the bride's cousin. Catherine T. and Karen A. Lang, other sisters of the bride, were flower girls.

Terrill Wolf of Allen Park was best man. Guests were seated by James and John Obrecht, the bridegroom's brothers, and Stephen M. Lang and Gerard J. Lang, the bride's brothers. Thomas M. Lang was his sister's ringbearer.

The bride is a graduate of Bishop Hartley High School and of the College of Mt. St. Joseph on the Ohio, and the groom is a graduate of the University of Detroit High School and Xavier University, Cincinnati.

The bride will be a registered nurse and the groom is employed by the Ford Motor Co.

After a reception at the Fiesta Club, the couple left for a wedding trip to Colorado Springs, and will reside at Romulus, Mich. upon their return.

Heritage Lounge Has Stylists

A TRIO that is highly entertaining is currently in the Heritage Lounge of the new Holiday Inn-OSU. Tapestry. The place is the outfit. Their decorative musical designs and stylings definitely suit their name.

Lee Davission is the leader who plays drums and sings. This fellow has a rich, mellow voice that you don't mind listening to the entire evening. His vocal approach is highly individualized. Lee's drumming techniques prove to be rather tasty, also. This fellow is not a pounder. He sits down strong rhythms, yet keeping in mind, that drums should not over shadow the rest of the trio.

Organist Pete Cana is a solid musician who seems to know meaning of good music. Playing the electric organ with good chord structures, a knowledge of harmonics, Pete lets his audience know that he is there to entertain them, and not blast their ear drums. Pete also comes across with some nice vocal work.

To me, the real star of the trio is Lee's wife, Angel. No pun, but this gal sings like an Angel. Her vocal qualities are superb. It has a rich, full flavor, along with a nice, easy style. No matter what Angel sings, a dreamy ballad, or a live wire up tempo number, her tasty tonal qualities are always right on target.

In fact, the entire trio are right on target with their selections, stylings and overall general approach. They play a wide variety of material. Even when they serve up some of the contemporary songs, they keep their style in a rather soft, standard vain. You'll be surprised how pretty some of the new songs can be when played properly. Taperesty do play them properly, that's for sure.

THEY HAVE combined a beautiful blend of contemporary material with a rather standard approach. This, along with their talent, adds up to a pleasing, relaxing trio. The name is Tapestry is the name of this new Holiday Inn-OSU, which by the way, will have their grand opening this weekend. And, don't forget the Deepoes, another fine trio, playing the oldies that are great for dancing or easy listening in the University Lounge on the eleventh floor. You see, you go one place, and can spend an entire evening hearing a variety of top entertainment. See you there this weekend.

Seafood Buffet At Ramada South

IF YOU want to be delightfully stuffed, and pay only $5.75, to get that way, which is one heck of a bargain with today's prices, then head to the Ramada Inn South on Friday night. At this magnificent motel, you'll find their Seafood Buffet.

Served every Friday between 6 p.m. and 10 p.m., The Canoe of Seafood Buffet is one of the very finest I've seen. This is true both in quality and quantity.

I was invited down to the Ramada Inn South to try their new Seafood Buffet. I thought to myself, that here is another one of the typical Friday night buffets that you and I have experienced so often. I felt, why go down, I can probably tell you about their buffet based on my experience of all of the others that have been or are currently being offered Around Town.

Was I mistaken! Every item on the buffet was absolutely delicious. Now, that is saying something, when there was not one poorly prepared dish. But, it's the truth.

The King Crab Legs were simply yummy. I bet I hate a half of dozen of these. The Lobster Tails also were a taste treat that I won't forget. They were cooked in beer and cloves. Really a different, unique flavor. Speaking of flavor, wait until you bite into the Broiled Trout. Out of this world. The same is true for the batter dipped Cod. What a beautiful experience.

Other items on the Seafood Buffet included deep fried clams, shrimp, salmon loaf and halibut steak. All of these items were just as tempting as the ones I mentioned.

Before you settle down to all of these wonderfully prepared sea foods, you have your choice of eighteen salads. If I didn't watch myself, I could have filled up just on the salads, such as potato salad, macaroni salad, plus a host of relishes and many other selections.

You also have your choice of a wide assortment of vegetables.

IF YOU HAVE not been to the Ramada Inn South for awhile, then take my advice and visit the place soon. After a series of managerial changes, Andrew Gabriel has taken over the reins, and he is driving the Ramada Inn South into the winners circle like a sulky driver holding the reins of a speedy pacer. Andrew comes to the Ramada Inn South with years of experience in many of the top hotels from the eastern resort areas.

He has as his assistant, Jerry Peck, the man actually responsible for the top notch food and service, including the Canoe of Seafood Buffet. Jerry certainly knows his business.

As I said, the best example is the Canoe of Seafood Buffet. You won't find a better dining bargin anywhere Around Town. Make plans now to drift on down to the Ramada Inn South this Friday. It's a wonderful catch.

Skipping Around Town

Dave Rake's Summerwine is taking this town and The Rodeway Inn by storm. They are receiving standing ovations almost every night. This is a super group...Mershon Auditorium opens its second year of the "Guitar Series," Saturday, Oct. 20, with the great Spanish flamenco artist, Sabicas. Then Friday, Nov. 30, brings Charlie Byrd and the trio with some mellow jazz styles. On Oct. 24, Mershon opens its 17th Great Artist Series with the Ballet West Dance Company. These are just a few of the excellent presentations by Mershon during the current season. Take advantage of them, each one is a fine representation of the musical arts...Another top artist coming to town is Errol Garner at the Scot's Inn, beginning Oct. 15....For a very relaxing, entertaining evening, stop into the lounge at the Holiday Inn-North and listen to the Jerry & Nick Duo. The lounge is intimate, and oh so cozy. The music by Jerry & Nick falls into the same category. This is a great spot to dance or talk to that favorite person of yours. They are there Thursday through Saturday...Marco Polo's continues their policy of top entertainment. Mark Adams has a group, called Elijah, who prove to be a swinging outfit, that are packing them in every night. Owner Mark Adams always has the best at his Marco Polo's Lounge. You are never a stranger here....Get out and have a little fun this week. There are always plenty of places to go for entertainment or dining. There is something for everyone Around Town. Enjoy yourself this week, and I'll see you Around Town.

Worthington vs Westerville

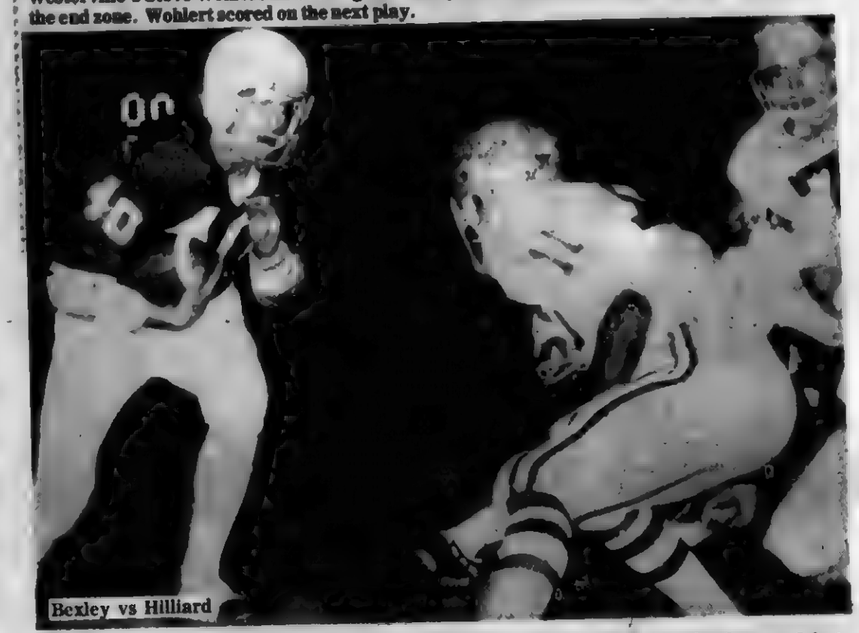
..DEFENSIVE BACK Don Wolcott (21 in white) had a busy night trying to contain Westerville's Steve Wohlert and here, with a little help, hauls Wohlert down after a long gainer by the Cat QB.

Worthington vs Westerville

..PETE KIGHT (11) a bright light defensively in Worthington's 28-21 loss to Westerville, was able to contain Dan Roush (24) here as the speedy Roush was TD bound with only Kight in his way.

Worthington vs Westerville

WORTHINGTON DEFENDERS Pete Kight (11) and Don Wolcott (21) keyed on Westerville's Steve Wohlert all evening and here just contained him enough to keep him from the end zone. Wohlert scored on the next play.

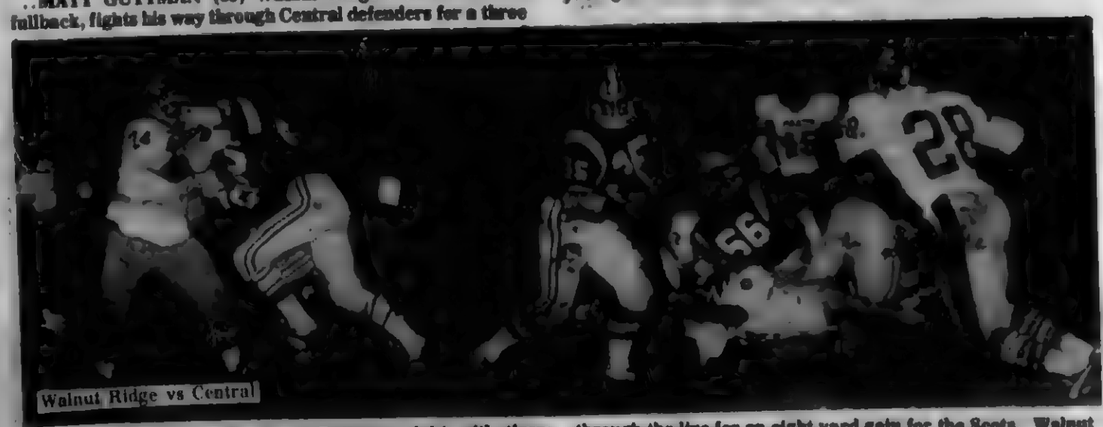


Bexley vs Hilliard

RAZZLE-DAZZLE was missing from offensive attacks of Hilliard and Bexley last week but Bexley's speedy John Bernlohr made up for it with some fancy running on this play. Bexley won the Mid-8 clash.

Walnut Ridge vs Central

..MATT GUTTMAN (35) Walnut Ridge's all-state bound fullback, fights his way through Central defenders for a three yard gain in second period action.



Walnut Ridge vs Central

..IT MIGHT SEEM like Matt Guttman night with three photos this week of Walnut Ridge's super fullback, but he was the only one to get into camera range. Here, he breaks through the line for an eight yard gain for the Scots. Walnut Ridge's Bob Bardelang (86) throws a key block at left to spring Guttman for additional yardage.

WALNUT RIDGE senior fullback Matt Guttman (35) gains eight yards against Central in the Scot's stadium last Friday in a game won by Walnut Ridge. Central's Jim Burks (73) was able to bring Guttman down on Ridge's 37 yard line. Central's 66 is John Murrell.

THE HIGH SCHOOL SCENE

Ridge, Eastmoor, Gahanna Loom As HS Front Runners

BY SANDY SCHWARTZ

Walnut Ridge and Eastmoor each moved a step closer to its classic City League showdown match as each won City League South' contests last week. But Gahanna stood alone atop the Ohio Capital Conference as Whitehall and Worthington couldn't seem to keep the rugged pace.

Desales and Ready gathered Catholic League victories but CCL cousin St. Charles lost its first contest of the season, a non-leaguer.

Eastmoor converted a bad snap from center on a field goal try to a 27 yard TD pass from intended kicker Raymond Griffin to Rob Hunter. Griffin picked up this mis-snap and raced backwards eluding Marion Franklin defenders only to find relief in Hunter and his waving arms downfield. Ironically for MF and fortunately for the Warriors this was the game's only score giving Bob Stuart's men a 6-0 victory and a clean 3-0 City League South record.

But Vince Cahill and his Walnut Ridge Scots remained only a half step behind the Warriors as they picked up their second league win without a loss in whomping Central 37-6. Matt Guttman and Terry Logan once again churned the Scot offensive attack giving all indication that the November 2nd, WR-Eastmoor clash will have plenty of weight in deciding who will represent the south side of Broad Street in that coveted CL championship match.

In the other CL south game West blanked Mohawk 7-0 via a strong defensive effort. For the se cond straight week Roosevelt Williams boasted all of the Cowboy offense as he scored the games lone six-pointer on a 12 yard dash from scrimage and accounted for the extra point with his toe.

IN THE OHIO Capital Conference Gahanna made it three straight by blasting Westland 46-0. Greg Bates tallied three TD's to spark the fire and help mount the 18th straight Lion win.

Westerville got a super performance from its super quarterback Steve Wohlert who raced for three scores to stop Worthington 28-21. This loss drops Smokey Wion and his men from the top rung of the OCC as Mt. Vernon did the same to Whitehall in the running of Rick Robinson.

In the other OCC game Delaware outscored Reynoldsburg 28-14. Reynoldsburg did get a 45 yard scoring strike from strong-armed Mike Cronin.

IN A PAIR of Central Catholic League openers Ready blanked Wehrle 12-0 and DeSales clouted Hartley 35-20. Brian Hairston starred for DeSales with his neat ground work while Mark Disabato delivered Hartley's punch.

Franklin Heights battled Hamilton Township to a 14-14 tie, Gary Jones scored both of the Heights TD's as Ed Lewis' men are still looking for their first Metro League victory. Bexley tapped Hilliard 6-0 in a Mid-Eight game thanks to the strong work of two way performer Jeff Edlestein.

In non-league contests around the area Watterson routed South 23-14, Cleveland Hawken stopped Academy 14-6 and Mentor Catholic tackled St. Charles' win streak 26-7.

Chris Bruzzese tallied a pair of scores in Watterson's winning effort while a 20 yard strike from Jim Tracy to Marty Kluhn netted St. Charles' only score.

Next Friday's grid slate shows Walnut Ridge at West, and Eastmoor at South in the City League South while Whetstone is at East in the north.

A strong week in the Ohio Capital Conference has Westerville at Whitehall, Gahanna at Worthington, Mt. Vernon at Reynoldsburg, and Westland at Delaware.

Hartley hosts Wehrle in a Central Catholic League affair.

Grove City is at Bexley in the Mid-Eight while Franklin Heights will try to find the winning track as it travels to Dublin in the Metro League. Academy travels to East Knox in the lone Mid-Buckeye contest.

Saturday's menu has Watterson and Ready matched at the Franklin Heights field and Danville and St. Charles tangling at Eastmoor.

Cap's 50th Grid Homecoming Pitted Against Heidelberg

The Ohio Conference football juggernaut of recent seasons has been tiny Heidelberg College, located in northern Ohio in the small town of Tiffin.

Heidelberg ripped through an 11-0 1972 season with nine regular season victories, a 24-0 blanking of Muskingum in the first-ever Ohio Conference championship game, and a 28-16 triumph over Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl opponents Fort Valley (Ga.) State. That made Heidelberg the crown princes of college division football for '72.

And the Riesenmen have not quit there. Already this fall they've whipped Defiance, Otterbein, Muskingum and Marietta.

Now they'll come to Columbus Saturday to meet Capital in the Crusaders 50th football Home coming.

It should be a bruising game. Cap is off to a fine start and has shown a surprisingly tough defensive unit. Columbus kids like Dave Toopes (Ready), John Ebron (Mohawk), Denny Bernhard (Bishop Hartley), Tom Hilt (Northland) and now-injured Bob Suber (Linden-McKinley) have made Cap's defense aggressive.

Capital also has some skilled offensive performers of its own that Crusader followers like to promote. Halfback Craig (Cannon) Snider (Celina) is one of Cap's all time great backs and tough fullback Gus Brockington (Cleveland Glenville) is another standout. Their running mate at right half is Columbus Eastmoor product Curtis Moore and top-flight end and place kicker Joe Duffy (Watterson) is also a local sidelight.

Action will get underway at Bernlohr Stadium at 1:30 p.m.

Otterbein Plans Homecoming Oct. 13

Otterbein College Homecoming is scheduled October 13 with the theme of the annual parade to be "The Wonderful World of Cartoons."

Parade time is 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 13.

Also on the calendar for the Homecoming festivities are the President's Coffee Hour in the Campus Center Lounge at 9 a.m., sorority and fraternity luncheons and the campus luncheon at noon, the President's Reception at 4 p.m. and an informal dinner at the Campus Center at 5 p.m.

Traditional highlight of the day is the afternoon football game when the Otterbein College Cardinals will meet Marietta at 1:30 p.m. in Memorial Stadium.

Coronation of the 1973 Fall Homecoming Queen and presentation of the "O" Club Award will be at halftime of the football game in addition to the Cardinal Marching Band halftime show.

Members of the Otterbein "O" Club will hold their dinner at 5:30 p.m. in the Campus Center.

Hunter Safety Courses

More than a hundred youths and adults have taken advantage of the gun safety instruction courses conducted by Game Protector David Brown at 1500 Dublin Road, Columbus, during September. The completion of the course is a necessity for youths 10 to 15 years of age that desire to participate in the pre-season youth hunts at the various public hunting areas.

The following are hunter safety courses scheduled in District One. All of these courses are open to the public.

October 13 - State Savings, 3650 S. Broadway, Grove City. From 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

October 20 and 27 - Columbus YMCA, 40 West Long Street. From 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. each day.

October 24 - Dining Hall, Morrow County Fair Grounds, Mt. Gilead. Beginning at 7 p.m.

Knox Lake
Muskie Fishing

Knox Lake is expected to provide some very good Muskie fishing this fall. Early spring test netting by the Division of Wildlife produced one of the best catches of this species on record. Four distinct size classes were caught; 16" to 17", 20 to 24", 27" to 29" and 33".

Scale samples were collected from all of the netted muskies to determine the age-growth and relative success of stockings. The size of the Muskies caught this past spring generally reflect the successful stocking of 1969, 1970, 1971 and 1972.

The muskie population of Knox Lake is expected to increase substantially as a result of the most recent stocking of advanced fingerlings measuring 7 to 11 inches.

Known by many of Ohio's bass fishermen as one of the best, Knox Lake may also soon become known as one of the better Muskie lakes.

Other species present in this scenic 495 acre lake include: Black Crappie found in good numbers of excellent size, fair populations of Bluegill and Bullheads of fair size and good numbers of Channel Catfish of desirable size.

Boat launching facilities, boat rental, concession - tackle shop, picnic tables, tree-lined shores and good fishing make a visit to Knox Lake a memorable one for the whole family.

Waterfowl Clinic

A waterfowl clinic is being held October 13, at the Delaware County Bank, Drive-In Branch on Route 42 at 7 p.m.

The purpose of the clinic is to assist waterfowl hunters in their duck identification.

Species and sex identification will be very important this year when Ohio will be under the point system bag limit for the first time.

Personnel of the Division of Wildlife will conduct the clinic and answer questions concerning the upcoming season. There will be no charge and all ages are urged to attend.

Dropped From OCC Tie

Cats Have All The Cards Especially Ace Wohlert

By Bruce Reynolds

Spectator SPORTS

THE FINAL score was 28-21, but it could have easily been worse as Worthington dropped a decision to Westerville last Friday night before a capacity crowd at Otterbein Stadium. The loss dropped them from a share of first place in the OCC.

Worthington-Westerville games have always been exciting and this was no exception. Although two big plays in the second half kept the game interesting, the contest was not as close as the score indicated.

The Cards earned only three first downs in the second half, two being credited on touchdown plays. Aside from these two scores, Worthington gained less than 20 net yards in the second half.

THE CARDINALS' biggest nemesis was Wildcat quarterback Steve Wohlert, who scored three touchdowns, narrowly missing two more on punt and interception runbacks. The predicted battle of two all-star running backs, John Madry of the Cards and Westerville's Dan Roush, was basically one-sided.

Roush rushed for 155 yards to Madry's 54; however, John did break loose on a long pass late in the game.

In the middle of the first quarter, Westerville started their first sustained drive. Roush and a Cardinal face mask penalty brought the ball to the Worthington 14.

On a fourth down, Wohlert, needing only a yard, faked the expected handoff and swept around left end untouched for the score.

THE CARDS started to move on their next possession, but stalled at the Westerville 23 as a fourth-down pass to Jeff Teach was two yards short of the needed yardage.

The teams then traded interceptions as Rick Kopf picked off a Wohlert toss and Phil Harper of Westerville grabbed a deflection off the hands of Tom Atha.

Westerville then moved 38 yards in nine plays to score, with Wohlert burrowing under his center to score from the one-foot line for his second score.

The key play on the march was a fourth-down dive by Roush for an important first down that sustained Wildcat momentum.

SENSING they were about to be involved in a rout, Worthington fought back. Madry broke off the big play, a 25 yard gain, and later a pass interference call moved the ball to the hosts' 12 yard line. Tim Crandall then hit split end Steve Sullivan over the middle for a score. Jay Hansley's kick made it 14-7 at halftime.

Wohlert returned a Crandall punt 43 yards early in the third period, but the drive was halted when Gary Coates recovered Roush's fumble.

Penalties pushed Worthington back inside their five yard line, and they couldn't move out. Two dangerous passes, one on an attempted option by Gary Chambers, were nearly intercepted.

WESTERVILLE had fine field position after the Cardinal punt and scored in just three plays. Again Wohlert got the points after Roush got most of the yardage. So in the middle of the third quarter, the Cards again needed to get back in the action.

Just one minute and 25 seconds later they had done so. Dave Alban broke off tackle and saw nothing but daylight ahead, then outraced the Westerville deep backs in a 63-yard sprint.

The extra-point snap was low and mishandled, and Hansley's kick was short.

WOHLERT now showed his expertise at leading an offense. The Wildcats embarked on a slow seven-and-a-half minute drive to the Cardinal three yard line where they were stopped cold. Worthington took over but soon was faced with fourth and one at their own ten-yard line.

With seven and a half minutes to go, Cardinal mentor Smokey Wion decided not to punt and gambled for the first down, a decision that will be talked about all season. Crandall's pass to Chambers in the flat was low and incomplete and Westerville had the ball back.

ONE MINUTE later, Roush rumbled in from three yards out with what proved to be the winning points.

Worthington promptly lost the ball on their next possession as Chambers tried the option but didn't fool Wohlert who intercepted.

THE WILDCATS again attempted to use up some time but ran out of downs with three minutes left.

On the first play, Madry circled out of the backfdield and just outran the secondary. Crandall dropped an 86-yard touchdown strike in his arms, and Worthington was back in striking position.

Hansley's onside-kick attempt didn't go ten yards and Westerville had possession at midfield. They couldn't move and punted, and with 52 seconds left the Cards tried a last-ditch effort. But the offense couldn't pull off another explosion and they ran out of time.

HARTLEY had its annual booster drive on Wednesday, Oct. 3. The participants covered the areas in which Hartley students live. With nearly 300 students cooperating, the drive was a smashing success. Over $2900 was collected, money which will go to the support of the athletic department.

A SENIOR, Bill Ulrich, was selected to represent Hartley on the trip to the various freedom shrines in the Philadelphia - Gettysburg area. The group, consisting of representatives from the public and diocesan schools and chaperones, left Friday morning, Oct. 5, and returned Sunday night, Oct. 7. Bill gave a speech Sunday on what this country would be like if the Founding Fathers hadn't used the Christian concept. Bill is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ulrich, and ranks ninetheenth in a class of two hundred twinty one. He held the position of Sophmore class president, has been active in all positons of studen government, and participated in various sports. We congratulate Bill for his fine work.

ANOTHER SENIOR at Hartley, Cindi Skunza, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Skunza, qualified as one of the twenty finalists in the Miss Teenage Columbus Contest, aponsored by Sears, Roebuck and Company. The girls were judged on poise, personality, scholastic ability, grooming, and talent. The winner of the contest, which will thke place at Vets Memorial on Oct. 21 at 7:30 p.m., will receive a $500 Sears wardrobe, the Sears professional modeling course, the two volume World Book Dictionary, and an all expense paid trip to Memphis, Tenn. to compete in the Miss Teenage America National Pageant. For her talent, Cindi has chosen to sing "Caint Say No," a song sung by the character Ado Annie in "Oklahoma!". Incidentally, Cindi played Ado Annie in St. Charles' production of the musical. We wish her the best of luck.

THE OFFICERS of the Spanish Club have been elected. They are Beth Ann Simon, Sue Ewing, Bill Ulrich, Mary Ellen Fisher, and Lori Summers.

THE JUNIORS and Seniors in the General Psychology classes taught by Mr. Dan Ansel will be visiting the State School for the Mentally Retarded. Mr. Ansel and the students will visit the school on Tuesday, October 16, from 9:00 to 11:30 a.m

Drexel Project Delayed

Bexley Building Code Due Soon

Bexley–In a regular meeting Oct. 9, the Bexley City Council heard a Building Committee report that stated the work on the new Building Code was completed, and from the Safety committee they learned that a meeting is scheduled with an expert to start study on the possibility of establishing a City Fire Department.

The Building and Maintenance Code for the city was given its first reading. A limited number of copies of the code, amended at the last Building Committee meeting, will be available by the next Council meeting, Oct. 23.

The council voted to pay the Fire Contract with Columbus, up to the amount of the appropriation made for it.

COUNCILMAN Offenberg commended the city crews for the quick removal of signs illegally posted along Cassady Rd.

Councilman Madison reported that a meeting of the Safety Committee was scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 1, with an expert on the question of forming a local Fire Department. He commented that he had talked with officials of several suburbs on the question, and he was convinced, that the matter would require much study. He promised a report by the next Council meeting following that meeting.

Resurfacing of Clifton Ave. was scheduled to start Oct. 5 and the final meeting about plans for similar work on Parkview and Main was scheduled for Oct. 10.

THE SHORTAGE of asphalt for paving is causing delays, especially on the Drexel Ave. project.

The Mayor explained that Safe Streets Act money could not be applied for help to replace weak street lights reported in the city. Funds from this source could only be used for new lights, where none had existed before.

TED FLICKINGER, Director of Parks and Recreation, spoke to Council. He showed the plaque and large banner won recently in a national city parks and recreation contest in which Bexley placed first in its population category. He presented a check for $1000, prize money to be used for a project not already funded by Council. He also presented a program of slides with sound track, showing the growth of the department and its contribution to the city.

The Mayor thanked Flickinger for this contribution, and commented that over the years, he has brought the Recreation Department from a small, sometimes thing to a vibrant part of the community. He expressed regret at the loss of Ted's services, but wished him well in his new position with Ohio State University.

COMMUNITY Relations Officer Sgt. Don Davis presented a program showing Council some of the areas in which his department serves the community. He presented a film, entitled "Nobody's Victim" portraying self-defense for women. It is one of many films available for showing at schools and other organizations.

Two New Schools Planned For East

East Columbus - Plans for the first three new schools financed by the $89.5 million bond issue were presented to the board's building committee on Monday, Oct. 8. Two schools will be constructed in the East area.

The committee was shown preliminary drawings for a new junior-senior high school on Refugee Rd., near Fleet Rd. and a new elementary school near Refugee Road and Noe-Bixby Rd.

Drawings for the new junior-senior high, prepared by the architectural and planning firm of Brubaker-Brandt, Inc., call for construction of a tw-story building with approximately 110,000 square feet of floor space and a capacity of about 1,300 pupils

THE SCHOOL would be constructed on a 30-acre site located on the south side of Refugee Road approximately 150 feet east of Fleet Road. The site is already owned by the Board of Educations.

Also developed on the site would be appropriate off-street parking, and facilities for outdoor physical education and interscholastic athletics.

According to the preliminary plans, the first floor of the building would be constructed slightly below ground level to reduce heat loss and allow the structure to blend into the residential community.

SPECIAL FEATURES of the school include plans for a 9,500 -square-foot library-learning center with abutting instructional spaces for the language arts and social studies programs, a student commons serving as a multi-use area including lobby and lunmchroom, and appropriate areas for teacher work and preparation. The school also features business-education-related vocational education spaces.

The project is estimated to cost approximately $3.95 million.

New Elementary

Also ready are preliminary drawings for a new elementary school that would be built south of the new junior-senior high.

THE SCHOOL would be located on a board-owned 6.5 acre site contiguous with the secondary school site.

Drawings call for construction of a one-story school with a mezzanine above the front section of the building.

The ground floor would provide over 25,000 square feet for classroom space, while the 3,250-square-foot mezzanine would include administrative offices and teacher work and preparation areas.

THE PLANS include a library-learning center and multi-purpose room near the building's entrance and 14 instructional spaces that could be designed as either self-contained areas or for "open space" activities.

The elementary school, designed by Don M. Hisaka and Associates of Cleveland, would house about 470 pupils, including two kindergarten classes.

ESTIMATED cost of the school including alternate bids for instructional spaces, site development with installation of parking and outdoor play areas, totals about $950,000.

Appointed Bexley Recreation Head

Bexley-John M. Brennan, 25, who has been Supervisor of Recreation for the Bexley Parks and Recreation Department for the past 14 months, has been named the new Director of the department. His appointment became effective yesterday.

A graduate of Holy Rosary High School, where he played baseball and basketball, Brennan worked in the Columbus City Water Department for two years before entering the Army.

While stationed with the Army in Frankfurt, Germany, he was the sports director of the American Youth Association for one year. The organization serves children of American servicemen and civilians in the Army post area. He also was a Boy Scout leader for American dependents.

He played basketball for Army teams at the troop level, and baseball at the brigade level while in Europe.

Brennan attended the Ohio State University from 1969 to 1973 receiving his degree B. Sc. in Education, in June, after majoring in public recreation. During the summers of 1970 and 1971 he worked in the Bexley Parks and Recreation Department.

Brennan is married and lives on the East side of Columbus.

Volunteers' Orientation Thursday

Columbus--The Columbus schools continue to seek persons to serve in the school system's Volunteer Services program.

Mrs. Frances White, who heads the program, said the most immediate need is for additional volunteers to work with classes of pre-kindergarten aged children.

An orientation program for volunteers in the pre-kindergarten program will be held Thursday, Oct. 18, from 1-3:30 p.m. at the Columbus Education Center, Mrs. White said.

Also needed, she said, are volunteers to work in ten inner-city school library programs.

Mrs. White said persons in all walks of life – housewives, students, senior citizens, men and women – are being sought for volunteer programs. "People who love children and enjoy working in a direct action program are urged to participate," she added.

She said volunteers should be able to give at least one-half day a week and will work directly in the schools where their services have been requested. Schedules and locations are arranged on a mutually agreeable basis.

Volunteers free the teacher from many non-professional tasks, giving them more time for actual teaching duties. Volunteers also build a stronger link between the schools and the community, Mrs. White said.

Persons interested in obtaining more information about the Volunteer Services program should contact the program's office at 464-4360.

Veterans' Day Observed

Monday, Oct. 22 (Veteran's Day(will be observed as a full holiday at all post offices and financial institutions.

The Post Office and all stations and branches will be closed except the lobby at the Main Post Office and Stations and Branches which will be open from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. for the convenience of boxholders.

No other mail services will be available Monday, Oct 22 except the delivery of special delivery matter.

All financial institutions (banks, savings and loans, etc.) will be closed Monday.

Free Training Offered

Columbus--The Columbus Public Schools Department of Adult Education is presently accepting enrollments in its Vocational Multi-Occupational Training Program. Adult trainees who are unemployed, underemployed, unskilled or underskilled are eligible to train without charge in the areas of welding, production machines, heating-air conditioning and clerical skills.

Interested persons are encouraged to seek full details from the program counselor.

The Multi-Occupational training classes are held at the Adult Education and School Services Center, 52 Starling St., and in the case of welding at the Trades and Industries Center, 278 E. Spring St.

The program affords an opportunity for those eligible to receive skills necessary for employment in one of the skill areas represented.

All fees, supplies and necessary educational materials are provided without cost to the trainee.

Registration will be held through Oct. 19, and may be arranged through initial contact with the program counselor, Herman Rease, at 225-2881 between 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

'Meet The Candidates' Night Set For Bexley Town Meeting Oct. 23

Bexley–Bexley residents can "Meet the Candidates" at a Bexley Town Meeting Tuesday, October 23, in the high school auditorium at 8 p.m.

Madison Administrators Attend BASA Conference

Groveport-Supt. Philip Williams, Steve Drummond and Fred Cover, representing Madison Local School District, joined with several hundred Ohio school administrators in attendance at the fifth annual conference of the Buckeye Association of School Administrators at Scot's Inn, on Oct. 3, 4 and 5.

With "Let's Hear It For Ohio Schools" as the central theme, presentations and panel discussions dealt with improving communications between staff, parents, legislators and community groups.

John Hauck, Executive Director of BASA, said "A recent Gallup Poll of public attitudes reveals a good deal of citizen support for education, but also reveals a continuing lack of confidence". Hauck went on to say, "The poll also points out very clearly that the more respondents know at firsthand about public schools the more favorable are their views". "It is our hope that this conference will better equip public school administrators to bridge the gap back home through improved communications", Hauck added.

Supt. Williams is the president-elect of the more than 1200 superintendents, assistant superintendents, university professor and other public school administrators who make up the membership of BASA.

Contests Parade, 'Greaser Day' Make Bexley Homecoming

(By Nancy Lessem)

Bexley-Bexley's week of homecoming activities climaxed on Friday, Oct. 12, with the announcement of the homecoming queen at the game.

This year's queen was senior Kathy Halla, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Halla of 320 S. Ardmore. Kathy, a senior class cabinet member and a member of the Girl's Athletic Club, was escorted by Steve Shionsky.

The four members of the homecoming court were Gayle Smith, Katy Duffy, Cynthia Davis and Bonnie Braid. Gayle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison W. Smith of 258 N. Parkview. Her escort was Geoff Enterline. Katy Duffy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Duffy, of 125 S. Ardmore, was escorted by Kevin Michaels. Cynthia Davis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Davis, who reside at 2414 Fair. Cynthia was escorted by Kenny Greenblatt. Bonnie Braid, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Braid of 2424 Plymouth, was escorted by Mike Price.

The parade of homecoming floats, an old BHS tradition, was held just prior to the game Friday night. The senior class, a three-time winner, again took first place with their theme "Brewing up a victory." The freshmen won second place with "Roast the Hounds." In third place were the juniors with "Sting the Greyhounds" and the sophomores took fourth place with "Lock 'em up Lions."

The week before homecoming was filled with imaginative activities staged by the seniors. There was a "Name the Lion" contest, naming the lion presented to the school by the class of 1967; a "Think V (victory) Day, a "Greaser Day," in which all the students and faculty dressed in the fashions of the '50's; and a "Silent Day," during which the students and faculty maintained complete silence before, between and after classes.

JITTERBUGGING on "Greaser Day" at Bexley High School are Peter Cooper, art teacher, and Alison Horne. For the students it was a first experience, but Cooper was so adept at jitterbugging, the students decided he had "been there" before.

Trumpeter To Star In First Of Jazz Series At Capital

Bexley-The new Jazz Arts Group of Columbus will present the first in a series of concerts on Tues., Oct. 23 at 8:15 p.m. in Mees Hall Auditorium on the Capital University campus.

Featured guest artist will be trumpeter Clark Terry, formerly with the Duke Ellington and the "Tonight Show" orchestras.

Under the direction of Ray Eubanks, a faculty member in Capital's conservatory of music, the concert series is designed to give central Ohioans more opportunities to hear and enjoy the jazz idiom.

"Although jazz was born in the early 1900s", Eubanks said, "it has only been in the last decade that colleges and universities have begun to recognize the merit of this music. The schools have also begun to reorganize their curriculums to include courses in jazz history, composition, arranging and improvisation."

"However, professional organizations similar to those which promote classical music--such as orchestras still are found only in the New York and Chicago areas."

Eubanks added that it is difficult for music students outside of those areas to have any kind of continuing educational experience with professionals. It is even more difficult for the listening public to hear live jazz music.

The Jazz Arts Group of Columbus is striving to bring such music to a wider audience in this locale.

"Name" guest artists will be brought to campus and will conduct clinics focusing on knowledge about the professional jazz world for the benefit of students and the community.

These guest artists also will appear in concert with local professionals as an extension of the performance-education experience. In addition, area musicians who usually do not have an outlet for their artistry will have a chance for the community hear them perform through the new jazz program.

Concerts will be given in various locations around the Capital University campus-Mees Hall, the Campus Center and the Dunbar Center for Afro-American Culture located on the university's Nelson Road campus.

Reserved seats for the Clark Terry concert are $2.75 and $1.75. Tickets will be available at the door, or by contacting the campus ticket office at 236-6802.

Warrior Wrap-up

by Chosan Howard

THE EASTMOOR In the Know team held tryouts last month. The team members are senior Lee Fenner and juniors Ken Supowit, Howard Wallick, and David Adlerstein. The alternates are senior Ed Levine and sophomore Joni Ackerman. The team will play their first match against South in early January.

This year's homecoming dinner and dance will be held at Pick-Fort Hayes Hotel, Oct. 20. Entertainment will be provided by "Blind Justice." The five finalists for homecoming queen are seniors Patty Carter, Jackie Greene, Becky Reed, Kitty Riley, and Karen Wright. The queen will be elected by the Eastmoor students Oct. 19. The winner will be announced during halftime of the homecoming football game when Eastmoor hosts West.

Thirteen Eastmoor High School students were selected for National Merit Scholarships. Steve Emerman, a senior, was a National Merit Semi-Finalist.

Students who were commended all seniors are: Cynthia Bodwin, Peter Cannon, Holly Dull, Howard Epstein, Marilee Hartland, Clifford Hirschman, and Rebecca Reed. Semi-Finalists for Outstanding Negro Students are seniors Peter Cannon, Trent Clark, and David Porter. They were honored for their high performance on the 1972 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

Eastmoor students recently participated in a city-wide campaign to raise money for the African Relief Fund. The Eastmoor students worked hard to do their part in the drive for money. Their combined efforts brought their total collection sum to $149.

The money was turned in at a wrap-up program, held at East High School, by Eastmoor senior Melvin Jones. Eastmoor students did everything from door-to-door soliciting to stopping cars in the streets asking for whatever the people had to give. Those who helped in collecting money for Eastmoor are Daun Fields, Eric Farrow, Regina Missouri, and Mr. Raymond Nixon.

This year, student council plans to sponsor intramural sports, home coming, fund raisers, and has hopes of acheiving greater student representation within the administration. According to the council president Patty Carter, this year's program will include intramural sports of basketball, tennis, chess, and checkers. Activities will take place during lunch, 5th, 6th and 7th periods.

Motorcycle Fatalities On Increase

Columbus- Fatal crashes involving motorcycles in the State of Ohio for the period January through July resulted in 93 deaths, according to figures released recently by the Ohio Department of Highway Safety.

On one recent weekend alone, there were five motorcycles fatalities across the State. The figures represent an astonishing increase-66 percent-over motorcycle-related fatalities for the same period in 1972, which also totalled an alarming 56.

CHIEF Earl Burden, of the Columbus Police Department, says FARE, the Fatal Accident Reduction-Enforcement program currently operating in Columbus, seeks to reduce motorcycle fatalities and accidents.

"The FARE program" said Chief Burden, "strives to reduce fatalities of all kinds-auto, pedestrian, motorcycle, even bicycles, for that matter."

However, Chief Burden said that police and safety officials throughout the U.S. are particularly alarmed by mounting motorcycle fatalities and serious injuries.

He urges Columbus cycle enthusiasts to observe good safety habits, which include "wearing a protective helmet and sensible clothing, driving defensively, traveling at legal speeds, giving proper hand signals and observing all road

THE BASIC concept of the program--which stresses innovativeness at the local level is to determine the high-crash sites, times of day and days of week when fatal accidents occur in each city. Then, based upon local determination by the Police Department in each Ohio city, there is deployment of additional traffic police manpower at the most dangerous hours.

Threats To Free Press

BY ARCH BOOTH

As executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Arch Booth serves as a spokesman for American business. The National Chamber federation represents an underlying membership of more than 5,000,000 business firms, organizations and individuals.

ALTHOUGH I am a columnist of sorts, I do not consider myself a journalist. My function is to represent the institution of business, which I am able to do as a guest in the house of journalism.

The house of journalism is a troubled one today. Many newsmen believe the freedom of the press is under increasing assault, from a variety of directions.

As a houseguest and friend-of-the-family, I'd like to make a few comments.

ANY ATTACK on the free press is a grave threat to our liberties. Freedom of speech is the kingpin of our society. Without a free flow of uncensored information even the vote would offer little protection against tyranny, since the voter could not be sure of what he was voting on.

On the other hand, simple criticism of the press – even by public officials – should not be interpreted as a threat. And some newsmen seem automatically to interpret it so. If the press can dish it out, it should also be able to take it.

BESIDES public criticism there are two other things bothering journalists today – with greater justification, I think. The first is whether the courts should be able to force a reporter to reveal information given to him in confidence. The second is whether the government can require a news organization to be "fair."

Reporters have been jailed for refusing to name their sources. Some states have passed "shield" laws to prevent that from happening, and there are bills in Congress to create a federal shield law.

REPORTERS claim that they cannot serve society if citizens are afraid to tip them off to evil doings, which is what will happen – they say – if they can be forced to name their informants.

It's a valid point. Nevertheless, I think shield laws are potentially a greater threat to the press than the consequences of not having them. They are a threat because the government must define that which it singles out for special protection. And if the government can say who is a legitimate reporter, then it can also say who is not.

But it is government attempts to make news coverage "fair" that represent the greatest danger of all, partly because the proclaimed goal sounds so praiseworthy.

BROADCASTERS are presently required by the government to give "fair and balanced" coverage to all sides of controversial issues. Rather than improving the treatment of public issues, that rule has tended to make broadcasters shy away from controversy, for feat of being second-guessed by the Federal Communications Commission.

The broadcasters are regulated because there is not enough frequency "space" in the electronic spectrum for everyone who wants to broadcast. The airwaves are deemed to be public property, which the government doles out to those who meet its standards and agree to "serve the public interest." Everyone acknowledges that some form of government regulation is necessary to parcel out the spectrum space, but most broadcasters do not think the government's writ should extend to program content. Neither do I.

And until very recently, no one that I know of even dreamed that the government would try to extend to the print media the same kind of "fairness" rules that are applied to the broadcasters. But that's just what's happened, albeit at the state level.

NOT LONG AGO, the supreme court of Florida upheld a 1913 state law requiring that any paper which attacks the "character" or "official record" of a candidate for office must publish that candidate's reply to its charges.

This law would put the government in the editor's chair. At best, it would inhibit news coverage, as it has with the broadcasters. At worst, it would give the government the means to harass into submission any newspaper that displeased it.

As far as I am concerned, this incredible law is patently unconstitutional, and the sooner that fact is officially confirmed, the better.

NO REASONABLE man believes that the press is always fair. But it is "regulated" by its readers and by the spur of competition. Such regulation is the only kind compatible with the maintenance of a free society.

Bring Government Home

Work For Your Candidates

There is more at stake than usual in local elections this year which makes the "usual good reasons" for your participation more important than ever.

The "usual reasons," of course, are that local officials know your problems best, are in a position to spend your money the most wisely, and should care the most about improving our community. Sending problems (and most of the money to solve them) to Washington or the state capitol in many cases has proved to be an ineffective and expensive way to avoid responsibility for action on local needs.

Now we have federal revenue sharing. Our local officials will be responsible for the prudent spending of the dollars the federal government is returning to our community. The reasoning behind the circular route our money takes from here to the nation's capitol and back is somewhat mind-boggling, but local officials now have a responsibility they cannot slough-off: using federal money to meet essential community needs.

A strong local government is the foundation of our democracy. It is where government can work best to solve problems. And a whole nation need not be burdened when mistakes are made.

Let's make local government more responsible by working to insure the best local government possible.

MAVERICK

Pollution Solution Calls For Action

MANY OF THE badly polluting industries have a hand on the throat of the local citizenry. They say "If we must clean up our sewers and stacks, we will move out and the town will lose the jobs."

Actually, in most cases the violating industry is wearing out the plant and will build a new one anyway.

In many cases, the move would not only be prohibitive in cost but would not gain any more freedom to pollute because the laws are federal and apply everywhere.

THE CITIZENS, churches, unions, chambers of commerce and civic clubs of all cities and villages should form a manpower council. Their first job should be to inventory the jobs now available.

If those jobs in a large part, come from a polluting industry, all possible energy should be used to get some non-polluting companies. What is a non-polluting company?

It is one that handles intangibles or serves as a promoter or transporter of products made elsewhere. Banking companies, insurance companies, retailing companies and transportation companies all fall in this category.

IN MOST CASES, in order to get the most for your effort, it is advisable to land the home offices of large companies. The headquarters for Borden, Incorporated has been brought to Columbus. They are building a massive high-rise office building on Broad Street. This will employ hundreds of people at all salary levels. Many of the Borden operations throughout the Nation might well be polluting industries (although I know of none).

The fact remains that headquarters do not pollute and do bring many jobs to Columbus. Three whole counties in eastern Ohio are inundated with particulates that is the big provider of jobs.

When Ohio EPA said they had to meet standards, the whole area sent people to a public meeting. High school students were told they couldn't finish school because the tax duplicate would drop.

UNION representatives spoke to save jobs but forgot about the lungs of the workers, chamber of commerce people said the whole eastern half of Ohio would fold.

How nice if they had been concerned about their health and jobs twenty years ago and somehow diversified the industries of the area. Too late? No, but much more difficult now with a deadline hanging over their heads.

LIFELINE SUGGESTION: How diversified is your town's income? What is your chamber of commerce doing to get a non-polluting industry? Give them a push.

Golden Age News And Notes

IT'S TWO weeks to Christmas at 906 East Broad Street. November 1, is the date. The occasion, the annual Christmas sale at the Golden Hobby Shop.

The Shop is operated by the Columbus Recreation & Parks Department as an arm of the Council on Aging of Columbus and Franklin County.

All items for sale are handmade by Senior Citizens and are consigned on a percentage basis. Hours are from 10 to 4., Tuesday thru Saturday. There is plenty of parking both front and rear.

Carol Seitz, new Director of the Golden Hobby Shop, is busy assembling her goods and deciding how best to display them.

SHE HASN'T even tried to confine the merchandise to her desk, it wouldn't fit anyway.

It flows all over one side of her office, on the table, under it, creeping out on the floor into the room and even hanging from the overhead lights.

This is the place to get your original ideas for Christmas. In whatever category you are in short supply: tree ornaments, packaging materials, home decorations, novelty items, and gifts, gifts, gifts.

THE FIVE talent packed rooms will glow with the Christmas spirit for the month of November and December. For the consignees who furnish all the wonderful things there are only two requirements: they must be residents of Franklin County, and all products must have been constructed after the makers reached their 60th year.

One of the main sources of creativity from which the shop draws are the six Senior Citizen Centers operated by the Columbus Recrreation and Parks Department.

WHAT THEN will you see there when you make your frequent trips to the Golden Hobby Shop between November 1, and Christmas Day? First of all, of course, are ornaments for the tree.

These come in every form and material from the traditional glass (hand painted) through ceramics to felt and of course beautiful woods. To go along with your Christmas tree there are money trees.

These very clever cuttings were nurtured and brought in by one of the consignees attractively packaged in cellophane. They are selling so fast they can't be kept in stock.

YOUR columnist was struck by the variety of table decorations, one of the most unusual, a foot high Christmas tree made out of pale blue egg cartons, each original egg hollow fluted into an attractive petaled flower with a gleaming jeweled center.

Then there are the fireplace brooms, modeled on the toy brooms.

A snow face sporting a red hat tops the broom handle and the broom itself has a perky red jacket and flared skirt.

DO YOU want to save your money in the New Year? There is a bright red wool shoe enclosing a coffee can for a bank that could help you do it. Baby food jars have been transformed into candy cups for place settings and they are topped by a bright Santa Claus.

Speaking of the Holiday groaning board, table favors come in all varieties, birds in nests, santas perched on snowy blocks of wood, and ceramic reindeer.

In a whole class by themselves are the crocheted and knitted corsages and button lapels.

FOR YOUR front door, there are elegant wreaths. These are made out of pine cones assembled with the various nuts such as hickory or buckeye and made stable and beautiful with a clear wax spray.

There are also stained glass hangings, bells, stocking, and holly, delicately designed to dress up your windows.

As always there are the long strings of tiny brightly packaged Christmas boxes to hand in a dull spot.

WHEN IT comes to the gifts, you can begin with the packaging. Here you have a wide range of fantastic wrappings, huge made-up bows, and knitted novelties.

For your Christmas letters, there is hand painted stationery and most interesting of all, sets of writing paper with pressed leaves for accents.

The selection in gifts ranges from the traditional knitted sweaters scarves, mittens and slippers to brand new table size white churches concealing music boxes that play Christmas music.

OTHER additions are two hand carved clocks, finger puppets for children (brought in by a retired school teacher) and a new and very nice selection of hand knitted vests for small fry. Come and browse at the Christmas sale of the Golden Hobby Shop, 906 E. Broad Street.

Newspaper Advertising: The Foundation For A Free Choice In The Marketplace

By Jack Kauffman
President, Newspaper Advertising Bureau, Inc.

The remarkable thing about newspaper advertising is the way it works. Nobody is forced to read a newspaper, and nobody is forced to read a newspaper ad. But the fact is that nearly everybody does. Indeed, newspaper advertising commands such response that advertisers last year invested $7 billion to insert commercial messages in daily newspapers. This was nearly as much as advertisers put into radio, television and magazines combined.

So the messages must be getting through. And this is happening not merely because they interest and attract the reader, but because the reader goes looking for them. And that is one of the most important points we can make about newspaper advertising. Readers like it, want it, need it, and use it – all of their own free will.

Without advertising, how would the consumer go about exercising his many choices of goods and services in the marketplace? Where would he find them? How would he evaluate them?

Whether the reader uses the newspaper to prepare a shopping list before going to the supermarket or clips the automobile ads before visiting a dealer's showroom, the principle is the same. The newspaper is a market - a free market - where the customer shops before he shops in the store or showroom.

The newspaper is an information package and each individual seeks in it the things that are important to his needs, his interests and his way of life. This includes the information he gets from advertising as well as from the editorial offerings of news and opinion.

We know certain facts about the readership and usage of newspapers and newspaper advertising from our research efforts. Each person who reads the paper, for example, goes through it at his own pace. He looks at it page by page; his eyes scan the pages, and he decides for himself what he wants to read and what he wants to pass by

The newspaper is a habit so intertwined with our daily lives that those who read it tend to read it every day. Over the course of five weekdays, the average reader reads 4.3 daily newspapers, and spends from 30 to 40 minutes with each paper.

On the typical weekday, more than 100 million Americans read a daily newspaper. And they read the newspaper so thoroughly that the total number of pages they look at, laid end to end, would measure well over a million miles. On the typical weekday, more Americans read a daily newspaper than drink a cup of coffee (88 million) or go to work (77 million) or drive a car (70 million.)

Each reader decides for himself how much time and energy he will devote to reading his daily paper. And since the daily newspaper is not free, the reader must decide for himself whether or not to buy it. Last year, readers in the United States and Canada spent $3.1 billion for their daily papers.

The sum of all these statistics is a tribute to the ability of the daily newspaper to serve a broad range of needs and interests for each individual.

We know that readers are continually seeking information from advertising both because of what they tell us and from what we observe about their actions. The same process of inquiry tells us how they seek it.

For example, in experiments involving the use of eye cameras, we have been able to observe how readers exercise their freedom to read or not to read. These experiments found that the eye in scanning the newspaper page had looked at nearly twice as much as the brain could later recall having seen. The forgotten items were evidently scanned and discarded as not being worthy of the reader's attention.

The role of self interest is clearly shown by the fact that real prospects for a product, those who buy it often and find its use pleasant and interesting, are twice as likely as other readers to report seeing and looking for ads.

We've had other measures of how readers gravitate toward advertising that interests them. In one of these, some readers received papers with one of the ads missing - just white space where the ad had been. From follow-up questioning it was found that more than three-quarters of the women readers (76 percent) whose papers included a dishware ad recalled seeing it. But less than one-quarter of the women (22 percent) who received papers with this ad omitted could remember the white space.

The freedom to pick and choose, to decide what to read and what to pass over becomes all the more important as individuals face greater and greater demands on their time. More than half of all women in the ages 18 through 64, for example, are now in the labor force. Their multiple roles as wives, mothers, homemakers and workers call for a pace that was not required of previous generations.

And in all walks of life there is a great expansion of activity as interests increase and horizons widen under the stimulus of rising incomes and higher educational levels. All this leads to a greater dependence on media for the information needed to make intelligent buying decisions.

Meanwhile, there is an information explosion as people demand to know more about the goods they buy and business responds to the need to increase its communications with its customers.

All this increases the value to the reader of the essential freedom offered him by newspaper advertising - that is - the freedom to read as he pleases so that he can organize his life in accordance with his own needs. Isn't that what freedom of choice is all about?

Kindergartners Take Giant Step

Columbus--About 1,200 Columbus kindergarten pupils are taking a "giant step" toward preparation for first grade this year, thanks to a new program developed by the educational division of Reader's Digest.

The program, "Giant Steps Early Learning Modules," is being conducted in 21 Columbus schools and one non-public elementary. The pilot program was made possible by a $6,500 federal education grant awarded the school system last spring.

Although Giant Steps is billed primarily as a reading readiness program, Dr. Evelyn Luckey, executive director of elementary education, said it can also be used to help pupils develop skills other than those needed for reading.

THE HEART OF the program is a wide assortment of educational records, games, puzzles and charts designed on the "touch-see-hear-do" concept to help pupils bridge the gap between play and learning. The program modules are used as a part of the regular kindergarten curriculum.

The program's flexibility is one of its best features, according to Mrs. Barbara Cleveland, kindergarten teacher at Koebel Elementary.

"There are a variety of way as to use Giant Steps," she said, adding that students enjoy the program. "The activities even reach the most immature by helping to change attitudes toward reading."

"Giant Steps helps to show the children that reading is all around and not just confined to one little book,"Mrs. Cleveland explained.

THE TEACHER NOTED the program materials need not be used in any particular sequence "so an individual or a small-group can elect to play the games or work the puzzles and learn by doing."

She said the program also seems to stimulate conversation among her pupils. "Two-way and four-way conversations evolve as children work together with the materials."

But Mrs. Cleveland considers most beneficial the program's flexibility for use with either groups of students or one pupil at a time.

"GIANT STEPS is another resource toward more individualized instruction, complete with behavioral objectives for every game situation," she said.

Mrs. Cleveland thinks the program "should help the teacher evaluate the progress of each child so tha the strengths and weaknesses can be reported to parents."

"In this way, the parent can become involved in helping the student at the same time," she added.

Operation Nightmare Comes To Columbus

One of the most unusual halloween programs, known as Operation Nightmare, will be conducted Oct. 19 for the teenagers of Columbus and surrounding areas.

The program is packed with thrills and chills that every teenager will enjoy.

The point of departure will be from the Office Bldg. Parking Lot at the corner of Reed and Henderson at 7:30 p.m.

Providing their own transportation and dressed in old clothes, the area teens will follow an "out of service hearse" to an unadvertised destination. There the teens will be escorted, in small groups, through "nightmare alley."

After a "hairy-scarey" sequence of stories, the teens will hear youth speaker Bobby Murr of Louisville, Ky.

OPERATION NIGHTMARE is being sponsored by some of the area churches and Word of Life Bible Clubs. Word of Life puts on many such programs for the local teens and churches in the United States and Canada, under the careful supervision of experienced adults.

They have had as many as 1,500 teenagers at one time attending these halloween programs.

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

What you can't be without this Fall is this sweater set with swingy pleated skirt...an intarsia woven cardigan and short-stop sweater over a hand screened challis skirt, in burgundy and ivory.

A gala duo by Victor Costa..."Gold" the soft flow of matte jersey for a gown with pleated skirt under it's own gold and lurex tapestry cardigan edged in gilt braid. "Copper" lurex acrylic ribbed knit with cardigan striped in matching sequins.

A long languorous sweep of paisley for this slim dinner dress, casually scarfed and all-over embroidered in red sequins...from Suzy Perette's Holiday Collection.

"WE WANT WOMEN TO RELAX about prices," said Victor Costa before he showed his fall collection to the fashion press in New York. We have found means to absorb the labor and fabric increases, by simplifying cut and decoration...but never skimping."

VICTOR COSTA is not only one of the most talented and creative designers, but an astute business man as well. In all his designs for Suzy Perette, he stresses simplicity and ease in dress...adding luxury and glamour in his fabrics and cut...catering to the woman with more taste than money who wants to be in the mainstream of fashion.

THE SWEATER is definitely THE top of this year, but Victor creates the "sweater look" with a difference...nipped shaping, the bulkier sweatshirt top...the cardigan with a fitted back...the "bike" top shaped like a short sweater jacket with a knit waistband made in fabric. Victor loves the sweater dress...he showed at least six cashmere sweater dresses, followed by delightful sweater suits which played up two textures...a plain knit and a shellstitched pattern that looks hand-crocheted. The fur trimmed sweater is important too...the luxury aspect treated in a subtle way.

SINCE VICTOR wants to be all things to all women, he makes shirt dresses exciting in formal fabrics like cream satin-back crepe...his newest look is the short tent with short sleeves. The addition of a matching shawl over a short sleeved dress is another new touch.

Foulard and paisley patterns appear in dresses for all hours...grey flannel with embroidered dots is another favorite. There is a shimmer of metal through almost all of his evening clothes. Sequins on paisley, all over sequins, rhinestone studded satin and crepe, sheer metallic chiffon, gold-shot matte jersey and gold-patterned sheers...all elegant, all irresistible!

EPA Under Fire By Local Officials

BY KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus--The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) came under fire from local government, police and fire officials when they held a meeting Oct. 9 to explain the open burning regulation which took effect Sept. 21.

Local officials complained about not being consulted about a regulation they will have to enforce.

During a presentation by a panel of EPA representatives officials were told law enforcement officers and fire inspectors would enforce the new state regulation.

A Columbus police officer said a policeman cannot enforce a regulation, only laws. The officer was told he could be an educable force by explaining the new regulation or he could go through county court and swear out an aaffidavit of complaint against the person in county court.

A SPOKESMAN for EPA backed down and said only fire officers could enforce the regulation, but when one of the fire inspectors asked how to go about it, he received little support from Carl Jones, chief of the Fire Prevention Bureau.

Jones sited an article of the fire could which said open burning is prohibited except by provision of the Ohio EPA and that it should be enforced by the fire marshall, chief of the fire departments and the fire prevention officer.

The procedure to follow was not made clear.

One fire prevention officer said if he told people to stop burning their trash they would just point to a factory nearby belching smoke into the atmosphere.

The EPA spokesman said the EPA would handle the big violators.

"Because we don't have many inspectors, our enforcement strategy will be limited to mostly large commercial operations," Bill Miller of the EPA's office of regulation and enforcement said.

"We can't police 100,000 backyard and curbside burners so we are soliciting the assistance of local authorities," he said.

A REPRESENTATIVE of the Mifflin Township Fire Department said when they get a complaint about open burning they take their ordinance to them and explain it. If the person doesn't comply, he calls the EPA which sends a letter to the person. "But what happens when the first one refuses to comply?

Bob Alriths of Denison University made a slide presentation designed to be used for educational purposes outlining the problems of open burning and suggesting alternatives.

He said there was an increase in respitory cases during leaf burning time and that it has been estimated 10 per cent of the population has asthma or hay fever which is aggrevated by the smoke.

Lung cancer is related because of population density--with each person contributing to the problem it grows larger.

In what even he admitted was a controversial study, he said in Mt. Vernon there was a 100 per cent increase in birth defect of those conceived during leaf burning time.

HE ALSO CITED thousand of dollars spent for new paint, irritation caused by the burning of poison ivy and the possible poison hazard of burning plastics, adhesives and dyes.

Alrith suggested composting on a community or individual basis to dispose of vegetable waste and leaves. A guide to the proper way to dispose of organic material is available in a booklet from the EPA.

He suggests ending open burning by an anti-burning ordiannce, trash and leaf pick up, composting and recycling.

The following are excerpts from the new regulation governing restricted areas, which applies to this area.

A restricted area means the area with the boundary of a municipal corporation plus a zone extending 1,000 feet beyond the boundaries of the municipality having a population of 1,000 to 10,000 and a zone extending one mile beyond a municipal corporation having a population of 10,000 or more according to the latest federal census.

All other areas are unrestricted, but these areas also have to conform to certain regulations.

Open burning is defined as the burning of any materials wherein air contaminants resulting from combustion are emitted directly into the air without passing through a stack or chimney from an enclosed chamber.

OPEN BURNING without notification or permission of the Ohio EPA is allowed for cooking for human consumption and for heating tar, welding, acetylene torches, highway safety flares and similar occupational needs.

Open burning is allowed for the disposal of leaves and other landscape wastes and for paper products if the municipality, township or other organized government of a restricted area has requests and been granted authorization.

If the governmental units in a restricted area applies for a variance to permit such open burning, it must guarantee that by July 1, 1975 other means of disposing of this waste be found. The unit must show a hardship to its residents.

Hardship is proved if the charge for such disposal service has an annual cost of more than $60 per household.

Prior notification to the EPA is required for forestry, range or wildlife management; prevention or control of disease or pests; and for ceremonial purposes. Ceremonial fires have to be less than five feet by five feet by five feet in dimension and can burn no longer than three hours.

PERMISSION IN writing must be obtained from the EPA for disposal of hazardous or toxic materials where the Ohio EPA determines that there is no practical alternate method of disposal; instruction in methods of fire fighting or for research in the control of fire; in emergency or other extraordinary circumstances for any purpose determined to be necessary by the Ohio EPA, and recognized agricultural management purposes to maintain or increase the quantity and quality of agricultural production.

Requirements for obtaining permission

An application for permission to open burn must be submitted in writing at least 10 days before the fire is to be set.

Such applications must contain, as a minimum, information regarding the purpose of the proposed burning; the nature and quantities of material to be burned; the date or dates when such burning will take place; the location of the burning site, including a map showing distances to residences, populated areas, roadways, air fields, and other pertinent landmarks; the methods or actions which will be taken to reduce the emissions of air contaminants; the unavailability of alternatives to open burning; and a subsection of these regulations which authorizes the open burning.

Permission to open burn won't be granted unless the applicant demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Ohio EPZ that open burning is necessary to the public interest; will be conducted in a time, place and manner as to minimize the emission of air contaminants; and will have no serious detrimental effect upon adjacent properties or the occupants thereof.

The Ohio EPA may impose such conditions as may be necessary to accomplish the purpose of these regulations.

Permission to open burn must be obtained for each specific project. In emergencies where public health or environmental quality will be seriously threatened by delay while written permission is sought, the fire may be set with oral permission of the Ohio EPA.

Violations of any of the conditions set forth by the Ohio EPA in granting permission to open burn shall be grounds for revocation of such permission and refusal to grant future permissions, as well as for the imposition of other sanctions provided by law.

The EPZ cannot grant permission to burn if there is a local ordinance prohibiting open burning, such as the above.

Get something good out of your old battery.
If your car's battery has been in service three years or more, it's time to see one of the Delco dealers listed on this page. First, he'll check your old battery for signs of age like leaks and loose terminal posts.
Then, if it cannot be serviced and it needs replacement, he'll make you an offer -- and let you trade in your old battery on a new Delco Energizer. Select either a conventional top post model or our sealed terminal design with connections on the side.
Both are vacuum sealed for freshness. And all Delco batteries are built to give that big burst of starting power. Even in extremes of heat or cold.
Get your battery checked today. And trade it in before it lets you down.

Hank and Jeanie at Carriage

Hank and Jeanie are currently making plenty of good music as well as pleasing lots of people nightly at the Carriage House.

The Carriage House is a beautiful restaurant and lounge, serving the finest food with the finest service in this area. It's located a few miles south of Scioto Downs. And, adding to all of the excellent surroundings is the Hank and Jeanie Duo.

Heanie sings, and Hank plays piano, plus joining in with Jeanie on some fine vocal harmonies. Let me tell you right now, whatever they do, they do it well.

Jeanie Literally tears up a song. Wait until you hear her do such things as, "Stormy Weather." Just great! She sings with a very strong voice. She owns fantastic sounds, along with fabulous control. This perky blonde is certainly a stylist.

Besides being one heck of a singer, Jeanie is loaded with personality. She is Miss ShowBiz, all the way.

Normally, when one person in a duo is so powerful, the other falls behind the boards. Not true in this case. Hank is as entertaining, enjoyable and talented as the other half of the duo. This fellow is a real whiz at the black and whites. You have to hear him play to really appreciate his talents. As I said before, at times Hank joins in on vacal harmony work with Jeanie. He is definitely no sluch in this department either.

Their musical library runs all the way from the 20's through the 70's. That covers a lot of musical territory, believe me.

The Hank and Jeanie Duo is without a doubt one of the most pleasant twosomes I have heard in a long time. You can hear them also, this week at the Carriage House. Remember, while it is one of the best restaurants Around Town, you can drop in anytime, sip a few of your favorites and listen to Hank and Jeanie. The Carriage House is only about a twenty minute drive from downtown. It is well worth it all.

Colors at Marco Polo

Due to a very last minute change, Marco Polo's Lounge does not have Sterling Silver. Instead, Mark Adams has booked a group by the name of Colors. This is, without a doubt, the biggest misnomer for a group I've heard about in a long time. They have about as much color as the black of night.

Mark Adams has been in business for a little over a year and a half. In this period, Marco Polo's Lounge has booked quite a few of outstanding entertaining outfits. Some of them have been pretty wild. But, all of them have filled the bill.

Mark was informed at 4:30 p.m. on opening night that Sterling Silver could not fulfill their obligation. So, Colors was a very last minute booking for Mark. Which goes to prove that you can't be right all the time.

From a musical standpoint, this qurtet can, and does hold their own with most of them.

Bob Ochsendorf playing guitar and singing harmony does more than an adequate job. The same is true for Mike Kontars at the piano and drums. And, Barry Woods handling bass is right up among them.

These three comprise a pretty strong group. Their music is good, harmony is up to snuff, and they show a rather good degree of showmanship. They keep things moving with good medleys and tight sets moving rapidly from one song to another.

While Halloween is not quite here yet, you sure couldn't tell it by the appearance of the feature singer, who also doubles as drummer. His name is Bob Meadows. This guy I won't forget for a long time. Neither will you. His get up, and his mannerisms are as far out in left field as I have seen in many a moon. Wearing a cardboard type of high hat that looks like a skin from a pinto pony, long, very straggly hair, Bob trys to come on as a real life performer. He just doesn't make it. This fellow trys much too hard to entertain. Doing a so called stand up act, Bob Meadows makes a much better comedian, or better still a freak than a singer.

Yet, when Bob sits down behind the drums, he doesn't do a bad job in either departments. I think Bob has a pretty good voice.

As I told you before, this was a last minute booking. Bob Ochsendorf, Mike Kontars and Barry Woods can hold their own. Bob Meadows is a solid drummer. Not bad in the vocal department, either. But, very bad in the department of showmanship.

Yet, he is so different, that you have to go and see him. This is the name of the game.

Next week, Marco Polo's Lounge has booked one of the favorites in Columbus, Autumn Sun and Love. If you have gone Around Town much in the past, I know you have seen them at such places as the Neil House MHotel, and other top rated hotels, motels, and lounges in the area. It has been a long time, since Autumn Sun and Love has appeared in Columbus. See them next week, at Marco Polo's.

Waikiki has Food, Decor

Several times in the past I have told you about the Waikiki Restaurant, located in the Imperial House-West Motel. Without a question in my mind, this is the finest Polynesian dining spa in Columbus. Their decor is excellent. The atmosphere is authentic Polynessian, very quiet and intimate. Walking into the Waikiki, is almost like walking into a spot in China, Japan, or Hawaii.

The same can be said for the food. No matter what your preference is, you will find it at this south sea paradise.

I have told you about the Peking Shrimp, which is fresh large shrimp, sauteed with delicate mild pepper hot spices and folded into a secret sauce. Out of this world. Or take their Moo Goo Gai Pan, consisting of breast of chicken, succulent mixture of Chinese vegetables, mushrooms, and broccoli, sauteed in fine imperial spices.

Now, I want you to try their steak dishes. They are not only delicious, but you won't believe the prices. I had the Teriyaki Steak the other evening. Now, here is a prime sirloin steak, with the traditional Japanese recipe sauce that is truly exquisite. Yummy, Yummy, that's for sure. 14.95 is the price. Where else can you find a plain old steak for that price? The meat was very tender.

The Waikiki Restuarant's menu covers a lot of territory. Be it Chinese, Japanese, Polynesian, or American, they have it waiting for you. Anything from duck, to various shrimp dishes, to a variety of steak items. And, above all else, their prices have not changed since theiy opened about a year ago.

Take my advice, and head to the Waikiki soon. You'll experience a dining experience that you will remember for a long time. One trip makes you want to go back again.

Skipping Around Town

Hold your hat folks, Foster and Ferrell are back in town. This week only at Howard Johnson's on West Broad St. They opened last night, and will close Saturday. Howard Johnson's were lucky in picking them up as they were passing through town on their way south. For all of you who are followers of Foster and Ferrell, you had better make the scene. This will be their last time in Columbus this year, and not until way into 1974. They are still the most dynamic duo in show biz, and are booked way in advance. See you at Howard Johnson's Motel, on West Broad St. this week....The brand new Holiday Inn OSU, had their grand opening last week. A real big bang up affair. Tapestry is holding forth in the Heritage Lounge, and The Deepoes are providing lots of entertainment in the beautiful Universaity Lounge on the 11th floor of the Holiday Inn-OSU....This has to be a must on your entertainment schedule....Still receiving standing ovations is Dave Rake's Summerwine at the beautiful Rodeway Inn Motel. Just another outstanding group for the Rodeway Inn....This week, the Marriott Inn Motel opens their new addition. There are 60 new rooms, plus a huge banquet room and other facilities for their guests. Their press party promises to be fantastic. More on this next week...My gal, Jo Kiser is back at the Lincoln Lodge. What a sexy, talented performer. This gal sings up a storm, and plays a handful of piano. Stop in and see her. She does entertain, that's for sure....George Westermeyer III is back at the popular Grog Shop, of Stouffer's University Inn. This guy is terrific, and so is the place he is working. For you younger folks, this has to be a must for you...Don't forget the Seafood Buffet at the Ramada Inn South. You won't find a better, tasting treat in town, and also a better bargain. The price is right and so is the food....Jerry and Nick are still holding forth at the intimate Holiday Inn-North. A duo that plays soft music for easy listening and dancing. Lovers of fine music will dig them and the quiet surroundings of the lounge at the Holiday Inn-North. "Hello Dolly," continues to play at the Country Dinner Playhouse. Marion Marlowe is the feature in this one. Go see it. Dolly and Marlowe are a good combination...Last, but certainly not least is the luncheon and dinner menu at the Holiday Inn-Reynoldsburg. Great food, and great prices. I recommend it for lunch, Friday night seafood buffet or Saturday night Continental Buffet. You won't be sorry...Get out and enjoy yourself this week. See you Around Town.

star drags while spinning or spincasting reels should have smooth drag. Use a reel with a capacity for plenty of line, at least 200 yards.

Any good monofilament or braided trolling line is suitable for landing salmon. Line weight is a matter of choice and skill but 8-10 pound test would be a minimum; 15 lb. test recommended for most anglers.

Lures For Salmon

Silver, blue or bright colored spinners are effective lures, flatfish, spoons, the Heddon Tad-Polly and other lures resembling the shad or alewife. Popular live baits are shad, smelt, alewife, large chubs and golden shiners. Nitecrawlers on a harness are frequently used, particularly in stream fishing.

Certain physiological changes take place in the body of adult spawning Coho. Their color changes from silver to dark greenish or black for females and a dark pinkish color for males.

Fishermen, however should not be concerned as the flesh is still good table fare if cleaned and handled properly. Their bodies at this time have begun to soften, so fishermen are urged to take extra care to protect their catch from warmth. It is recommended that they be cleaned immediately and kept on ice until the final processing.

Gahanna Wraps Up OCC

Eastmoor-West Clash Looms As City Clincher

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

WEST'S defensive minded Cowboys and Eastmoor's explosive Warriors clash in Friday's headliner amidst homecoming activities at Eastmoor.

Eastmoor leads the City League South with a 4-0 record with West a step behind at 3-1.

And, West comes fresh from its semi-upset slapping of Walnut Ridge while Eastmoor manhandled South last week. Don Snider a 6'-185 hard hitting linebacker is the hub of this Cowboy defensive unit.

CLASHING head on with the "wall" will be Eastmoor's smooth-striding workhorse Ray Griffin. Griffin, leading the City League in scoring, brings his sly side-stepping moves into this matchup as Central Ohio's premier running back.

"We ubually give away size, but our strong point is the reaction that these kids possess," claims an eager West coach Dave Koblentz. Kobe went on to say that the defense has been improving week by week.

KOBLENTZ indicated that confidence was another main part of this Cowboy defensive success and named Hap Hall, Snider's co-worker at linebacker as another main clog in that defense.

Others showing steady improvement according to Coach Koblentz are ends Rick Lainhart and Jerry Dymek and tackle Terry Wassmuth.

A fine spectacle this contest should be to view.

IN OTHER City South action Walnut Ridge will try to keep its title hopes alive when it hosts Mohawk and in the North, East will travel to North.

Occ action finds Reynoldsburg at Westerville, Westland at Worthington, Delaware at Mt. Vernon and Gahanna traveling to Whitehall.

Franklin Heights will entertain Olentangy in a Metro League tilt while Bexley goes to London for a Mid-Eight scrap.

Saturday's action finds a full CCL slate as the headliner pits DeSales and Watterson at North in the headliner and Hartley and Ready tangle at Franklin Heights.

In Mid-Buckeye action Academy will try to stay on the win line as it takes to the Academy gridiron against Danville at 2 p.m. and St. Charles travels to Cincinnati to face McNichols.

EASTMOOR coupled its smashing of South with a stunning West upset of Walnut Ridge to claim sole possession of first place in gruelling City League South action last week.

Gahanna continued its assault on the Ohio Capital Conference by nudging an aroused Worthington eleven and in Metro League action Franklin Heights spilled powerhouse Dublin.

Watterson looks to be in control of the Central Catholic League with its whomping of Ready, complimented by DeSales loss in a non-leaguer and Hartley tied Wehrle in its initial CCL outing.

DAVE KOBLENTZ'S quick-dealing Cowboy defense stood fast in shutting-out Walnut Ridge 10-0 in the feature last week. West used a key 26 yard field goal late in the second quarter by sophomore sensation Roosevelt Williams to garnish all of the necessary offense in this win. Ron Williams added the finishing touch with a 13 yard jog late in the game to add icing to this glorious West High night.

This brings West right back into the CL South title picture as the once beaten Cowboys try to lasoe the undefeated Warriors of Eastmoor next week.

And Eastmoor looked every bit a first place team should as Bob Stuart's men whacked South 44-0 behind that Ray Griffin power packed offense.

Rambling Ray punched out three scores placing him second among Franklin County's leaders in the point parade.

IN THE North version of the CL Linden and Northland each collected wins to shed light on their shadowdown match next week and East fell to Whetstone 27-12. East did get two picturesque scoring plays in 16 and 35 yard TD ariel-strikes from William Anderson to Phil Dixon.

GAHANNA stands alone atop the OCC with a 4-0 record via a 14-13 squeeker over Worthington. Worthington's upset bid fell short as did a 26 yard field goal try with :39 left in the game.

Smokey Wion's ground game fell inches short in this heart-breaking Worthington loss as Gary Chambers and Dave Alban scored on short runs with the Cards deciding to go for two and the win on an extra-point try with 8:22 remaining in the game. That try failed supplying the final 14-13 tally.

Westerville remained one game behind Gahanna with a 32-0 thrashing of Whitehall. Cool Cat Dan Roush padded that win with his swift ground work.

IN OTHER OCC action Mt. Vernon dropped Reynoldsburg 35-6 despite another Mike Cronin TD pass and Delaware handled Westland 28-22. Mike Pritchard did give Westland something to cheer about though, an 86 yard kick-off return.

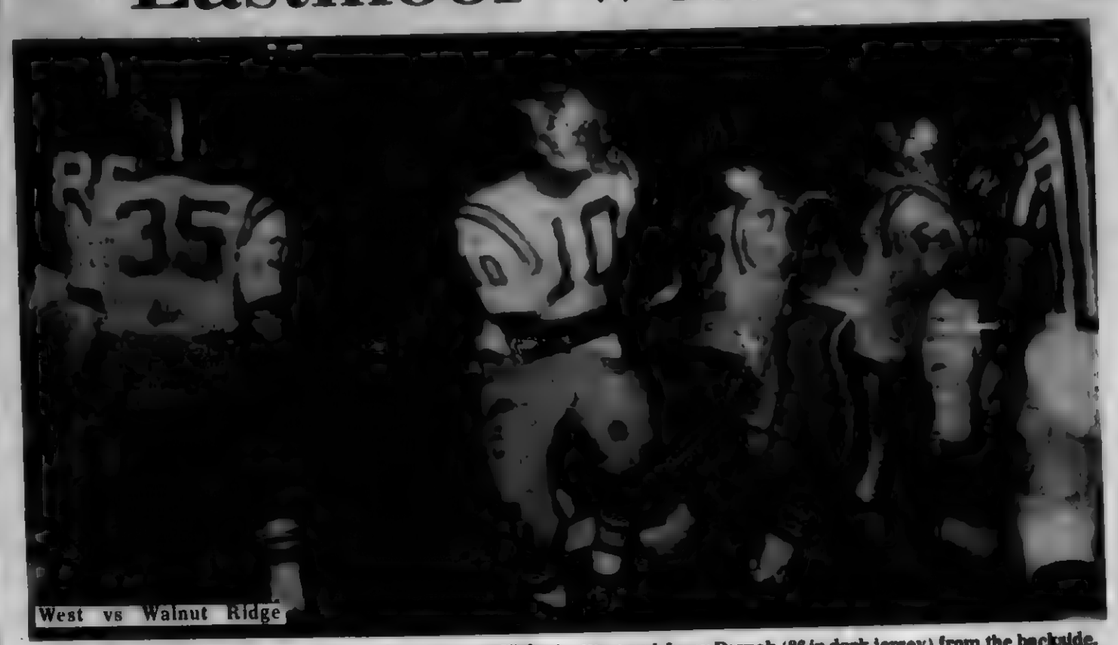
Franklin Heights used a pair of field goals by junior Ron Lathem to down pre-season Metro League favorite Dublin 6-0. Bexley dropped two games off of the Mid-Eight pace by its 11-8 failure to Grove City.

Watterson laced Ready 21-0 in CCL action. Dean Dixon figured in all of the Eagle scoring as he threw a pair of TD passes to Scott Brindgardner and Joe Motil- and he galloped for another six-pointer. Hartley and Wehrle battled to a 14-14 stand-off, both Hartley scores coming on Mark Disabato to Ed Radcliff tosses.

St. Charles blanked Danville 39-0 in a non-leaguer as Marty Klunk and Dave Heilman registered a pair of TD's each. In another non-leager Academy chalked up its initial season win with a 20-15 knock of East Knox.

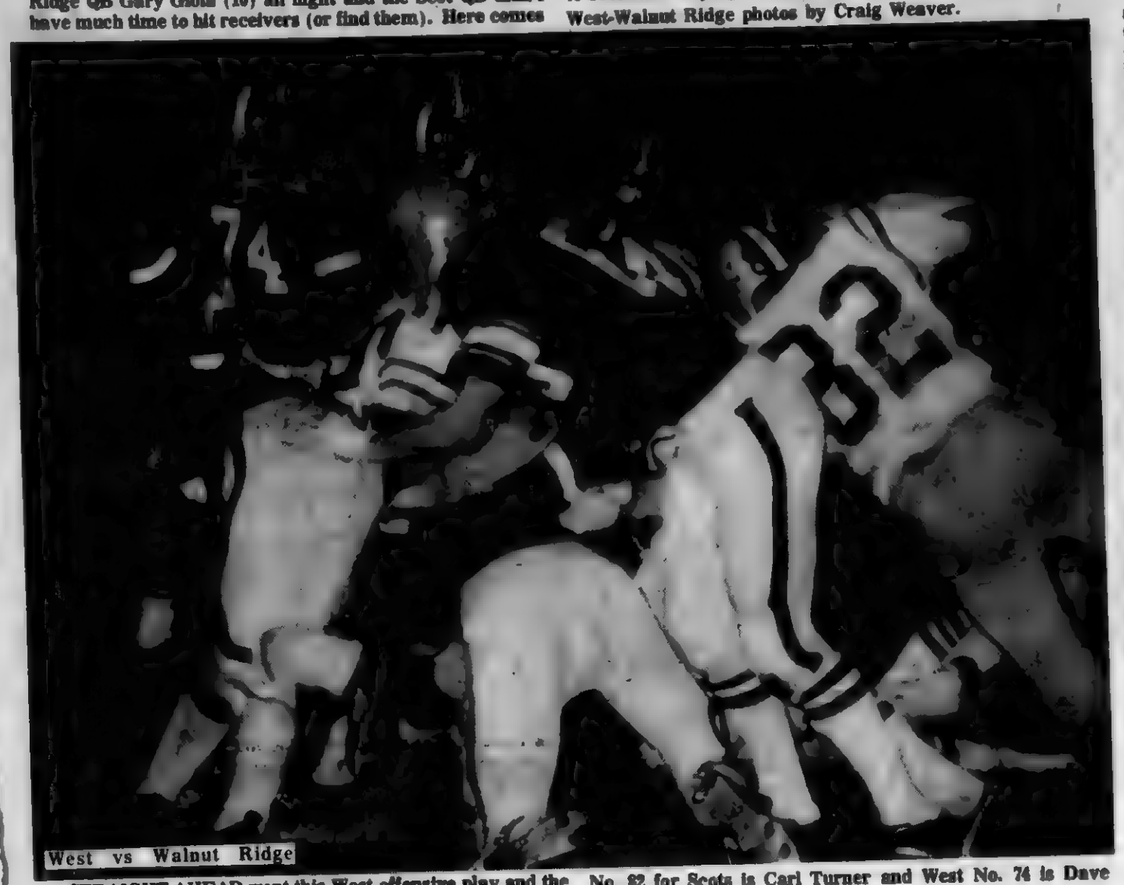
IN SMALL college action Central Ohio's elevens took it on the chin last weekend, Marietta edging Otterbein 12-10 and Heidelberg spoiling Capital's homecoming 30-7.

Penalty-plagued Otterbein suffered its setback at the punch of a TD and two field goals. Cap, meanwhile, found the going rough in losing to the team which owns the nations second longest winning streak.



West vs Walnut Ridge

A TOUGH WEST defense put plenty of pressure on Walnut Ridge QB Gary Gioia (10) all night and the Scot QB didn't have much time to hit receivers (or find them). Here comes West end Jerry Dymek (86 in dark jersey) from the backside. A Scot back hoping to delay Dymek is Matt Guttman (35). West-Walnut Ridge photos by Craig Weaver.



West vs Walnut Ridge

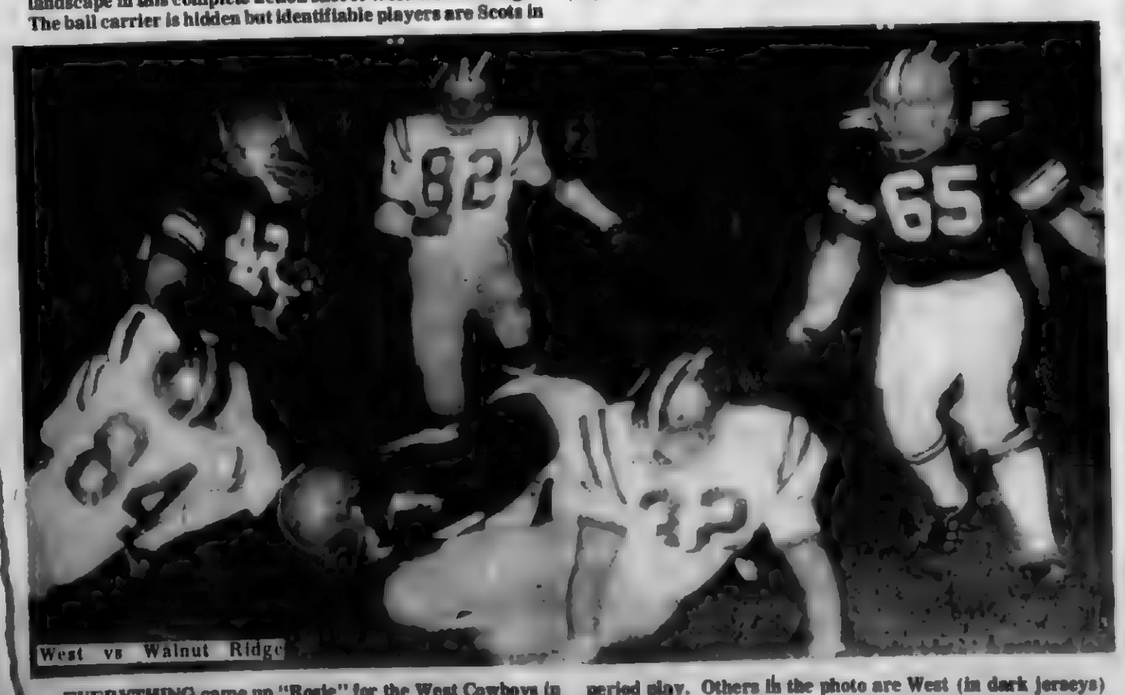
West vs Walnut Ridge

FOOTBALL PLAYERS are scattered over the gridiron landscape in this complete action shot of West-Walnut Ridge. The ball carrier is hidden but identifiable players are Scots in white, Mike Woodburn (46), Steve Winslow (32) Mark Glenn (25) and Zack Bingmer (21).



West vs Walnut Ridge

EVERYTHING came up "Rosie" for the West Cowboys in their 10-0 win over Walnut Ridge last Friday and here is Rosie Williams (42) picking up a few extra yards in a first period play. Others in the photo are West (in dark jerseys) Ron Copley (65) and Tim Brink (41) on ground and Scots Marty Reida (84), Carl Turner (82) and Steve Winslow (32).

Crusader Gridders Hail From Surrounding Areas

Of the 19 Columbus and area products who are continuing their football careers at Capital University this fall, seven were in the starting lineup when the Crusaders opened their season with a 13-7 triumph over Marietta College in September.

Senior defenders John Ebron (Mohawk) and Bob Suber (Linden-McKinley) are the greybeards of the group as they enter their third season as regular defensive performers. The 190 pound Ebron is the right end with the defensive unit and the slender Suber handles the right cornerback spot.

Juniors Dave Toopes (Ready) and Tom Hilt (Northland) are also defensive starters, Toopes at an inside linebacker position and Hilt at left cornerback. Hilt also returns punts for the Purple-clad.

A fifth defender, Denny Bernhard (Hartley), would be a regular linebacker but a severe ankle sprain has kept him on the sidelines in the early going.

Offensively, senior Joe Duffy (Watterson) is back for his third regular season at tight end. The 6-1, 190 pounder, according to Coach Gene Slaughter, "is one of our top all-around athletes." Duffy also serves the Capital University Varsity "C" Club as president for 1973-74.

Moore gained 64 yards rushing in his varsity debut and Schleppi also doubled as the punter in addition to his interior line duties.

Two service veterans are also among the Columbus contingent. Backup defensive end John Baylin (Reynoldsburg) has continued his grid career following a successful military football stint, as has converted tight end Larry West (East). A 6-2, 215 pound 27-year old, West was a tackle until this fall. Both Baylin and West are juniors.

The remainder of the local corps includes linebacker Dave Mangan (Bexley), guard Bob Hamilton (Northland), halfback Don Althoff (Gahanna Lincoln), halfback Bill Tinskey (Northland), and freshmen Steve Nole (Reynoldsburg), Jim Pabst (Ashville Teays Valley), Jim Pritchard (Ashville Teays Valley), Chuck Izzo (South) and Chuck Betts (Grandview).

Nole and Betts are linebackers, Pritchard and Izzo are centers, and Pabst is a tackle.

Coho And Chinook Salmon Migration

Prized coho and chinook salmon, first stocked in Ohio in 1968, will soon begin their annual migration from Lake Erie to streams where they were stocked, says Dan C. Armbruster, chief of the Department of Natural Resources Division of Wildlife.

Ohio's version of the Pacific salmon run should last from late September through December. Armbruster said the salmon return this year will be comprized of coho stocked in 1972 and chinook stocked in 1970 and 1971.

THE BEST coho run should be on the Huron River where more than 37,500 smolt (young salmon) were released. The Huron river is in Erie County. Smaller coho runs should occur on the Chagrin River in Lake County and Conneaut Creek in Ashtabula County.

October should be the peak fishing month for salmon and the best catches should be in the Chagrin and Huron rivers where more than 300,000 chinook were stocked in those three waterways in 1970 and 1971.

Coho should weigh an average of four to five pounds and chinook from eight to twelve pounds. There is no limit on the number of salmon that can be taken on Lake Erie, but there is a limit of three salmon a day on Ohio's inland waters.

Armbruster said that allowing salmon to be caught during their spawing run has no effect on the future population since salmon can't reproduce in Ohio due to the state's warm water temperatures.

Nearly a million salmon have been stocked in Ohio since 1968 and coho and chinook are stocked periodically to maintain population in the state.

Rods And Reels For Salmon

Salmon can be caught with fly rods or ultra-light spinning rods and reels. These are big, fighting fish, however, and the average angler is well advised to use heavier equipment. A fairly stiff trolling or spinning rod is recommended, with light salt water size a good indicator of proper length and action. Level wind reels should have

Clothing Drive Was Successful

To the Editor:

We at the Volunteer Service Unit of the Franklin County Welfare Department would like to thank you for your generous donation of time and effort toward our "Back to School Clothing Drive."

The need for clothing for those not readily able to purchase it is always with us and the more fortunate in the community are always eager to help if only a way of sharing is made clear to them.

Your concern and kindness are greatly appreciated.

Again, thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Julia Stewart

No Smoking Lamp Sign At Riverside

In an effort to respect the rights of both smokers and non-smokers, Riverside Methodist Hospital has put into effect a new smoking policy for patients.

The Hospital's approach is similar to that used by the airlines.

When a patient is called to be notified of admission time, he will be asked to state his preference for either a smoking or a non-smoking room.

Every effort will be made to accommodate the patient's request. In some cases, the availability of beds or medical necessity will take precedence. However, the patient may request a transfer at the earliest opportunity.

The new policy is in response to numerous complaints of present and former patient s who feel the Hospital's present room assignment method places them in a position of having to "negotiate for clean air" in their room.

This system is an attempt to prevent the non-smoking patient from having to offer objections to smoking in his room, while still respecting the rights of those who wish to smoke while hospitalized.

The Hospital will continue its visitor smoking restrictions. Visitors are required to confine their smoking to lounges, dining areas and restrooms. Visitor lounges are located on every floor of the Hospital.

Westland Band Was Guest

The Westland High School Marching Band was an invited guest to the 1973 Otterbein College Homecoming Parade and Football Game this Saturday, Oct. 13.

The band, directed by Otterbein graduate Dennis Wollam, marched in the Homecoming Parade and presented a post game show for the Homecoming game against Marietta.

This year has been a rewarding year for the bank.

They finished amoung the top six bands at the Ohio State Fair and received an excellant rating. At the Lexington Marching Band contest. the band traveled to the West Jefferson marching band festival and received a superior rating, finished second in their class adn were the second runner-up in the entire competition.

After completing a busy year soon the band and the Westland High School music patrons would like to thank the community for all their support and for their help in making this a very exciting year.

Crime Lab To Participate In Study

Columbus –The Columbus Division of Police Crime Laboratory has been selected to participate in a Forensic Laboratories Analysis Program being sponsored by the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, a research arm of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Representatives of the MITRE Corporation of McLean and two subcontractors will spend several months in Columbus gathering data on crime laboratory operation and analyzing the utilization of scientific evidence in the criminal justice system.

This field study is scheduled to begin in November, 1973. Coordinated analyses will be conducted at East and West Coast sites.

Seventy crime laboratories throughout the nation were screened for this study and three were chosen. Basis for selection was that the labs be full-service laboratories performing high volume, high quality Part I Crimes work.

The Forensic Laboratories Analysis Program is designed to define the contributions of the scientific laboratories to the law enforcement and criminal justice system and determine how that service may be measured and delivered in an effective manner.

Upon completion of this two-year effort, comprehensive guidelines will be available to law enforcement administrators charged with the establishment and improvement of crime laboratories.

City, County Libraries Appeal 1974 Budget

Columbus--The Franklin County Budget Commission, consisting of Arch Warren, Auditor, George Smith, Prosecutor, and Philip Goldsiager, past Treasurer, determined the needs of the county libraries for 1974 as follows:

Columbus	$2,922,577.40;
Bexley	343,092.17;
Grove City	295,233;
Worthington	287,108.03;
TOTAL	$4,885.151.08

The Grandview Heights Public Library's rrequest for 1974 totaled $599,885.16. The Grandview Heights Board of Trustees passed a resolution stating that they were dissatisfied with the action of the Budget Commission of Franklin County and that library filed an appeal with the Ohio Board of Tax Appeals to contest the allocation of the funds.

One day after the Grandview Heights Public Library Board filed their appeal, an appeal was filed by the Grove City Public Library Board.

With-in two hours after the filing by the local library, a third appeal was filed by the Columbus Public Library. Library had only received 2 per cent or 3 per cent for a seven year period.

The 1970 appeal resulted in the Grove City Library receiving 9 per cent of the county total or $371,138.56 for 1970, according to Donald V. Schuler, director of libraries.

The Columbus Public Library appealed in 1971 but the result for the Grove City Public Library was that it still received 9 per cent of the total 1971 distribution or $390,915.08.

Grove City is receiving $434,165 in 1973.

Grove City had requested $589,530.15 and received $296,233. The Columbus Public Library requested $3,361,635.92 and received $2,922,577.40.

This appeal is the third appeal that has taken place in Franklin County in the last five years.

In 1969 the Grove City Library received 5 per cent of the total amount distributed to the county of $197,000. That 5 per cent of the total was the same approximate percentage that the Grove City Library had received for eight straight years.

Easthaven Breaks Ground For Addition

Eat And Meet In Commons

New Jr.-Sr. High To Meet Special Goals

BY SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

East Columbus - Preliminary drawings for a junior-senior high school near Refugee and Noe-Bixby Roads were approved by the Columbus School Board at its October 16 regular meeting. This school is a part of the $89.5 million Columbus school construction program.

The school, which is to provide relief for Walnut Ridge which is currently on double sessions because of overcrowding, is to accomodate 1,300 pupils and would have 110,000 square feet of floor space.

The school will be located on a 30-acre tract of land south of Refugee Rd. and about 150 feet east of Fleet Rd. The site is already owned by the school system.

Estimated cost of the project is $3.93 million.

Before approval of the drawings was granted by the inquisitive School Board Members, assurance was given that the school would include ample classroom and parking space and convertible heating elements which would meet the energy crisis.

Five goals which the Advisory Committee on Educational Program and Facilities tried to meet while creating plans for the school were:

—it must be pleasing and cheerful
—maximum community use must be achieved
—a creative atmosphere must be achieved
—facilities for individual construction must be achieved.

This approval, gives Brubaker Brandt, Inc., authorization to proceed with the preparation of design development drawings and construction documents.

The Board also heard a report from Curriculum Committee Chairman Mrs. Marie Castleman on the book "The Learning Tree". The book was brought to the board's attention at a recent meeting by a mother of an Eastmoor High School student, objecting to its use in the Public Schools on grounds that it was "filthy".

Mrs. Castleman termed the book "as realistic portrayal of the life of a black youth in the south during the 1920's."

In other actions taken by the board professional and Civil Service actions were approved along with purchase investments.

CLASSROOMS of the new junior - senior high school to be built on Refugee Rd. will surround a 9500 square foot library - learning center. A carpeted student commons area will serve as lobby and dining area. Three thousand square feet of the commons will be used for lunchroom activitees. The plans also call for a 500 - seat auditorium and a gymnasium. The exterior will be of poured concrete and "some type of panelling above" according to present plans, which are subject to revision before they become the final approved plans.

Families Are Needed To Befriend OSU Foreign Students

East Columbus-Late October finds Ohio State University midway in the Fall Quarter and the University Directory lists the names of many students who hail from all over the world.

Feeling that these students are anxious to meet Americans who are not students and on campus and learn about American customs and family life, women of the Welcome Committee of the International Students Association plan ways to introduce the students to American families. The students do not live in homes of "host families."

One of the Welcome Committee members, Mrs. David Tomlinson, 889 S. Chesterfield Rd., held a picnic recently at Blendon Woods. There were families from all over Columbus, Whitehall, Worthington and Arlington. There were students from Ireland, India, China, Japan, Jordan, Australia and many other countries, all enjoying, Mrs. Tomlinson says, that all-American pastime, a "picnic". "Many students met families that will become their life-long friends," she asserts, "just from that one outing."

The Roesch family, 870 S. Chesterfield, became interested in knowing more about the foreign students while visiting the Tomlinson family and their student guests from abroad. Now they are enjoying their new friends from India.

Another family, the Crabtrees, 1716 Sandhurst, have hosted Krishna Shrivastave and in turn have interested their friends in meeting other student friends of his.

Mrs. Tomlinson expressed the need for more host families to reach out with a hospitable smile and extend the hand of friendship to other foreign students. She claims, "The rewards are inestimable. You must experience the friendships to appreciate them."

Anyone wishing further information may contact Mrs. Tomlinson at 231-2061.

Mrs. Tomlinson calls the public's attention to International Show, "Let Peace Begin With Me," sponsored by the International Students' Association at Mershon Auditorium, Oct. 28 at 8 p.m., as their observance of United Nations Week. Tickets are $1 at the door or 75 cents for adults, and 50 cents for children from association members.

'Super Punkin' Has A Super Toothache

WHITEHALL- When Mrs. Larry Cline, Whitehall, planted some Big Max pumpkin seeds in the Cline's side-yard garden this June, she didn't think the pumpkin vines would take over the garden, grow up cornstalks, develop 19-inch pumpkins five feet above the ground, produce several fruit fifteen inches in diameter, and she never could have imagined that one would get to be as big as the one shown in the picture and weigh 63 pounds. Mrs. Cline said her dentist husband carved the face on it and, because one cheek looked swollen, tied a white bandage around it. (Mrs. Cline laughingly explained that dentists only do that in cartoons.) The four Cline youngsters got to help scoop out the pumpkin pulp but finally they had to enlist the aid of some of the neighbors to finish the job. The neighbors will share in the fruit for pies. Even the seeds were used; they were fried in butter salted and eaten by the Clines and neighbors. Shown in their Halloween costumes with the pumpkin displayed on their porch are the Cline kids, left to right: Darcy, 6; Lance, 3; Todd, 7, and Brian, 9. (Photo by Elsie V. Weaver).

Balloon Day Is Saturday

Cheri Henry, Miss Wheelchair Ohio, has been named as the chairlady of the 1973 Halloween Balloon Day, planned for Saturday, October 27, by the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children.

Miss Henry, paralyzed from a sledding accident several years ago and now a resident of McCampbell Hall, Ohio State University, will direct the efforts of hundreds of local young people during this "action" day.

The teenagers, representing school and church youth groups, will distribute brightly colored balloons in business and shopping areas throughout the city and county and accept contirbutions for crippled children.

They will be identified by "Teen Volunteer" tags and dressed in Halloween garb.

The theme for the event is "Together We Can Make It Happen." The specific goal for the 1973 Balloon Day will be to furnish a new classroom at the Society's treatment center, 565 Children's Drive where over 120 orthopedically handicapped children, ages 1 through 7, are now enrolled.

Headquarters for Balloon Day will be at the Society's center. Charles Hoffhine of the Society's staff will serve as Balloon Day coordinator.

Young people interested in helping during Balloon Day may call 253-5523.

Halloween Trick And Treater Should Have Evening Of Fun

APPLES, cookies, candy, cider, and donuts seem to go right along with the witches, ghosts, ghouls, and goblins of Halloween. The goodies are treats - payments in lieu of tricks. Or are they?

Next week the annual pilgrimage begins for the long anticipated treasures. Will it be "trick or treat?" or, trick or treatment? For many children it is an evening of great fun and adventure, but for some it can turn into a night of tragedy and sorrow.

EACH YEAR, far too many children are injured and killed Halloween Eve by motorists unable to see them darting unexpectedly into the street. Others are badly burned as their costumes are ignited by flames from lighted candles and lanterns. These tragic situations could be avoided if parents would observe rules of good sense and safety, such as the following suggested by Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies.

Use only bright costumes. A white-sheeted ghost is more easily seen by a passing motorist than a black-clad witch. But even brightly clothed children may be hard to distinguish as the evening darkens so florescent strips which would make them even more visible, is suggested.

Do not allow children to carry lighted candles, or lanterns, or any type of open flame. Many children have been burned in past years when their cos tumes, often made of extremely flammable material, caught fire. A flash-light would be easier to carry, and would also make crossing the street safer.

BE SURE to chaperone all children who would not normally be allowed outside alone at night. Younger children should be out only in the early evenings. The discreet presence of an adult can stop a problem situation from developing.

Keep a light on in front of your house so that there is no danger of children being injured by walking into objects or holes they cannot see in the dark. If there is a pet in the household, keep it away from the door.

CHILDREN enjoy putting on make-up as part of their costume but be careful of what they use. Cheap make-up can in many instances cause complexion problems for youngsters - or hurt their eyes.

Finally, when your child goes out for the evening, make sure you know where he or she is going and what time he or she should return.

Halloween can be a real treat for everyone. One way to ensure it is to follow these simple rules of safety.

Halloween Movies On Tap

Free movies marking Halloween will be shown at 2 p.m. Oct. 27 as part of Columbus Public Library's weekly "Saturday at the Movies" program in the library's auditorium, 96 S. Grant Ave.

The following films will be shown Oct. 27: "Laurel and Hardy Murder Case," where Stan and Ollie find themselves in a haunted house; "Tell Tale Heart," Edgar Allen Poe's chilling classic and "Live Ghost." where Stan and Ollie (Laurel and Hardy) help a sea captain in shanghaiing a crew for a ghost ship.

You're Telling Us

The Spectator Newspapers welcome letters from readers, expressing their views on subjects of interest to them -- whether initiated by news stories or editorial expression in this newspaper or not. Because of space limitations, we prefer letters which do not exceed 300 words. All letters submitted for publication must be signed with the writer's name and address, although -- upon request -- the name of the writer can be withheld. B'nai B'rith Women Appreciate Support

To the Editor:

Our clothing drive for Operation Stork has just drawn to a close. The results of both the drive and our B'nai B'rith Women's Operation Stork Shower have been most gratifying.

It is through people like yourself, Mrs. Elsie Weaver, Eastern Editor, that we are able to attain such success.

Many thanks to you and The Spectator for the lovely picture and article you carried on Mayor Moody's signing of the proclamation declaring B'nai B'rith Women's Operation Stork Day.

May I also take this opportunity to thank you for your coverage on the puppet show teach-a-tot project at Blackburn Day Care Center of Central Community House.

We appreciate your continued support and coverage of the projects of B'Nai B'rith Women in Columbus.

On behalf of our many members, I thank you.

Sincerely,
Carole Schwartz

Superintendent Speaks About Current Rumors

To The Editor:

Inaccurate rumors regarding salary increases for central office personnel in the Worthington School System continue to be mentioned in our community.

I would like to react to these rumors. Specifically, I hear that an increaseof $8,000 has been approved for the superintendent, effective 1974.

Also, we hear that increases from 20-30 percent will be granted central office personnel with the passage of the operating levy.

None of this is ture. I cannot imagine an annual increase as large as that mentioned in this letter.

The Board of Education determines salaries, but I am sure I would recommend increases for all central office personnel except for the superintendent.

I will not recommend an annual increase as high as 20 percent for anyone in the central office nor would I expect a salary increase that approaches either 10 percent or $6,000.

This letter has been written in an attempt to correct erroneous and very misleading rumors.

Sincerely yours
Dana F. Swick
Superintendent

A Plane? Bird? UFO? No-The Good Ship Marriott!

NOTWITHSTANDING the fact that to send any strange object airborne these days is tantamount to getting it pitchforked by stout natives upon landing - a few daredevils managed to pull off an unparallelled stunt last Sunday morning before the wondering (most of them squinted) eyes of a host of newsmen looking skyward from the parking lot of the Marriott Inn on South Hamilton Road. The occasion was the grand opening celebration of the Marriott's 51 room addition and the hosts red-carpeted as many newsmen and their spouses as cared to attend the weekend that started at 6:30 p.m. Friday and ended about noon Sunday. The climax of the weekend that had many activities building up to it was the launching of a balloon piloted by noted Aeronaut Capt. Dan Stone, a Columbus balloonist who is the first of a new breed in this area who have taken to the up-up-and-away bit with serious thought that culminates in ecstatic pleasure. Stone went aloft with the gold shovel that will be used to break ground for the new addition to the Cleveland Marriott Inn in a month or sooner. Although the original intent was to go to Cleveland the winds kept his course away from that northern mecca and the shovel will go by another means later this week. In these exclusive newsphotos of the launching (seems as though ALL the other media were cameraless) we'll go from left to right then up. (1) Spectator Entertainment Editor Roland Sunker, right, gives some last minute advice to Dan Stone based on his years of flying high in the entertainment world. It was later reported that this was Sunker's (and other medias') first view of a Sunday morning in years since he, like most of the entertainment editors around town, seldom see the crack of dawn or any portion of Sunday morning. (2) A host of media watch hot air (and add their own) being forced into the balloon by Stone, at right. (3) The balloon starts its inflation process as shown in this photo from a three story fire-escape. (4) That's part of the Marriott addition in the background as the balloon gets ready to go aloft. (5) It's up and soaring as Dan Stone looks down at the crowd. (6) The good ship Marriott soars away from the Inn and the three-day extravaganza comes to a close after the lavish breakfast-brunch.

A Doff To Hats

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

ADOLFO REALITIES makes the most of the spotted trend with cavalier hat and shoulder bag of simulated jaguar calf.

MR. JOHN suggests the drama of a striking reverse brim southwester of chocolate flannel. The back of the brim is divided and brought forward to clasp under the chin.

TOM HANN for Kurt Jr. shows the richness of jet velour contrasted with white satin and a splash of jewels to add excitement to this "flirtation" brim hat.

FRANK OLIVE likes the mood of intrigue and adventure in this dashing, large brim safari hat of canary felt with band of brilliant feathers.

SYLVIA shows a glamorous, satin tier-draped turban with striking flair of gathered bow treatment at the back.

THERE HAVE BEEN SO MANY false alarms about the comeback of hats, that it's better to comment almost in a whisper...that it's happening.

Hats, as a generic item that every woman has to wear, aren't back...but one hat certainly is. It's the Gatsby hat. The influence of the new movie, "The Great Gatsby" has had a far-reaching effect on all of fashion, and hats are among the first to follow the trend.

THE GATSBY hats for both men and women are sportive, dashing, fun to wear and conversation-making. There are Gatsby caps, wide-brimmed gangster hats, snap-brim fedoras, Zelda cloches in a variety of fabrics and colors...essentially the same hat with lots of variations.

HAT-PLUS COMBINATIONS, sold separately or as a unit, give excitement and costume building character to hat departments this season...the hat-plus scarf, the hat-plus gloves, the hat-plus jacket, the hat-plus handbag...are all part of the new togetherness in everything from fur to leather, from knits to fabrics.

KNITTED HATS are running neck to neck with the Gatsby hats...hat designers are as needle-happy as an acupuncture specialist. New knit hats range all the way from oversized tams to hair-covering caps to the ubiquitous sailor-on-watch cap. Wrapped looks appear in all types of ready-to-wear, and this gives importance to turbans...in every fabric and color...luxurious angora, soft felt, jersey, and for late day, in furs, satins, velvets and lames.

DRESS-UP HATS are back in fashion because of the new short cocktail and dinner clothes. Rich fabrics, shimmering jeweled ornaments, flirtatious feathers, trailing veils, have all become the stars of the late, late show.

YES, THIS is the Fall when it really happens...hats will be worn with everything from the most casual sports clothes to the most elegant dinner clothes. The bare-head look is OUT...the hatted look is IN.

BOB GREENE of Irene of New York, lets fashion go to your head with this crown toque of Labrador fox with matching boa.

Warrior Wrap-up

By Mike Brennan

(Editor's note: Michael Brennan's first column is being published this week. Michael is the editor of "The Chariot," Eastmoor's newspaper. His column will alternate with that of Chosan Howard, whose first column was printed last week. Both will be entitled "Warrior Wrap-ip.")

THE EASTMOOR Homecoming dinner and dance was held last Saturday night at the Pick Fort Hayes Hotel. Students danced to the sounds of the Blind Justice band. The dance was presided over by the Homecoming Queen Karen Wright, and her court: Patty Carter, Becky Reed, Kathy Wylie and Jackie Green.

These five girls were selected from a list of twenty by seniors. Then the entire student body chose a queen. Karen was installed during the halftime festivities of the Eastmoor-West game Friday night.

ON THURSDAY, Oct. 17, Eastmoor seniors donned saddle shoes, DA's and displayed some outstanding hand jive in celebration of the school's first Greaser Day. Students expended unbelievable amounts of Vitalis, Vaseline, and axle grease to get that authentic "fifties look". Activities included a noon sock hop and some vintage rock and roll. It is hoped that Greaser Day will become an annual event at Eastmoor.

"Shield" sales began last week and will continue through November. This yearbook will cost $6.50.

LAST WEEK at Hartley, the officers of Medco were elected. Medco is the school organization for all students interested in persuing some sort of medical career. The officers are Kathy Beckner, president; Amy Haban, vice-president; Claudia Santos, secretary; and Mary Jo Ryan, treasurer. The advisors are Mrs. Ucker and Miss Rees. The group has tentative plans to tour hospitals, nursing schools, and laboratories.

THE SPANISH CLUB is already swinging into action. It is planning a party on November 4 at the Nomis Golf Course in Johnstown, Ohio. The group is also planning to visit Capital University before Christmas to view films on Mexico. The club, along with the third and fourth level Spanish classes receive cultural influence through the regular conversations they have with the two Venezuelan exchange students. It is extremely profitable for both the hosts and the guests.

THE FRENCH CLUB has also made plans. They hope to have a picnic and hayride before the end of October. Also, on October 27, Ashland College's Foreign Languages Department is sponsoring a program during which the third and fourth level French students will tour the campus, be present for a very informative speech, and will be the guests at the musical "1776" on the afternoon of October 27.

DURING THE WEEKEND of October 13-15, two students from Hartley participated in the Teens Encounter Christ diocesan monthly program. Those two are Connie Claprood and Debbie Jaketic. The purpose of T.E.C. is to open the minds and souls of the participants to Christ, and to look at themselves and others through completely different eyes.

One participant, Connie, said that it was very hard to explain T.E.C. to anyone who had not yet experienced it, for it is exactly that: an experience. Both she and Debbie thoroughly enjoyed the weekend and encourage every one to attend, no matter what their beliefs and emotions may be, or may not be, at the present time. They guarantee that one will come away with a completely different attitude toward life.

THE BEXLEY study hall system is in the process of being replaced with a more flexible program.

A committee composed of teachers Mr. William Jarrell, Mr. Michael Logsdon, Mr. Perry Smith, Mrs. Trudy Krisher, Mrs. Marilyn Pritchett and students Susan Harris, Parker Potter and Rick Levine investigated the situation late in September. After discussion, which included suggestions from students, the committee formulated a plan and presented it to the faculty, which approved it.

The proposal stated that three study areas would be available to students. These areas would include a study area, the library, and a conversational study hall where two students could study together. The plan was instituted during the third period on a trial basis.

ON OCTOBER 17, under the direction of gym teachers Mrs. Diana Ford and Miss Charlotte Basnett, Bexley's cycling classes made a trip to Hoover Dam.

The juniors and seniors who participated in the 30-mile round trip ride also enjoyed a picnic lunch and recreation at Hoover Dam.

In preparation for the trip the cyclers took short trips during their gym classes, and learned about ankling, bicycle care, correct riding posture and safety rules.

Get something good out of your old battery.

If your car's battery has been in service three years or more, it's time to see one of the Delco dealers listed on this page. First, he'll check your old battery for signs of age like leaks and loose terminal posts.

Then, if it cannot be serviced and it needs replacement, he'll make you an offer — and let you trade in your old battery on a new Delco Energizer. Select either a conventional top post model or our sealed terminal design with connections on the side.

Both are vacuum sealed for freshness. And all Delco batteries are built to give that big burst of starting power. Even in extremes of heat or cold.

Get your battery checked today. And trade it in before it lets you down.

Chasers Fore Are For Real

With some of the best arrangements I've heard a group cut, charts that almost blow your mind, The Chasers Fore are knocking them dead at the Ramada Inn-North. It's not just charts alone that makes them so darn good. There are other elements, such as very funny comedy, plus five extremely talented talented performers. And that's just what they are, performers, not just plain top notch musicians, but showman, all the way.

Rich Lauenstein is the leader. He is also the comedian. Using strong, original gags, jokes, snappy one liners and hilarious characters, Rich has them rolling in the aisles. His comedy is created to perfection. Wait until you hear his routine of a medical doctor. It's wild. To finish off the routine, Rich plays the corovox underneath the doctor's gown. Pure talent, that's for sure.

Turning about face, Rich picks up the banjo, and he and the group tear up the place with some rip-rorin' tunes. Rich is equally as talented on the vibes, flute, organ, piano, trumpet and bass. Not like many performers, Rich plays all of these instruments several times a set. Rich is as much a musical technician as he is a comic.

Winston Highham comes across with some fine funny work also. He turns in an excellent performance as straight man for Rich. Also, Winston shows sensational abilities as a bass man, guitarist as well as being the main male vocalist. What a voice. Winston sings with a big, full voice that has exceptional tonal qualities.

Another fellow who is a triple treat man is Steve Barryman. While his main job is drummer, he also handles most of the trombone work, frequently while playing the drums. Without any question in my mind, Steve is one of the finest tub thumpers in the business. He handles the sticks and brushes smoothly with lightning speed. His patterns and riffs are beyond reproach. When Steve does his drum solo under black lights with color sticks, you witness something truely amazing. It's a sight to see and hear.

The man on organ, piano and guitar is Howard Gold. This man is strong, providing plenty of solid back up work for the rest of the outfit.

The next member of The Chasers Fore is a petite thing, who by looking at her would never believe the talent this gal possesses. Her name is Kathy Russo. Her game is singing and doing a host of exciting things on stage. Owning a crystal clear voice, Kathy wails the devil out of a song, be it ballad or jump.

Her amazing feats transpire at the drums. This girl can and does play better than most men.

The Chasers Fore are a hard working show group. They are definitely a fun group, loaded with showmanship providing an exciting, tight, fast moving show. With all of this going for them, it is no wonder the audience stays for hours listening and laughing. After all. that's show biz, and that's The Chasers Fore.

It Happened At The Marriott Inn

A UNIQUE climax to the grand opening last weekend of the 51-room addition to the Marriott Inn, South Hamilton Road, Columbus, was the ascent of a balloon piloted by Aeronaut Capt. Dan Stone from the parking lot of the new addition. On board was the gold shovel used in the ground breaking of the new addition last spring. The shovel will travel to the Cleveland Marriott Inn for the groundbreaking there in about a month. Officials in the shovel transfer with Capt. Stone are from left, William J. Boykin, president of Boykin Enterprises, Inc., Cleveland, developers and operators of the property; Capt. Stone; Columbus Marriott Inn Gneral Manager H. Theo Wright and Marriott Inn Director of Marketing Jon Watkins. More photos of the balloon event are on this week's Page 4. (Photo by Ray Adams.)

Marriott Open With Bang

This past weekend the Marriott Inn Motel celebrated the opening of the marvelous new addition, which includes 51 new guest rooms, a large ballroom and many other facilities to make your stay at the Marriott seem like fantasy weekend.

That's exactly what my past weekend seemed to yours truely. The Marriott invited the press for an entire weekend as part of their celebration and to let the press understand precisely what they have to offer.

Many times in the past, I have told you about the great food at the Marriott Inn. But, never having spent the night there, I never realized what a grandiose experience lie in wait for me, or any of their guests for that matter.

The rooms are luxurious. The service besides being efficient, is the friendliest and the Marriott Inn offers more and better lodging than most of the so-called resort motels.

And I can think of no better way to spend a weekend, than to spend it at the Marriott Inn. Why drive some place a hundred miles or so?

While the staff and management work hard to make sure the important parts of their operation are top drawer, they also concentrate on all of the little things.

It would take several columns to tell you about all the food served to the press this past weekend. We dined on everything from shrimp cocktail to scrambled eggs in the coffee shop. No matter what was served, or where, in the dining room, the coffee shop, or one of the beautiful new banquet rooms, you could not ask for any better. Everything was simply delicious.

Besides making it a gourmet weekend, without gourmet prices, there is plenty for you to do. You can spend time in their marvelous indoor swimming pool, relax in their whirlpool or take a nice sauna. There is also a game room at your disposal, plus a staff of people to wait on you hand and foot. treating you as royalty.

Now, don't get me wrong, I am not trying to promote business for the Marriott Inn. But, I know from talking with many of you readers who I meet Around Town, that many of you ask me where to spend a relaxing, funfilled weekend. Believe me, you won't go wrong here. If you are like me, I dig spending some of the winter weekends in plush surroundings, where I can swim, eat and drink, as well as listening to a group called the Duke Jenkins Trio, without ever having to step outside from Friday night to Sunday afternoon.

It's all there at the Marriott Inn Motel,.

Paul Lipson To Appear

Here is something I'm sure you won't want to miss. This is true, if you like me, consider "Fiddler On The Roof," your favorite show.

October 28, the Ohio State Hillel Foundation will welcome its most illustrous alumnus, Broadway star Paul Lipson. "An Evening with Paul Lipson" will be presented as part of the year-long 50th anniversary celebration of the national B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations, the campus Jewish community organization.

Lipson played the lead role of Tevye in the musical "Fiddler on the Roof" longer than any other actor. He was associated with "Fiddler's" eight year run both as a member of the national touring company and on Broadway. Television viewers will also remember him as Patsy, the bookmaker, in the old "Sgt. Bilko" show.

Lipson will appear on Sunday, October 28 at the OSU Hillel Foundation, 46 E. 16th Avenue at 7:30 p.m. There will be a general admission charge of $2. For further information call 294-4797; 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. weekdays. Lipson's appearance is open to everyone.

The Gazebo At Theatre

The Worthington Community Theatre is presenting, "The Gazebo," by Alec Coppel, the next two weekends, beginning this Friday night.

It is under the direction of Curt Meeks, who has an extensive experience in the United States, both as an actor and a director.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. all four nights. The play will be held at the Josephinum Auditorium, 7625 N. High St., Worthington.

I feel this is one play you won't want to miss. You lovers of good theatre will rertainly enjoy this one. Worthington Community Theatre always has outstanding productions, and Curt Meeks is one of the best in the business. Call Joyce Evans, ticket chairwoman, 888-3650, and make your reserpati ns now.

Skipping Around Town

With the weather the way it has been, drive in movie theatres are going great guns. I thought you would like to know some of the shows that are playing Around Town at the outdoor theatres. The comedy show of the year, "The Cheerleaders," along with, "Fritz the Cat," are currently at the Holiday Drive In on West Broad St., and the North High Theatre. The East Main Drive In Theatre is offering three big hits, "The Godfather," with Marlon Brando, "Play It Again Sam," and "Al Capone." If you are as busy as me, then you have not seen any of these pixs. I plan on catching a couple of them this week. Why don't you do the same?...The well known, and well liked Autumn, Sun & Love are tearing them up at Marco Polo's Lounge. Autumn, Sun & Love have played Around Town before, but not for a year or so. I know their fans will welcome the opportunity to hear them again. If you never have been to Marco Polo's, here is your chance. I promise you that is is a fun place, and you will be well entertained with music and songs of Autumn, Sun & Love...Jim Lohse, of WTVN Radio, set in a couple of times with the Duke Jenkins Trio at the Marriott Inn. Jim is an excellent pianist. I could write a complete story on Lohse and his piano stylings. In fact, after one bit, he received a standing ovation...While on the Marriott, my personal congratulations to Rick Murray, the new Dining Room Manager. Rick has worked his way up and is doing a tremendous job. One of my favorite waitresses at the Marriott Inn is Shirley Reams. Besides being like all the waitresses efficient, curteous and personable, she is also a sight for sore eyes...For a little different type of entertainment, plan on visiting the new London Limited Galleries. Located in the Tom Tarpy Center, part of the proceeds from the sales of sculpture, paintings, prints, wallhangings, photographs, batiks, jewelry, books, and music will go to the Columbus Zoo and The Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts. Works from western United States, Ohio and Africa are included. It sounds interesting. See you Around Town.

Bishop Ready vs Bishop Hartley

..FAST AND FURIOUS was the line play in the CCL game won by Hartley and here's a good example of the sometimes too ferocious play that went on. Hartley's Scott Williams (22) got a stout forearm here from Ready's Steve James (91).

Bishop Ready vs Bishop Hartley

READY'S offense was geared around its running game and in the tilt against Hartley it was Tom Prentice (44) who carried the ball on this play that gained six yards against the Hawks.

Bishop Ready vs Bishop Hartley

HARTLEY'S QB Mark DiSabato (13) gets ready to let a pass fly goalward in the Hawks win over Ready. DiSabato was his usual accurate self in the Hawks CCL win.

Gahanna Still Tops OCC

Eastmoor-Walnut Ridge Clash Seen As City North Titleholder

By Sandy Schwartz
Special Sports Writer

Eastmoor bounced West and Walnut Ridge trounced Mohawk to highlight City League South action last week while Northland belted Linden in the Cl North feature.

Provided Walnut Ridge emerges victorious against South next week, the winner of the Eastmoor-Walnut clash of November 2 will host the City North victor in the coveted 1973 City League Championship game.

IT WAS a supreme effort by Eastmoor's QB Brian Johnson that led the Warriors to a 24-6 decision over West and gave the Bob Stuart coached gang at least a share of the City South crown. But the Warriors will still need a win over Ridge to land a berth in the CL champ of champs match as a league tie would send the winner of head on competition to the "City League Super Bowl".

Johnson passed for two Warrior scores-one to Paul Lias and another to Duncan Griffin and he also ran for another TD. Walnut Ridge used a 66 yard jaunt by George Snyder and a pair of short dashes by Gary Goia in its 46-0 tatoo of punchless Mohawk.

In the Ohio Capital Conference Gahanna kept on with its winning ways by bombing whitehall 40-0. Westerville put the hurting to Reynoldsburg 26-8 to remain one game back of the Lions. Mike Cronin's fifth OCC TD toss, provided the lone Raider [illegible].

Elsewhere in the OCC Worthington displayed a dynastic performance in demolishing Westland 27-0. The Cards looked strong in mounting 378 total yards as Guy Collison raced for a pair of scores and QB Tim Crandall threw one TD pass to Gary Chambers and dashed for another [illegible].

IN PRIME Central Catholic League action Watterson came from behind to clip DeSales 27-12 in a game that could go a long way in deciding a champ in the annual CCL dogfight and Hartley thumped Ready 22-12 in the other league affair.

Blockbusting fullback Him Grimm blasted for two TD's on short bursts for the Eagle victory margin and Ed Golden carried an intercepted pass 43 yards to paydirt for Eagle insurance. Ray Kuss hauled in a short ariel spray by Dean Dixon for Watterson's other score.

In Mid-Eight League action Bexley goes into next week's playoffs having finished one game behind the leaders as it romped to a 28-0 shelling of London. Jeff Edelstein sprinted twice for scores. In Metro-League highlights Franklin Heights punched Olentangy 33-6. Gary Jones ripped his way for three TD's, one on a 66 yard scamper.

In the Mid-Buckeye picture Jim Case came into his own as he ran for a pair of TD's and threw for another in leading Academy to a 22-6 notch over Danville.

Area Non-League action saw St. Charles tap Cincinnati McNicholas 13-6 via two scores by Dave Heilman.

Thursday nights action will find Central at West and Walnut Ridge at South in City Xouth action while East will entertain Linden in the North.

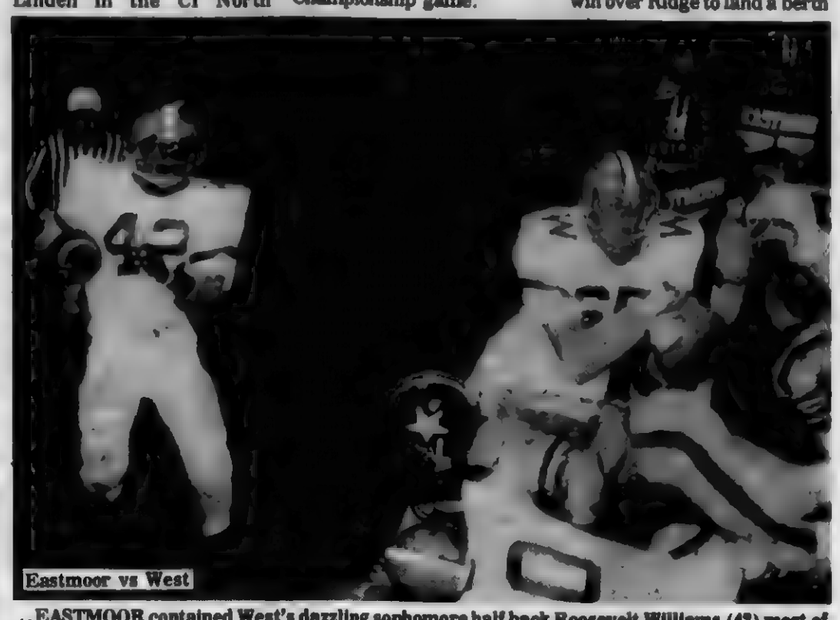
Friday night's slate has Westerville at Delaware, Gahanna at Reynoldsburg and Westland at Mt. Vernon in the Ohio Capital Conference. Worthington at Whitehall is Thursday.

In the Metro League Grandview will visit Franklin Heights and in the Mid-Eight playoffs Bexley's much improved young Lions will play host to Urbana.

Mid-Buckeye playtime sees Academy at Centerburg while St. Charles will be at Mohawk High School Stadium to face East Know in a non-leaguer.

A huge East Side rivalry will be renewed when Eastmoor travels to Hartley to visit the Hawks of Jack Ryan in a Friday night, 8 p.m., non-leaguer.

CCL action performs Saturday night with Watterson and Wehrle squaring off at Hartley and Ready and DeSales dueling at Brookhaven.

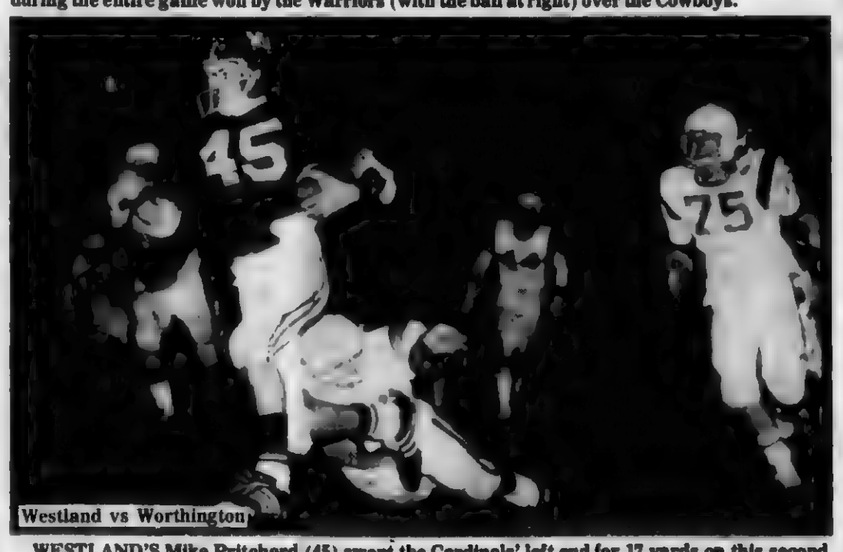


Eastmoor vs West

..EASTMOOR contained West's dazzling sophomore half back Roosevelt Williams (42) most of the game in its league win over the Cowboys and here's an example of the aggressive line play that found the Warriors waiting for Williams (42).

Eastmoor vs West

..THE BALL CARRIER and tackler are unidentified but this bit of action was typical of that during the entire game won by the Warriors (with the ball at right) over the Cowboys.



Westland vs Worthington

WESTLAND'S Mike Pritchard (45) swept the Cardinals' left end for 17 yards on this second period play to give the Cougars a first down and a scoring chance. Worthington's Mike Fallon (88) has a hold on Pritchard but had to have assistance from Terry Jones (75) and Doug Burkhart (74) to bring him down.

Golden Adds To Diamond

Mighty Eastmoor leader of baseball, Ron Golden, is the proud father of a six pound twelve ounce baby boy. It was reported that new arrival Steven Mitchel will be ready for spring training.

High school sophomores; juniors and seniors from public and private schools and their parents are urged to attend the event, where they may study the particulars of the colleges with which they are not familiar.

The ninth annual event is sponsored by the Catholic College Coordinating Council and Ohio Dominican Coloege, a coeducational liberal arts college.

Institutions from the Franklin County area who will send representatives include: Capital University, Columbus Technical Institute, Ohio Dominican, Franklin University, Otterbein College and Ohio State University.

Eleven Ohio Dominican College students from the Franklin county area have been named to the Concert Choir of the liberal arts college. They will appear with the choir during its first Fall concert, 8:15 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 28, in the Little Theatre of Erskine Hall, 1216 Sunbury Rd., Columbus.

They are: Keith Brown, 4854 Calvin Dr.; Lance Clarke, 4447 Hanna Hills, Dublin; Charlbert Dyer, 1317 Hildreth Ave.; Kevin Fullin, 1717 Marshlyn Ct.; Tim Grannan, 4344 Broadhurst; Michael Hull, 4196 Wright Park; Mary Kerins, 338 Binns Blvd; Mary Rose Lieb, 3832 Kirkwood Rd.; Craig Martin, 771 Fairwood; Joyce Mitchell, 355 Binns Blvd.; and Julianne Taaffe, 4314 Olentangy Blvd.

Fly Rod And Stream

When I was a boy and graduated from the old canepole, my father gave me a new fly rod, I used it a lot to catch fish in shallow streams softly tossing crayfish and worms so I wouldn't loose them on my back cast; dad always told me to wade quietly and cast towards the undercut banks and to fish the pools below ripples, he was right.

I caught fish where he told me they would be. You know a fly rod and stream is a hard to beat combination; to catch bass and trout.

It's true there are places and likely looking spots you can't reach, but properly handled a fly rod and small lures will catch fish in streams when larger lures fail.

Darn , there's no greater thrill when you can see a fish rise to the surface and smack your lure, then jump a foot or two in the air trying to shake it.

I've had smallmouth bass come up and out of the water to take a bass bug before it even hit the surface. If you've never used a fly rod and top water lures, you may be missing a special way to enjoy the great sport of angling.

Where To Fish, Up Or Down Stream

One of the most frequent questions I'm asked is, is it better to wade up or down stream.

I've fished both ways, but I like to wade up stream...I've found I have a better chance not to scare any fish by wading up stream...The clowd of mud and sand I stir up wading down stream can scare them off and send them to deep water and out of reach, I've also found if you use your flys, spinners or live bait in a more natural way, as though it wasn't attached to a line, in other words, let your bait float and sink freely.

I'll bet you'll catch more fish.

If it isn't necessary to wade out to reach a likely spot, don't. Remember, every movement you make in the water sends vibrations and sounds to that big one your trying to catch.

Just remember, to use your bait as though it was unattached to a line and don't make a lot of noise when fishing any where.

Here's another tip to remember, never wade in a farm pond, the soft mud and sand bottom is too darn dangerous for any one to wade in especially with boots on.

1973 Ohio Waterfowl Season Opens

The 1973 Ohio waterfowl season opened at sunrise October 19. Ohio duck hunters are reminded that a point system is in effect this year in determining the daily bag limit of ducks. The daily bag limit for ducks is determined by the point value according to species or sex of ducks taken. Each duck has a point value.

The daily bag limit will be reached when the point value of the other birds already taken during that day reaches or exceeds 100 points.

Point values for ducks are as follows: 100 point ducks include redhead and canvasback except in Ottawa County where taking of these species is prohibited; 90 point ducks include hen mallard, woodduck and hooded mergansers; 15 point ducks include blue winged teal, green winged teal, scaup, sea ducks (old squaw, scoters, eiders), widgeon, shoveler, gadwall, merganser other than hood merganser; 25 point ducks would include all other species and sexes of ducks.

The duck possession limit is the maximum number of birds which could have been taken in two days.

The daily bag limit on geese is five which may not include, in the aggregate, more than one Canada goose, or two white-fronted geese, or one of each.

Possession limit after the first day cannot include more than two Canada and two white-fronted geese.

Daily bag limit for coot is 15, and possession limit of 30 after the first day.

Waterfowl hunters are reminded that a hunting license and duck stamp is required in order to hunt waterfowl.

Other regulations which waterfowl hunters should be aware of include: Legal hunting time sunrise to sunset, shotguns capable of holding more than three shells are illegal, recorded or electrically amplified bird calls or sounds are illegal, the use of live birds for decoys are illegal, shooting waterfowl from a moving boat having motor attached or a moving sailboat is illegal, shooting waterfowl over a baited area is also illegal, Sunday hunting is prohibited.

Faulty Equipment Dangerous

Qualified Serviceman Can Make Your Home Safer

..The 90 degree temperatures of last summer may be still fresh in your mind, but cold weather is just around the corner.

..It's time to make sure your home heating equipment will operate safely and trouble - free this winter.

..EVERY winter too many unnecessary deaths can be attributed to faulty appliances and heating equipment.

..Whenever combustion takes place without sufficient oxygen, dangerous, and deadly carbon monoxide gas is produced.

..Carbon monoxide is colorless and odorless and because it gives no warning it's often referred to as 'the silent killer'. Sometimes headaches and dizziness are the only symptoms.

..Making certain that all appliances and heating equipment are in proper working order could save your life.

..THE FEW DOLLARS you spend for a qualified serviceman may not only save you money in lower fuel costs; they'll also help assure your family's safety.

..When inspecting existing heating equipment, here are some "do's and don'ts":

DO:

see that heating equipment is vented to a good chimney.

make sure that the chimney is clean. Blow smoke into the chimney opening to see if it is drawing well.

be sure the vent pipe goes up hill from heating equipment to chimney.

use a safety thimble to keep the vent pipe from going too far into chimney with cement.

be sure the chimney has a cleanout opening under the vent pipe and be sure the opening is covered with a cap.

allow some outside fresh air into the space where the heating equipment is located.

DON'T:

put a damper in the vent pipe.

try to get more heat out of your heating equipment than it is built to produce. If your rooms don't heat properly, you may need a larger heater.

seal furnace room windows and doors with tape and rags. Your heating equipment needs fresh air to burn properly without creating fumes.

waste a second on getting everyone out of the house if you smell fumes or awaken with a headache and suspect your heating equipment.

put off calling a serviceman or other qualified person if your heating equipment is not working properly.

use your cooking range top or oven for heating your home.

If you are buying new heating equipment, suggested the following fourpoints checklist:

1) Be sure it has a place for a vent pipe connection.

2) Arrange installation by a qualified installer.

3) Be sure it is inspected and approved.

4) Get clear and complete instructions for safe operation of the unit.

Computer Science Gets A Boost

DATA PROCESSING got a big boost at Eastland Joint Vocational Center recently when a new IBM System 3 small business type computer was received, according to Business and Office Education Supervisor Walter Sharp. Sharp and instructor Ron Williams said the new computer will give added depth to the Data Processing classes at Eastland as students will be able to learn more types of programming, payrolls and inventory processes. The machine cost is about $100,000. Shown at the computer from left are Melody Fitzsimmons, Whitehall; instructor Ron Williams and seated Karl Beard, Reynoldsburg.

Bexley Schools Seek Okay On 5.5 Mill Levy

Bexley-The Bexley Board of Education is submitting a 5.5 mill operating levy to the community, Tuesday, November 6. The actual increase in millage to Bexley residents will be approximately 4.5 mills, since approximately one mill will be dropped from the tax rolls in January, 1974, as a result of retirement of bonded debt on the Maryland Elementary School.

Of the 5.5 mill request, 3.5 mills are earmarked for rising costs involved in continuation of the current program chiefly staff salaries. One mill is to be used for maintenance and improvement of plant and facilities, and one mill is to be used for curriculum and program improvement.

Dr. John A. Blough, Superintendent of Bexley Schools has emphasized that it is absolutely essential that the levy be passed to continue to provide a superior educational opportunity to each Bexley student.

He says, "Inflation continues to shrink the value of our tax dollars. Financial projections for the next two years reveal that operating costs will exceed estimated income by about $150,000 in 1974 and about $300,000 in 1975. Recognizing its responsibility to maintain a balanced budget, your Board of Education believes that it has no real alternative but to ask the citizens of Bexley to approve additional monies to operate the schools."

How much will the levy cost individual Bexley home owners? Real estate taxes are paid on the assessed valuation, for tax purposes, of homes. On the average, the assessed value of Bexley homes is currently one-fifth to one-fourth of the estimated market value, although there is considerable variation from this. Taxes would thus be increased by the following approximate amounts: On assessed valuation of home for tax purposes, of $6000, with the approximate market value of the home being $24,000 to $30,000, the additional cost of the school levy to the homeowner would be but $27 per year. If valuation for tax purposes is $8000, and the market value of the house, $32,000 to $40,000, the additional cost of the school levy would be $36 per year. For a tax evaluation of $10,000, or $12,000, and a market value of the home, $40,000 to $50,000, or $48,000 to $60,000, the cost of the levy would be $45 and $54, respectively.

The actual assessed valuation of each home is shown on the last real property tax bill.

On the subject of staff salaries, under recently negotiated contracts with the teaching staff, the board states that salary schedule is the third best in Franklin County. They are very close to Upper Arlington, and well behind Columbus. At present, Arlington and Bexley have the same starting salary, but Arlington has slightly higher maximums which may be earned by training and experience. The increase in starting salary negotiated for this September was less than 2 per cent. The negotiated increase for September, 1974 is about 3 per cent. In view of the rapid rise in the cost of living these are moderate and justifiable increases, the board believes.

The mill for non-routine maintenance projects will be used to begin to work on a large number of projects which have been put off for one or more years. The board is presently facing a list of more than forty needed improvements to the physical plant. Should money become available, the board will have to set priorities among these projects because only a few of them will be able to be completed in any one year. Examples of necessary projects include the following:

The slate roof on the Maryland School is severely cracked, is now leaking, and is beyond repair. It is essential to commence this project as soon as possible.

The Montrose library has been operating in make-shift circumstances under very crowded conditions. This library needs basic renovation to provide adequate shelving and student working space so that the library can serve the student body more effectively.

The plumbing and heating system in the old Cassingham building, except for the boiler room, is outmoded and in some places there are patches on top of patches. A systematic long range program whereby portions of this system are replaced each year is vital if a major breakdown is to be avoided.

Cassingham auditorium ceiling must be replastered and folding doors on stage repaired.

Bicycle and automobile parking area on the north side of Cassingham is in very bad condition and must be renovated.

Exterior lighting of the High School and Cassingham building is inadequate and must be improved.

Corridor and classroom lighting in Montrose and Maryland buildings is substandard and must be brought up to standard.

Cassingham locker rooms and changing rooms in the old building are in extremely bad condition. Many of our junior high football players change in an old basement coal cellar with a wet floor.

These and many other projects have already been put off too long, the board feels, and to put them off longer will make them cost more as prices continue to rise and will deny their benefits to students and the community for another year.

Whitehall Residents Vote On First School Levy In Five Years

Whitehall-The Whitehall Schools District, which has a 5 mill operating levy on the Nov. 6 ballot, is asking its voters to approve the first new millage since 1968.

According to Gilbert Johnson, superintendent, the need for the money is "to keep what we have." The chief reason for the need is inflation over the last several years, an overall 25 percent increase in the cost of supplies and services.

He cited as examples of increased costs, many over the last year, telephone bills up 20 percent; educational supplies up 82 percent; gas, due to go in January to 7.2 percent over last year's price; even light bulbs, which they use in huge numbers, nine cents more per dozen than last year. A standard typewriter last year was $188; this year they are paying $207.

Johnson emphasized that the need for more money to operate the system is not due to any increase in salaries, or changes in school programs.

Johnson also said that the district has lost federal and state foundation funds because of decreased enrollment over the past three years.

The decrease of 900 students has made the per-pupil evaluation higher with no increase in wealth in the community.

He explained the decrease in the number of students by pointing out that the long-time residents are older with fewer children in school and also the student population downward trend reflects the mobility of rental residents corresponding with the downward trend in employment figures at the nearby facilities, the Army depot, Western Electric and particularly, Rockwell International where employment has gone from 15,000 to 5,000 in recent years.

What will happen if the levy is not passed? Supt. Johnson says it is difficult to say just exactly will be done. Comparing it to a family's budget plan, he says you must review the whole budget to decide where you must cut down expenses.

"Anything we have in the way of a program in the schools is there because it is good. When you must cut out some thing, you offer a lesser program."

Referring to this year's belt-tightening moves, the district cut back 29 teachers, which raised the teacher pupil ratio to 31 or 32 students to a teacher. The tutoring program was drastically curtailed. The superintendent immediately had many complaints this fall.

Johnson pointed out that no one cut in the schools' program is desirable, "everyone suffers if youhave to cut out any part."

Meet Set On Fire Department, Street Light Problem Worsens

Bexley-The Bexley City Council met in regular session on Tuesday, Oct. 23.

A letter from Governor Gilligan was read, in which he commended the Bexley Recreation Department for being awarded the 1973 National Gold Medal Award for excellence in park and recreation management.

The appointment of John M. Brennan as New Director of Parks and Recreation was unanimously approved. Brennan was introduced to the Council by Council President Mrs. Mann.

Ordance No. 250-25-273, to establish a Building and Maintenance Code was given its second reading.

There being no Engineering and Plats Committee report, Committee Chairman Elsass, suggested that a resolution be drawn up to commend Ted Flickinger for his excellent management of theBexley Parks and Recreation Department during his four years in that office.CouncilmanAddison seconded, and it was referred to the solicitor.

Councilman Madison reported that he had talked with officials in Upper Arlington concerning their animal control ordinance, which has been successful for them. He will have a report on this at the next meeting.

Madison also stated that a meeting was set for Friday, Nov. 2 at 10 a.m. at CityHall with a fire department expert. All council members are invited. He commented that the more study he does on the subject of a Bexley fire department, the better the plan looks to him personally.

The Mayor reported that there would be an election night watch at City Hall as in the past, and the results posted.

On the street lighting problem, the city had managed to locate some 2,000 feet of cable from the Electric Co., but construction people had cut cable at Parkview and Main and found that this cable must be replaced. So lights will be off in the area of Columbia and Parkview, also. It will be some time before more cable is available to fix the rest.

The street improvements are also being held up by shortages of material, but will be done as the needed items are available.

Bob Popp of the Telephone Company was present, and spoke to Council, introducing a new resident and employee of the company, Gary Owens. They informed Council that this week Touch-tone would be available for those who are in the 237 exchange.

The Council will next meet in regular session on Nov. 13.

Madison District Votes On $6.7 Million School Bond Issue

Groveport-The voters of the Madison Local School District are asked to approve, on Nov. 6, a $6,7000,000 bond issue to purchase three school sites, construct three new schools, build four additions, remodel the Middle School and provide a large number of site improvements.

The new schools would be two middle schools, in the fast-growing Blacklick Estates and Groveport areas, and an elementary school on a site to be determined at a later date.

ADDITIONS

Classroom additions to the Glendening Elementary and Sedalia Elementary Schools would be made.

An addition to Groveport-Madison High School would provide a 700-seat auditorium, designed so that it could be divided into at least three large group instruction areas when necessary; an area for wrestling and corrective physical education. The board would like to air-condition some of the windowless classrooms in the present high school and install a sanitary sewer line and a water line to the varsity football field.

An addition to the school bus service garage would also be made.

REMODELING

CERTAIN AREAS in the present Middle School in Groveport would be remodeled if the bond issue is passed. The library, home economics locker rooms and physical education locker rooms would be remodeled.

Corridor lighting in the Middle School would be improved; additional student lockers installed. Some of the partitions would be removed to provide for more flexible instructional areas, roof repairs made and an inside incinerator or compactor added at this school.

In the Groveport Elementary School, the library would be expanded, corridor lighting improved, roof repairs made, additional electrical receptacles in classrooms added and a study made of a food service plan for the school.

SITE IMPROVEMENTS

AN EXTENSIVE list of site improvement and miscellaneous improvements would be made to each school in the district. Each elementary school would receive more blacktopped play area and thehigh school and middle school would receive a new track or improvements to an existing one. Many of the schools would get enlarged parking areas, new sidewalks, and some would get complete landscaping plans.

Site improvements at Groveport-Madison High School would include the following: A complete outside athletic and physical education area that is, a track, four tennis courts, a complete black-topped, lighted parking area; additional bleachers for the football field; fences around the athletic areas and a walk from the parking area to the football field.

ALSO PLANNED for in the improvements would be the construction of a blacktopped, fenced school bus parking area with a center island.

Student Council To Babysit, Election Day

Bexley-The Bexley High School Student Council announces a service project for November 6th-Election Day. To make it easier for parents with small children to vote, a free baby-sitting service will be provided at the High School.

Those parents who vote in the Bexley High School lobby may bring their children to a designated room just off the polling place where students with free periods will look after the children while their parents vote.

The students to babysit are being selected by the Student Council Service Department.

Federal Funds For Golf Course Purchase Get First Approval

East Columbus-State Representative James L. Baumann has announced that he has been advised by Ohio Natural Resources Director William B. Nye that Nye's department has approved a request for $150,000 in federal matching funds for Walnut Hills Golf Course.

Nye whose department reviews all local requests for outdoor recreation funds before forwarding them to the federal agency, Bureau of OUtdoor Recreation, a division of the Department of Interior, noted that the City of Columbus will provide half of the $300,000 total project cost if the project is approved.

If the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation approves the city's purchase of the golf course, word that the city will receive the grant money may come in November, according to William Hoy, administrative assistant to the Melvin Dodge, director of the Columbus Department of Recreation and Parks.

The Walnut Hills Golf Course was formerly an 18-hole course but was reduced to a 9-hole course after an apartment complex took much of its area adjacent to Brice Rd.

The city plans to open the course as a 9-hole course in the spring next year, or perhaps earlier, according to Hoy.

There is a possibility that the city may decide to redesign the course as an "executive" 18-hole course, Hoy says, which would mean it would not be ready for use as such until later in the next spring.

Safety Record Brings Award

BEXLEY-Chief of the Bexley Police Department Gene R. Krumm shows the engraved metal plaque, the Pedestrian Safety Achievement award, received from the American Automobile Association recently. The association commended the department for its exceptional record of no pedestrian deaths in Bexley for 12 consecutive years.

Who-o-o's The Spo-o-ok?

COLUMBUS-Just who is this anywho? When we drove by her house, which she seemed to be just daring us to approach, we did a double-take. The arm seemed familiar but we couldn't remember the name. But then it's that ghoul-groaning, ghoul-speaking time again and we snapped her picture and ran for our life. We thought of going around the block, coming back and seeing if she was still there because maybe we had just scared her up out of our imagination. After further contemplation, though, we definitely decided not to go back and try to laugh her off.It wouldn't do "to pull her leg—" we decided she was a mannequin and it would come off in our hands!

Franklin County and state issues to be voted on by Bexley residents are outlined on the editorial page of this issue.

. . .Bexley School Levy...

The mill which is set aside for program and curriculum maintenance and improvement and to meet the rising costs of school supplies is a very important part of the levy, according to board spokesmen. This money would support some of the following programs and developments:

The major commitment to individualize instruction K-12, to continue to provide a quality education to be committed to obtain the learning materials and equipment necessary to individualize education.

Extension of theindividualized reading program now in use in grades K-3 to grades 4-6. This is an significant undertaking in a very basic area of the curriculum which will not be possible without additional funds.

Provision of limited tutorial assistance to meet the needs created by discontinuation of the Supplemental Tutoring Centers.

Provision of learning materials in the junior high social studies,English, math, and science laboratories where individual students'selected work can be undertaken.

Funds are needed to introduce the efficiencies of the computer into business procedures and student scheduling.

Expansion of the high school guidance function. Compared to other high schools, Bexley is understaffed in this area.

What will happen if the levy fails? The Board of Education will have to cut more than $150,000 from the 1974 school budget. About $75,000 could be cut by totally discontinuing summer school, the purchase of all textbooks, workbooks, school library books, library periodicals and supplies for science, physican education, home economics, industrial arts, music, art, and the regular classrooms.

The School Board would still have to find areas in which to cut another $75,000, which would mean staff reduction, larger classes, throughout the system, and possible transfer of elementary students from one school to another to balance out class sizes.

County Children's Services Levy Deserves Support

WORKING IN A clothing store with beautiful merchandise and luxurious surroundings may be the desire of some women, but two Bexley residents find satisfaction from running a used clothing shop located in a one-time school building shared with a police sub-station.

Mrs. Clyde (Nancy) England, 686 Pleasant Ridge Ave., and Mrs. Charles (Florence) Turner, 806 College Ave., are volunteers for Franklin County Children's Services (FCCAS) and operate the free clothing shop three days a week for needy clients and their families.

"The work is so worthwhile," Mrs. England said. "I've learned a lot and I hope that maybe I've given a little something of myself in return."

INVOLVEMENT in Children's Services began six years ago for Mrs. Turner when the youngest of her five children started school. "I wanted to get involved," she explained, "and volunteer work is such a rewarding experience."

Originally located at Franklin Village, the shop was forced to move when the Village became overcrowded about five years ago. Mrs. Turner's husband, administrator of St. Anthony Hospital, offered the use of vacant Kilgallen Hall, 1399 Hawthorne Ave.

Most clothing for the store is donated by individuals, with some damaged items obtained from discount and department stores. All sizes and styles are needed at the shop, as it clothes entire families. Over 500 people received free clothing last year.

"WE ALWAYS need clothing," Mrs. England said, "and especially now during the school year." She emphasized a need for boys' trousers, sizes 8-12 and for girls dresses. Donated clothing may be brought to Franklin Village.

Mrs. England recalled one little boy who couldn't attend school because he had no clothes.

"When he came into the shop," she said, "he only had on a pajama top, old shorts, no shoes, and his sister's coat pinned together because it had no buttons."

THE VOLUNTEER activities performed by hundreds of people like Mrs. England and Mrs. Turner are only an example of FCCS' services.

Committed to strengthening the home life of troubled families, Children's Services offers family counseling, assistance to unmarried parents, foster home care, homemaker services, and adoption.

In addition, FCCS operates Franklin Village which serves as a temporary home for up to 200 youths.

Over 81 per cent of the funds for these services come from real estate and personal property tax levies. A 1.5 mill levy is up for RENEWAL by county voters November 6. NO INCREASE IN TAXES is involved, and the levy will provide funds for the next 10 years.

CHILDREN'S SERVICES belongs to the community. Any troubled family, regardless of income, can be served.

Unlike Mrs. Turner and Mrs. England you may not be able to devote your time to volunteering, but there is a way you can contribute to the well-being of over 8,000 children helped every year by FCCS. You can show your support for these services by voting for the renewal of the 1.5 mill levy. You can share with these women the enjoyment of helping others.

Volunteer Action Center Takes On A Brand New Look

VOLUNTEER service is taking on a new look and Franklin County's Volunteer Action Center (VAC) is largely responsible.

Since 1970 the Center-financed by local United Way and federal program funds-has functioned as an information clearing house bringing volunteer workers and agencies searching for volunteer help together.

According to Glenn Esh, VAC's new Executive Director, volunteer recruitment and placement will still be the Center's primary function, but training will be given more emphasis in the future.

"OUR TRAINING goal is threefold," Esh said. "First we want to educate the public about volunteerism and service opportunities open to everyone in Franklin County. We plan to do this through a revamped public information program that will focus on publicizing the volunteer service work of the ordinary citizens who make volunteer programs work.

"Secondly," Esh continued, "we want to train the volunteer, once he has come to us, to fully appreciate his service role. We want to orient volunteers to get as much as possible out of their experience so they will be as effective as possible on the job."

Esh said that the volunteer experience is important not only for the service rendered to the community, but also as a source of personal fulfillment for the individual.

"Our training program will help the volunteer interpret his personal experience as well as the broader spectrum of community needs," Esh explained.

ESH SAID that eventually VAC would extend its training program and become involved in giving some volunteers the actual skills required by their volunteer jobs.

"Right now most agencies do their own training and this will undoubtedly continue,' Esh explained. "But VAC will try to develop its own in-service training resources to the point where we can advise agencies on how to improve their training program. Perhaps, we will actually help them do the training one day."

What happens to the potential volunteer who walks in or calls VAC?

"First, we ask some questions," Esh said. "We want to know the person's background, interests, special skills-anything that will tell us what kind of work he or she wants to do and where that work will do the most good.

"From that information, we select a service category which best matches the person's interests. Then the volunteer chooses a number of agencies from the category he might like to work with. Then we make the initial contact and get the volunteer and the agency together."

Esh noted that many times the process works in reverse with VAC getting requests for particular kinds or numbers of volunteers from a service agency. Either way, he said, VAC gets the job done saving volunteer and agency a lot of time and cutting through a lot of red tape.

VAC CURRENTLY services some 200 agencies and programs in Franklin County, funneling volunteers each year to where they can best utilize their skills and enthusiasm and get the most out of their service experience. VAC's motto is "ask what you can do." You need only call 228-7308 or visit 137 East State Street. VAC has the answer.

TUESDAY IS ELECTION DAY

Your vote in Tuesday's election could be more significant than your vote in the national election a year ago.

There are always fewer votes cast in off-year elections, so each vote cast is more important mathematically. Second, most of us are affected more directly by the actions of local officials. Third, the federal government has not proved itself very effective in dealing with local concerns.

State and local governments should, separately or in cooperation with each other, find the means to carry greater responsibility for the planning, support and performance of public services. And where federal funds are involved, they should be handled responsibly for constructive programs and not relegated to the maintenance of unproductive overhead at the state or local level.

Support should be given to candidates who support programs which contribute to more effective and self-sufficient state and local government without encroaching on activities which should be left to the private initiative.

The choice is yours. You can help assure good government here at home with your vote!

Multiple Sclerosis Society Helps 'Home Train

A NEW PROGRAM of group therapy sessions is helping to "home train" many area citizens who are victims of multiple sclerosis.

According to Larry Rhodes, executive director of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, 137 E. State St., multiple sclerosis is a non-contagious disease of the central nervous system which usually attacks persons between 20 and 40 years old.

These sessions meet at Jaycee Arms on the fourth Wednesday of each month to develop specialized jobs or crafts that the disabled persons may do at home.

"DEADLINES and standards are the most serious problems a multiple sclerosis victim faces in keeping his job with a company," Rhodes said.

He explained that the multiple sclerosis patient can have a relapse at any time and therefore may not be able to maintain a steady work schedule.

The group therapy sessions give patients a chance to earn money for their families.

"We had 8 or 9 patients at first, but now there are about 40 attending the sessions," Rhodes said.

WHENEVER possible, multiple sclerosis patients handle their own transportation. Neighborhood car pools also are available in many instances.

Rhodes said that one of the greatest benefits of the sessions is providing an opportunity for patients to talk with each other and discuss common problems and solutions.

Trained personnel and volunteers also attend the therapy sessions.

Rhodes described this program as "more than the stringing beads-type of therapy. It also offers patients a feeling of being in contact with the world."

Further information about the program may be obtained from the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, 228-6649.

THE SOCIETY is a United Way (UW) agency and received $44,450 in supportive UW funds during 1972.

Naval Admiral To Speak

Rear Admiral Samuel L. Gravely Jr., USN, will be in central Ohio for two speaking engagements, Thursday, Nov. 1.

The first Black naval officer to be promoted to flag rank, Admiral Gravely will speak at the Defense Construction Supply Center in Columbus during a luncheon in his honor. The function will be hosted by the Navy Recruiting District, Columbus.

He will speak again as guest of honor, at the Annual Faculty Dinner at Central State University, Wilberforce, Ohio.

The admiral began his naval career in 1942 as an enlisted man, and by 1944 had attended both Navy and civilian schools and commissioned an Ensign, USNR.

Since then he has served in numerous jobs throughout the world both ashore and at sea, and has had command of four combatant ships, including USS Jouett (DLG-29), one of the Navy's most modern guided missile frigates.

He has been a two star admiral since 1971 and is presently serving as Commander, Cruiser-Destroyer Group TWO, which is in the process of changing headquarters from Newport, R.I., to Charleston, S.C.

Admiral Gravely is married to the former Alma Clark of Christinasburg, Va., and they have three children.

No Vote Asked On Issue Rezoning

To the Editor:

An importatn issue that will affect the entire Worthington community will appear on the November 6 ballot.

We should like to bring this issue to the attention of all Worthington voters.

On July 24, 1972, over the strenuous objectiosn of a large number of citizens, the Worthington City Council voted to change the zoning of the tract of land bounded by Shrock Road, Worthington Galena Road and the railroad tracks from R-10, Single Family Dwellings, to AR-48, Low Density Apartments.

A grass roots campaign began immediately to place tis issue on the ballot. Over 1,000 signatures - twice the number required - were quickly obtained from all parts of Worthington.

This referendum will be on the ballot on November 6th. It will allow the voters of Worthington to directly determine the orderly development of our community.

We urge all Worthington voters to vote NO on this issue. A No vote on the rezoning referendum on Ord. 16-72 and Ord. 17-72 will:

Continue the balanced residential charcter of Worthington;

Avoid creating additional danger at an already treacherous street crossing for school children;

Avoid further overloading city services and facilities - sewers, water, etc.

The need for more apartments in Worthington - especially in the northeast quadrant - is questionable.

Within the Worthington city limits, there are 448 apartment units now with zoning approved to bring this total to about 700. Just outside of Worthington on Shrock Road, Buxch Boulevard, and East Granville Road, a total of 2,400 apartment units will soon be available.

A NO vote on this rezoning will prevent the construction of another high density complex of apartments and duplexes and will permit the construction of a housing development compatible with the surrounding area.

Ex-Football Coach Asks Whitehall Levy Support

To the Editor:

Attention: Whitehall Tax Payers and Voters

As a parent, teacher, voter, and double tax payer (homeowner and rental property), I ask you to forget about the audit for now. Please thing about the children of the Whitehall City Schools. We must pass the School Levy. By doing this we will maintain the good educational programs we have now and need in the future to keep a good community.

Some of the programs are: kindergarten; elementary art, music, and physical education; tutoring; N.H. classes; EMR classes; remedial reading; speech therapy; vocal and instrumental music; Distributive Education; Cooperative Education; boys' and girls' athletics; Ramettes; Cheerleading; Marching Band; dramatics; debate; summer school and night school.

Other services that are good for the children and community are: bus service, school nurses, school psychologists, library assistants, guidance counselors, cafeteria service, educational field trips, and the use of the schools by churches, Scouts, city recreation, and civic groups.

Another message I would like to pass on to you–I have been going to the same barber (Bill Goldsmith) for my 18 years in Whitehall, and I will never forget what he told me a long time ago. Bill came from behind the Iron Curtain, and he told me he is glad he is alive and able to pay taxesjust to be able tolive in this great country. When, at times, we all take our privilege to vote and pay taxes for granted, we can learn from this man. In some countries we would not be asked to vote for what we want–we would be told!

A special thanks should go to all school P.T.A.'s and volunteer workers we have in the community.

Thanks for your vote,

Jim Bline
Ex-Football Coach

Warrior Wrap-up

by Chelsea Howard

AN EASTMOOR SOPHOMORE, Virginia Sheffield, was chosen Miss Teenage Columbus, Oct. 21 at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium. Virginia was selected from among 20 semi-finalists on the basis of her poise, personality, scholastic ability, and talent. She performed a dance number for the talent portion of the show.

"I really can't believe it," said a surprised Virginia, "they usually pick a senior, but I won!"

Virginia received a modeling course and a $500 wardrobe from Sears. Virginia will now represent Columbus in the Miss Teenage America pageant where she hopes to place in the top eight.

EASTMOOR will begin it's intra-mural sports program soon with the start of school league volleyball. Students are permitted to pick their own teams, or can sign to be placed on one.

The leagues last year consisted of about a dozen boy's teams and a dozen girl's teams. They compteted among themselves during lunch periods, with play climaxing in the tournaments, when a boy's, and a girl's team emerged as the champions.

Other proposed intra-murals will be basketball, tennis, chess or checkers, and, possibly softball.

RESULTS OF a recent city-wide survey found Eastmoor High School qualified in every phase of education. Principal Charles Meyers was "very pleased" with the results.

Ilene Zelden, a junior, said, "The English section was more difficult than the Math section but neither section was a true test of one's knowledge."

Funny Things Happen On A Walk

WHITEHALL- With expressions of wonderment, three-year-olds from St. Edward Pre-School, 214 Fairway Blvd., regard a Red-tailed Hawk, held by Chris Toops, park naturalist at Blacklick Woods. Mrs. Martha Wilson, teacher at the school, looks on. The trip to the city park was one of a series of field trips and experiences provided recently for the students at the 15-year-old school: they have tried to walk on snow shoes, visited with puppets from fine arts groups, visited an Amish farm, made butter, baked cookies and served them to their mothers, danced with real Indian dancers, "learning through doing," as Mrs. Wilson points out. Formerly a cooperative church pre-school, the school is now non-sectarian and is staffed by five certified teachers. There are limited openings available for children three to five years of age in the five-day program with classes from 9 to 11:15 a.m. or 1 to 3:15 p.m. For more information, you may call 861-1777 or 231-1530.

PET Course Starts Today At Cvnter

P.E.T. teaches parents how to listen so children will talk, talk so that their children will listen, and solve problems so that no one in the family loses.

The class is limited to 25 people. Interested parents may learn more information by contacting Mrs. Palmer or Mr. Banchefsky at 231-2731.

Waste Watchers Host McCormack

Representative Timothy McCormack, one of the principle sponsors of the controversial 'Bottle Bill' will be featured speaker at the Annual meeting of Ohio Waste Watchers Inc. The meeting will be held at the Center of Science and Industry, 280 E. Broad, Monday, Nov. 5, 7:30. The public is invited to attend.

The Euclid Democrat's proposal, House Bill 869, is the latest is a series of 'bottle bills' which seeks to curb Ohio's solid waste pollution [illegible]

Specifically, the bill wuld completely ban the sale of beer or soft drinks in the pull tab cans. It would also require a 5 cent deposit on all beer and soft drink containers, including "non-returnable throw-aways."

Similar bills have been passed in at least two other states. Oregon, which was the first with such legislation, has reported outstanding success with their bottle bill, i.e., reducing road-side litter dramatically and being more economical for the consumer.

Diabetes Testing Scheduled At Eastland Mall Nov. 3

The Diabetes Association will be in Eastland Shopping Center, Saturday, November 3, offering free blood tests to detect the presence of hidden diabetes.

The hours will be 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. The tests, which are open to the public, will be held on the second floor of the Sears Store.

The test for diabetes takes only a minute to perform. A nurse takes 3cc of blood from the person's arm.

Each blood sample is placed in a tube and taken to the State Health Department laboratory for analysis. Each person tested receives a reply.

If the result is positive, the person is urged to see his family physician for further studies.

Persons planning to be tested are advised that the best results are obtained two hours after a normal meal.

Diabetes is known as a "hidden" disease because in adults the onset is so gradual that the symptoms are not noticeable. Some of the most common symptoms of diabetes are tiredness, thirst, loss of weightand change in vision. Certain people are more likely to develop diabetes.

These are persons who have a blood relative with diabetes or who are overweight.

Diabetes is ten times more prevalent in persons past forty. These persons comprise the high risk group for diabetes and should be checked annually.

No cure for diabetes is presently known so early detection of the disease is important to prevent complications, such as disease of the blood vessels, loss of vision and kidney disorders.

The diabetes detection program is financed by the Franklin County United Way.

Police Say FARE Working

Columbus-FARE the Fatal Accident Reduction-Enforcement program in Columbus is now beyond the half-way point and local police are pointing to a significant decrease in traffic fatalities as evidence FARE is a success.

FARE works to reduce fatalities by assigning additional police to high-accident areas, particularly dangerous intersections, expressway ramps and similar hazardous areas.

Figures released by the Columbus Division of Police show that from May 25, when FARE was launched, through Oct. 6, there were five fatalities in FARE-patrolled areas compared with 11 during the same period in 1972, a reduction of 54.5 per cent.

FARE will continue in operation locally through the end of the year and police are anticipating continuing impressive results.

Sergeant Carl Clark of the Accident and Investigation Squad, who administers FARE, believes the public is growing increasingly aware of the extra police on traffic duty.

"People see our cruisers out in force and become more cautious in their driving," Clark observed.

FARE is funded by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

A FARE public information program is also being conducted to make motorists, pedestrians and motorcycle and bicycle riders aware of the stepped-up effort to reduce fatalities. The FARE public information program includes bumper stickers, paste-down footprints, posters, public service radio and television messages by Actor Paul Lynde, and frequent police reports on FARE to the news media.

In addition to Columbus, FARE also operates in Youngstown, Canton, Akron, Cincinnati and Toledo.

Scouts Have New Office, Uniforms

WEST COLUMBUS–The Seal of Ohio Girl Scout Council held an open house recently for the general public at the new council office, 1295 Hubbard Rd., Galloway. The cost of the new building was approximately $100,000. The new office building was necessary because of the difficulty of finding an office and the high rents in a downtown location. It was decided that the Girl Scouts would use their own land at Camp Ken Jockety. The Girl Scout sported new uniforms as well as a new building. VFW Scholarship Program Opens Soon

West Columbus–"Students win more than awards and scholarships when they participate in the V.F.W. Voice of Democracy Scholarship Program," said Commander Ralph Arms of V.F.W. Post 495, in discussing the script writing program conducted annually by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Some of the fringe benefits, according to Commander Arms, are increased self-confidence and poise, experience in communicating with others and valuable training in self expression.

For the state winners there is also the broadening experience of a five-day tour of Washington, D.C., and the opportunity to make friendships with the other state winners.

In the 13 years that the Veterans of Foreign Wars have been sole sponsor of the Voice of Democracy Program, more than 3,000,000 high school students have participated.

Participants write and then tape-record a three-to-five minute broadcast script expressing their personal views on their "Responsibility as a Citizen."

From among the state winners, five national winners are chosen to receive a total of $22,500 in scholarships.

"One of the greatest benefits to young people who take part in the program is that by thinking, writing and speaking on their responsibility as a citizen, they gain a better appreciation of their obligation to maintain our freedom heritage," Commander Arms said.

The program will be getting underway in the next few weeks.

The Okay Sweaters

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

FOR DAYTIME, two wonderful Italian Knit sweater looks designed by Bianco for Gino Paoli, New longer sweater in fine ribbed camel knit over sleeveless cable-knit-accented waist sweater. Combination of brown and toast knit for a cardigan jacket worn over a V neck jacquard sleeveless vest...wool plaid jacquard pants.

HAZEL HAIRE for Friedricks Sport likes the shawl-collar cardigan in heather tweed cable knit, belted at the waist in natural leather...matching skirt.

VICTOR COSTA believes in the sweater for all hours, day or night...like this white acrylic knit cardigan over white crepe sleeveless dinner pajame.

ROSANNA SHOWS the new look in a fisherman knit...a big sweater with shawl collar and sash belt.

LOTS OF WOMEN, who can pick out the right dinner dress or ballgown without any trouble, fall flat on their faces when it comes to picking out the right sweater. The world is more sweater crazy than ever this fall and winter...stores are already crammed and jammed with bulky wools, flat wools, cashmeres and synthetics. You might think that sweater shopping would be a cinch, but the truth is, out of all the knitted sweaters around, there are just a few absolutely okay sweaters sanctioned unanimously by all the girls with taste. Picking the right one is like a status symbol...everybody spots it at a glance.

Historically speaking, sweaters have come a long way since the days when Lana Turner was a sweater girl. Sweaters are no longer designed to show off a girl's figure...although there are manufacturers and spectators who keep hoping.

ON THE CONTRARY, today's most okay sweaters are big, bulky and, shapeless...many of them like the Irish Fisherman's sweater. That's why the girls of the best dressed list keep looking in men's sweater departments and specialty shops, where the sweaters are the biggest, bulkiest and most shapeless.

Still, one of the most okay sweaters that a woman can own is the cable knit sweater...only this year it's longer, bulkier, often cut like a jacket, belted at the waist and with deep shawl collar. This sweater was so darn right that it was shown by every designer in the American fall fashion shows in New York. Other okay looks are the wrapped cardigan, the blazer, single and double breasted sweaters, big top tenty looks and chanel type cardigans, in everything from heathery tweed knits to ribbed weaves.

THERE ARE sweaters that achieve fame and fortune just by covering the right backs. A couple of these are the long, sloppy, low-buttoning cardigans synonymous with Rex Harrison and Dean Martin...the success sweaters they call them in Hollywood.

FOR LATE DAY and evening, the most okay sweater goes to the ankle or floor. You may call it a long knit dress or coat, if you like...however to the okay designers it's still a sweater, anyway you look at it!

ACRYLIC SWEATERS FOR WOMEN. Cardigan styling highlighted with the again-popular shawl collar. Machine wash. Sizes S, M, L. White only. Just, 8.97. In Misses' Sportswear D385 Eastland.

AS AN INCENTIVE for the students to sell prize tickets for the Hartley Spaghetti Dinner, the principal, Mr. Schwanitz, has set up a contest. Each week, the students meeting a set quota of the week participate in selecting tags from a game board. On the tags are written different amounts of money. The student receives the amount of moneyon the tag he chooses. Last week, top mmoney winners were Dennis Jones ($55) and Armond Harbst ($25). The top seller of the week was Patrick Comer, selling 80 tickets.

ON MONDAY, Oct. 29, fifty students went to the Ohio Theater to see the production of "Godspell." The Religion Department organized the trip and reserved the seats. The show was enjoyed by all.

THE JUNIOR class sponsored a 50's Dance after the Hartley-Eastmoor game, for students of Hartley. All were to come dressed in clothes of the 50's era. Prizes were awarded to the best-dressed. Everyone had a great time.

ALTHOUGH quite unhappily, I report that the Powderpuff Game ended in a victory for the Junior Jockettes. They defeated the Senior B.G.s 12-6. Sherri Moore made the two touchdowns for the Juniors, while Andi Williams made the B.G. score. Special thanks to all involved, particularly the cheerleaders and Hip-Swingers, They certainly added much to the excitement of the evening.

Eastland FFA Raises Banner Corn Crop

Members of the Eastland F.F.A. recently conducted yeild checks of the various hybrids planted in their corn test plots.

These test plots are a part of the 12 acres of corn the Eastland F.F.A. Chapter planted as a Fund Raising and Education Project.

The minimum-tillage (No-Till") corn was planted May 18 using a special planter from The Groveport Implement Company.

Seed for the crop was contributed as follows: Martin 107N, Winchester Milling; Pioneer 3369A, Faler's Feed and Farm Store; C929, Groveport Landmark; RX45 Ruff's Seed Farms and Funks G4505, Glenn Lackey.

The corn was planted in 30 inch rows and received 239 pounds of nitrogen, 195 pounds of phosphorous, 195 pounds of potash, four pounds of Atrazine, and one-fourth pound of Paraquat per acre.

Test plots ranged from 96.5 to 121 bushels per acre.

Wilbur Stevenson, Eastland FFA Advisor, commented, "In addition to learning more about a continuous corn and minimum tillage method of corn growing, the project is providing students in Eastland's Vocational Agriculture Classes with valuable marketing experience. The students sold 800 bushels on 'contract' and will have the opportunity to market the balance at harvest time or store it for later sale. This 'hands on' marketing experience makes an excellent addition to the traditional textbook method of teaching marketing."

'Chariot Of The Gods' Author On Second Of Cap's Series

Bexley-Author and lecturer Erich von Daniken will speak at Captial University on Thursday, Nov. 15 at 8:15 p.m. as the second program in Capital's 1973-74 special events series.

Von Daniken is the author of three books which have sold an estimated 25 million copies worldwide and which have made him an international controversial figure.

Each of his books-"Chariots of the Gods?," "Gods from Outer Space," and "Gold of the Gods"-deals with von Daniken's theory that the earth was visited in ancient times by astronauts from another solar system who deposited the seeds that grew into today's civilization.

Von Daniken has researched age-old materials, including the writings of Biblical prophets, books of Tibetan lamas, stone relics of the Mayas and Incas, pyramids of Egypt, the Stonehenge, cave drawings in North Africa and scores of phenomena in otherparts of the world.

One of the more fascinating sources von Daniken turns to for support of his theories is the Biblical prophet Ezekiel, contending that the fiery chariots Ezekiel wrote about were, in reality, the spaceships of ancient astronauts.

Von Daniken's lectures are illustrated with slides of archaelogical legacies which help support his controversial theories.

Tickets for his November 15 Mees Hall appearance are $1.50 for the public and will be available at the door.

Additional information is available by contacting the Capital University ticket office at 236-6802.

AROUND TOWN

May & Company At Ramada East

As far as I'm concerned, the greatest musical sounds this week can be heard at the beautiful Ramada Inn-East. The May Company is responsible for it all. No, not the same May Company that has been selling furniture for many, many years. This May Company sells music that will have you climbing the walls. This quintet, is without a doubt, one of the finest musical show groups to set foot on a Columbus stage.

There are four fellows and one gal in the group. Three of the men play a variety of instruments. When they all pick up their horns at the same time, it sounds like a section of the Stan Kenton Band.

That is due to the fact, that leader Charlie May, sax, clarinet, and bass, Jim Davis on trumpet and trombone and Eddie Ambrose on trumpet, trombone all sound like Stan Kenton Grads.

Charlie May plays gobs of tenor sax. His riffs and runs are something to hear. The same has to be said for Jim Davis. He hits more high notes on the trumpet than a soprano auditioning for the Met. Not only is Jim able to reach the highest of highs of the musical scale, he produces fantastic sounds in the process. His trombone-work is equally fascinating.

Eddie Ambrose is literally a genius at the organ, electric piano and horns. His work at the keyboards is sure and definite. Some of his solo work at the organ would make you think he has four hands.

Both Jim and Eddie, by the way, are former Columbus performers. Both have worked with Joe Lavenger's Tune Timers, many years ago.

But, back to Charlie May for a minute. Take my word for it, this is one of the finest horn players you will hear in a long time. While Charlie shows you his musical abilities and the fact that he can play far out jazz, he keeps the lid on it all by keeping to a rather heavy melody line. You might say that he just takes a tune and dresses it up fit to kill. And, kill it he does with his strong stylings.

Paul Keieling is the drummer and arranger for the outfit. The man is solid and shows a variety of creative approaches, both at the drums and with his charts.

Last, but certainly not least, is Catherine Chase. In my opinion, this gal is a singers singer. It is a treat to hear a girl like Catherine grab hold of a mike and belt you with some mighty fine vocal works. Just wait until you hear her attack, be it a ballad or a jump number. She has plenty of control, along with a wide range that permits her to reach high or low. Catherine is a real powerhouse of a singer.

Anyone of the members of the group are worth a trip to the Ramada Inn-East. Put them all together, and your trip turns into a safari.

As you may imagine by now, The May Company is strictly a musical company. While some of the boys do some vocal solo work, and all join in are some fine vocal harmonies, it is instrumentation that makes this group cook. No matter what type of music they play, they play it well with a touch of modern jazz. This is true for the standard tunes, country and western numbers and the best of today's market.

I stopped in with the intention of catching one show because of a tight schedule, yet I ended up staying for two complete shows. This review was not work for me, it was pure enjoyment all the way. This is what's in store for you when you catch The May Company at the Ramada Inn-East.

Petty's Has Home Flavor

Petty's Restaurant, as I told you about a year ago, is one of the finest, if not the finest Italian restaurant in the Columbus area. Owned and operated by Wayne and Maria Petty, who do all of the cooking and planning, makes this place a delight for lovers of good food.

Between the two of them, they cook and prepare every item from "scratch." That is something you just don't find in the restaurant business, today. Be it the dough for the spaghetti, ravioli or rigatoni, or the dough for pie, it is all homemade.

TALK ABOUT a tasty treat, you won't experience any better anywhere. For example, the spaghetti sauce is all made by Wayne and Maria. Nothing is pre-packaged.

Besides eating the best Italian food Around Town, you will also enjoy the beautiful, intimate decor of Petty's.The interior is simply designed for cozy quiet dining. It is so relaxing, that, if you are like me, you'll want an extra cocktail or two, just so you can stay a little longer and enjoy the surroundings.

PETTY'S also have a nice lounge, that is as intimate and cozy as the dining room. Believe me, it is rather difficult to visit the lounge for just one drink, because everyone, including the help and customers, are so friendly, that you so find yourself involved in a pleasant circle of new found friends. I think of Petty's Restaurant as a home away from home.

One visit, and you'll agree. The food is as good, as at home. The atmosphere is warm and congenial.

But, most of all, it is the food that you will come back for again and again. Besides serving all types of Italian food that makes you think you are in the old country, Petty's also have a full menu of American food, including steaks, chops and seafood.

By the way, most of their Italian dishes includes an antipasto salad that has everything with which a real antipaste should be prepared.

Petty's restaurant is a dining treat of good, old fashion Italian cooking. Yet, you only have to drive south to Harrisburg Pike. Take my advice, don't close your eyes, or you'll swear that you made the wrong turn and ended up in Rome.

Skipping Around Town

Business has been so good, that "The Cheerleaders," and "Fritz the Cat," have been held over at the Holiday Drive-In and North High Drive-In theatres. These are two great pixs. See them this week.... Dropped in at the Charleston Club a few nights ago. Owner Hal Case has done some redecorating, added some sexy new gals,and the place is certainly a fun spot to go. Wait until you see Rose Skeels do her thing on stage. What a gal, and what a body: Very interesting and charming personality, too... For some nice, soft music for dancing or easy listening, make the Holiday Inn-North a must on your entertainment schedule. These two fellows play music that is easy to talk by, Jerry and Nick are on organ - drum duo playing in a style that includes a heavy melody line and simple rythums. Most of their music is from the oldies era. Yet they play a lot of the better songs of today. The room is softly lit, and it is truely a great place to spend a relaxing evening ... Another spot I have not mentioned for a while is the Kingswood Inn Motel. Their restaurant is tops. The food is fit for a king. They have several different menus each week at prices you wouldn't believe. Very reasonable. I think you will enjoy the nice, pleasant atmosphere, also. You'll never go wrong at the Kingswood Inn Motel. It is one of my favorite dining spots. One of my favorite gal enterainers is back in town. Her name is Jo Kiser. Besides being one of the most talented performers to come down the pike with her singing and fine piano stylings, Jo is also one of the prettiest. You can see and hear her noghtly at the Lincoln Lodge. This gal is solid gold. She is really an entertainer...For something deliciously different, stop in at the Ramada Inn South this Friday and try their Canoe of Seafood Buffet. All types of delicious seafood. This has to be a must for you lovers of good seafood .... Several new acts Around Town next week, watch for their reviews and enjoy yourself. See you Around Town.

Eastmoor-Ridge, Hartley-Watterson Top Weekend

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Sports Writer

Oh, it'll be some weekend, these last two regularly scheduled nights of schoolboy gridiron action coming upon us. It should be so intense, so rugged, that you will probably even find the cheerleader watchers watching the game instead of those lovely young rah rah ladies, (Don't worry girls we'll still be peeking at you).

AND WHAT else could we refering to here than that Friday night Eastmoor at Walnut Ridge showdown matchup that looms as huge a rivalry as the entire east side. That matchup will merely send the winner waltzing as the South representative into the City Championship game one week later.

Enter in stage left the guttiest Central Catholic League helmet crashing that you want to find when Hartley and Watterson tangle in a Saturday night affair at Whetstone and don't think some PRIDE won't be at stake in that hard-hitter.

BOB STUART'S wonderous Warriors carry a clean 8-0 slate (6-0 in City League play) into Scot territory while Vince Cahill's once beaten slippery Scots need a win for a share of this 1973 City Crown.

All anxious viewers must be sure not to forget that 28-27 licking the Warriors took at the hands of the Scots last year that earned Walnut Ridge the City South Crown, because you can be sure its been fresh in the minds of theWarriors since its happening.

THE WARRIORS come off of a 24-21 breath-taker over Hartley which saw the Galloping Grif of Eastmoor, Ray Griffin, run wild for 126 second-half yards that helped erase a 15-8 Hartley half-time lead.

The Warriors needed all three of their point after TD tries though, to edge the tricky air oriented forces of Jack Ryan.

And how quickly the newest sensation in the long line of field generals Coach Stuart has tutored in his stay at the Weyant Avenue School is maturing.

BRIAN JOHNSON, a now complete signal-caller, has picked up right where Mark Kraker left off last year helping initiate that Warrior hacking of the Hawks as he connected for a 61 yard TD alignment with Paul Lias and a quick 10 yard hookup with DuncanGriffinfor another six-pointer.

Don't think that those Warriors aren't aware of the backfield power of senior smasher Matt Guttman and his backfield playmates Pete Bickel, Terry Loggan and George Snyder. Then there is that quick-sprinting Bob Bardeland split wide, he nabbed those two TD strikes last week, and now we see the reason for the Wishbone success.

TURN THE PAGE to the Big D and see what? A unit that has allowed but 22 points to cross its goal line in eight games. Five shutouts these tough Scotties have "Thrown".

It will have to be some classic confrontation, Ray Griffin and the wall of these Scots. Marty Reida and Carl Turner at the defensive ends with four meanies at linebacker slots in Kevin and Mark Glenn, Steve Winslow and Mike Woodburn. Jack Stephenson, Bob Cole and Mike Nichols will police the deep secondary as usual guarding against such UFO's as Eastmoor thrown bombs.

Coach Cahill most deservingly lauded these fine defenders in saying, "I really don't think that you'll find a better defensive team better than this one. We're only giving the opposition two yards per carry."

"Execution, will determine a winner in this one," added Cahill. "We know what they have and they know what we have, the personnel is just great, the team that executes will win."

NOW FOCUS the spotlight on the brillance of Ron Shay and his Watterson Eagles. The Eagles with steady junior Dean Dixon at the QB helm have strutted through their eight game schedule with only one spill, that against a Cincinnati AAA toughie.

After ground gathering its way over Wehrle 33-0 Watterson faces the tough charges of Jack Ryan and his Hartley Kids, a group that is as upset-minded as they come.

Tight end Scott Bringardner has been much thrown to in this Eagle offensive unit and he and fullback Jim Grimm who collected 123 running yeards in that Wehrle shutout balance the steady attack. And Bringardner is also the hub of this Eagle defense that will have its hands full chasing Hartley's passing ace Mark DiSabato.

DiSabato picked Eastmoor's secondary apart last week in connecting on 9 of 13 throws for 110 yards and two TD's to speedy Ed Radcliff. You can bet that the aerial forces of Hartley will be in full swing at Saturday night's spectacle.

West enters its clash with a 5-3 season record much better than Ready 1-6 mark, but in a rivalry like this West Side one, records might just be ignored.

In other Friday key grid games Northland tries to rap up the City North Crown at Brookhaven. In the OCC Reynoldsburg is at Worthington, Whitehall travels to Westland and Gahanna vies for its second straight undisputed OCC championship in front of its home rooters against hapless Delaware.

London is at Bexley in the Mid-Eight and Franklin Heights buses to Marysville in the Metro League. Dayton Dunbar hosts East in an area non-leaguer.

SATURDAY'S field finds Lucas at Academy in an afternoon tilt.

Other High action last week saw Linden down East 17-6 despite another Bill Anderson to Darrell Fields TD passing combo in the CL North.

In the City South, West blasted Central 28-12 behind sophomore QB Scootie Patrick. Smooth Scoot rushed for 130 yards and handed off to the Williams men-Roosevelt and Ron-for three TC's.

Bexley dropped a 28-6 decision to Urbana in the Mid-Eight play-offs while Gary Jones paced Franklin Heights to a 40-20 romp over Grandview.

DeSales stayed in CCL contention with a 34-12 bumping of Ready. Ready accounted for its scoring with an 80 yard pass from Kevin Elgin to Keith Hill and a 60 yard scoot with a fumble by Tim Radish.

JIM CASE figured in both TD's in Academy's 14-12 Mid-Buckeye loss to Centerburg and an herculean effort by St. Charles' Dave Heilman-256 yards on the ground five TD's included-helped St. Charles smother East Knox 53-0 in a non-leaguer.

OCC action had Gahanna smashing Reynoldsburg 40-0 and Worthington using a last minute 40 yard halfback pass from Gary Chambers to Tom Atha for a 19-14 margin over determined Whitehall.

Whitehall had surged ahead early in the game as strong throwing QB Jerry Montgomery fired a pair of TD shots-Rick Robinson and Mark Hunter on the receiving ends-with Vlade Anakievski connecting on the conversion boots.

Gary Coates, a tough Cardinal lineman, fell on a Ram fumble for an early Worthington score.

Walnut Ridge Teams Win City X-Country Titles

THE WALNUT RIDGE varsity cross country team, under third year coach Rick Mettle, recorded its first-ever city cross country title by edging rival Northland 52-55 in the 14-team race last week.

The Scots were led by senior Steve Acree, who not only captured first position but also a share in the city league record of 9:56, which was set by Jerry Mounts of Marion Franklin in 1971.

The Scots placed their next six runners in the top 23 places in a field of approximately 90 runners. They were senior Jon DeBell-6th, junior Jon Mooris-12th, sophomore Marty Finta-15th, sophomore Marty Withrow-18th and seniors Dale Tefft and Kip Henry-19th & 23rd respectively.

The Scots finished the dual meet season with a 12-1 record, a runner-up trophy at the Red Devil Invitational, and a championship trophy from the Arrowhead Invitational.

The reserve cross country team was unchallenged as they victoriously placed 5 runners in the top 9 spots and gave Walnut Ridge its third consecutive city reserve title.

They were led by Rick Vasquez in a 10:46 clocking. He was followed closely by Chris Fairchild, MARK Briggs, Fred Schirr, Ted Virostko, Kevin Stewart-Magee, and Mark Hogenbirk.

At the Central District meet last Saturday at Raymond Memorial, Walnut Ridge placed third, with a 96 team total, behind top team Worthington (31) and Newark (72). Thirteen teams ran in their section.

Whitehall vs Worthington

IT WAS AN ALMOST TD for Whitehall's speedy Mark Hunter (23) but the last man in his TD path was the Cardinals' Pete Kight and Kight managed to bring him down.

Whitehall vs Worthington

WHITEHALL'S Rick Robinson was a running-pass catching demon against Worthington in the Rams fine offensive game. Here, he heads for more yardage after taking a Jerry Montgomery pass.

Whitehall vs Worthington

IT WAS TD ALL THE WAY for Whitehall's Rick Robinson as he scored the Rams' first TD on the first play of the second period against Worthington. Robinson got a tremendous block from Roger Day (30) who melted Worthington's Pete Kight (21) out of the way. Worthington-Whitehall photos by Ray Adams.

Knox Lake Bass Fishing

Angler harvest records recently received from Swank's Bait Shop at Knox Lake reflect some of the excellent largemouth bass fishing taking place at the lake. Morning fishing with artificial lures has been very productive for Ted Bullock of Mansfield. One outing produced 7 bass from 13 to 15 inches in size while his next produced a 21 inch, 6 pounder.

Other successful bass fishermen include: Ray Davino of Newark who caught 6 bass from 13 to 17 inches. Walter Backholt of Fredericktown caught a 26 incher weighing 5.5 lbs.

The late summer and fall has produced some very good fishing for Channel Catfish at Knox Lake. Many good stringers of 1 to 1½ pounds have been taken. Two exceptional catches include a 21 inch channel weighing 4 pounds taken by Judith Goeppinger of Mt. Vernon and a 23 incher weighing 8 pounds landed by Jeff Backholt of Mt. Vernon. Most of the catfish are being taken on nightcrawlers.

Be Sure Of A Place To Hunt

Don't be caught without a place to hunt this season. If you plan to hunt on private land, be sure to ask the landowner's permission and don't wait until the last minute. The wise sportsman has already made his farmer contact for an opening day hunt.

If you don't have a spot picked out, try a Co-Op farm. Under the Division of Wildlifes Co-operative Hunting Program, private landowners permit hunting on their farms free of charge. These areas are located by the yellow and black "Hunting With Permission Only" signs.

Over 179,000 acres of land are signed up in this program throughout Central Ohio. There are also public hunting areas in District One. Some of these include: —Delaware Wildlife Area in Marion, Morrow and Delaware counties; Big Island Wildlife Area in Marion County; Urbana Wildlife Area in Champaign County; Deercreek Reservoit Wildlife Area located in Pickaway, Madison and Fayette counties; Highway research Center, located in Logan and Union counties; and the Kokosing Wildlife Area, located in northwestern Knox County.

Late Fall Fishing In The Olentangy River

The Riffle Pool area of the Olentangy River is expected to produce many fine catches of both Smallmouth and Rock Bass this fall. Located between the Old Wilson Road Bridge and the intersection of Route 315 and Snouffer Road, this series of six pools is the subject of a study being completed with the assistance of the Division of Wildlife, by Mr. Ed Perry, a masters degree candidate at the Ohio State University.

Recent stream survey efforts have indicated large numbers of Smallmouth and RockBass to be present in the area.

Many Smallmouth Bass measuring from 10 to 16 inches have been captured and released during this survey; along with good numbers of Rock Bass up to 10 inches. Interviews with local fisherman have revealed that the best catches are being made along the eastern bank of the River with the best baits being small spinners, shallow-diving plugs and live nightcrawlers.

Access points to this area are located on Route 315 just south of the Snouffer Road intersection and off of Old Wilson Road adjacent to I-270.

VOTE YES ON ISSUE 3

Issue Three is a constitutional amendment that makes possible the continued modernization of Ohio's courts. It authorizes administrative changes and permits further reorganization of the courts.

Issue Three can place Ohio among the leaders for court modernization. It picks up where Ohio's 1968 Modern Courts Amendment left off.

Issue Three does not involve an increase in taxes.

The Ohio State Bar Association—made up of lawyers who are intimately familiar with the operation of our courts—has endorsed voter approval of Issue Three. OSBA urges all Ohioans to vote "Yes" on this needed constitutional amendment.

CONGRATULATIONS go to Bexley High School's cross country team for winning the Mid-8 Championship. Bexley set a new low score record with 24 points.

Five of the team members placed in the Top Ten Finishers. These students are Chris Altmaier, first, Mark Tapee, second, Harold Long, fourth, Larry Ault, eighth, and Gene Lewis, ninth. The winning team is coached by Mr. Russell Owen.

BEXLEY STUDENTS will present a concert on Friday, Nov. 9 at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium. The Symphonic Choir, Concert Choir, Mixed Ensemble, Woman's Ensemble, Male Chorus, Female Chorus and the orchestra will perform.

The concert will feature music from the Renaissance, Baroque, Classical, Romantic periods, and selectionsof twentieth century music.

THE GIRLS ATHLETIC CLUB held their annual Hockey Class Night program on Oct. 29. At this time the freshmen girls play the sophomore girls and the junior girls tackle the senior girls. The winners of the two games then play each other to win the championship.

ON FRIDAY, OCTOBER 26, the Bexley Lionettes Drill Team performed a solo dance-drill during half-time at the Bexley-Urbana league play-offs game. This is the first time the team was featured during a half-time performance.

The Lionettes presented "Stairway to Heaven" and "Onward Bexley", among other selections. The music was arranged by senior Tom Harriman.

THE AMERICAN Field Service (AFS) student exchange program is gaining more attention at Bexley High School.

The purpose of the AFS club is to stimulate student interest and support of the foreign student exchange program. Under adviser-teacher Mrs. JoAnn Stearns and president Heidi Schneider the Bexley AFS Club will undertake many services to promote understanding of AFS in both the school and community.

The club also helps those students who would like to participate in the exchange program. The students who apply are interviewed by the Americans Abroad committee of the AFS. Selectees' names will then be forwarded to the New York office for the ultimate selection of exchange students.

Friday Nov. 2, Church Women United of Columbus and Franklin County will join 2,000 other communities over the nation in the celebration of World Community Day. Services will be held in 10 neighborhood areas of the city.

The women will express their concern tangibly through gifts of material aid such as sewed pre-cut garments for children in disaster or refugee situations, good, clean usable clothing packed, labelled ready for shipping, gift certificates for used as needed for blankets, cloting, shoes in crisis areas.

Proceeds from the sacrificial luncheons will be used locally for the Family Court Worker and for the layette fund used by CWU for needy mothers.

The World Community day offerings along with World Day of Prayer offerings become part of the Intercontinental Mission Fund used around the globe for scholarships for women in developing countries such as Zambia, for education and self-help among the American Indians, for victim of wars in Vietnam, Idonsia, Nigeria, for medical services among children, for hospitality and scholarships among overseas students in the USA.

St. Anne's Volunteers Find Out

'Everything Changes. . .But Still Remains The Same'

IT TOOK St. Ann's (General) Hospital to bring them together. One was born in France and educated in England; one is a Londoner.

They are Frederique Bentley, who last spring completed the fourth year of a six-year medical degree program at Dundee University in Scotland, and Mrs. Frances Bloomfield, here from London with her husband John, a Ph. D. in Psychology, who is a post doctoral fellowship researcher in "Visuals" at Ohio State University.

MISS BENTLEY has been an observer at the hospital since July; Mrs. Bloomfield became a member of the St. Ann's Volunteer Corps last March.

"Books cost so much more here! Food costs are about the same. Clothing – particularly for children – is more expensive. And imagine TV at 6 a.m." Over coffee, not their customary tea, the two compare notes.

Mrs. Bloomfield remembers: "All our friends told us we were crazy to bring books from England. We're glad now that we did." When talking of the cost of books, she includes both fiction and non-fiction.

"TELEVISION here is so different," she continues. "Programming at home doesn't start early in the morning. There we have two non-commercial and a commercial station, and their programming emphasizes cultural things...like reading great children's stories aloud.

Not the usual cartoons featured here! We've resorted to buying children's records to keep our two boys interested in good stories and in the habit of listening to readers." One of her sons is five-and-a-half years old, the other two-and-a-half.

"Child discipline is stricter in England, too," the young Britisher says. She and Miss Bentley agree that there seems to be more cultural pressure in England to teach children such things as table manners and to speak and act respectfully. "Perhaps it's because more American mothers go out to work than do in England," they add.

ALTHOUGH she has been in the United States only a short time, Miss Bentley pays nurses here a compliment, saying that she believes that, overall, they are better trained than those she has observed in England and Scotland.

While she has had some opportunity to visit other hospitals in Columbus, Miss Bentley has spent much of her time at St. Ann's and her free time with her hosting family, the Frank C. Stein's, 345 S. Harding Rd. "You know," she explains, "doing family things...movies and the like."

WHAT ABOUT volunteers in England or Scotland? "There just aren't any," the two maintain. "All workers in hospitals there are paid." They have only nice things to say about hospital volunteering at St. Ann's.

Both list as their most valuable American experiences those at St. Ann's...the opportunity to learn to know the people as they are, the patients, and helping them, the staff, and working with them. "I feel that this association has helped me understand a lot about the American people and has helped me to grow as an individual," Miss Bentley says.

HAS THE United States measured up to her expectations? A vehement "yes" comes forth. "I've always wanted to come here. I think if it's possible I've enjoyed it more than I thought I would. The experience I've gained has been invaluable."

Mrs. Bloomfield is one of the first volunteers to be assigned to maternity floor duties. Until recently volunteers were not given duty there. "I've liked my volunteer assignments at the hospital, but admit I enjoy the maternity floor work most."

Why did Miss Bentley pick this area to visit and do her observation work? Her brother Bernard has been a teaching assistant at Indiana University, and now is a faculty member of the University of Texas. "I'll visit him briefly when I leave St. Ann's, and then I'll go back to Scotland in late fall.

AND, the twinkle in her dark eyes fades, just a little, as she thinks about leaving.

THE TOAST of friendship and luck! Left, Mrs. Frances Bloomfield, a Londoner, and Miss Frederique Bentley, a French medical student, use coffee to salute their friendship. The two met at St. Ann's Hospital where Mrs. Bloomfield is a member of the volunteer corps and Miss Bentley has been a medical observer.

For New Centers, Existing Schools

Voc Ed Future Plans Outlined

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

Columbus–Future plans for career and vocational education in the Columbus Public Schools were outlined in a report to the Columbus School Board at its Oct. 30 Committee-of-the-Whole meeting. The report was presented by Fred Ricketts, director of Practical Education for the Columbus School System.

Ricketts' report included plans for programs to be offered in the new high schools which are to be built as part of the recent bond issue passage and the four career-vocational centers that are also included in the school construction plan. Also included in the presentation were plans covering programs to be offered in existing high schools.

Ricketts pointed out that the biggest class and enrollment increase from the 1972-73 school year to the 1973-74 school year was the increase in Business Office Education which increased 10 classes and 178 students.

THE FOUR PROPOSED Vocational Centers are the South-East Career Center which will accomodate 1,080 students, North -East Career Center 1,360 students, North-West Career Center 1,220 and the Metropolitan Career Center which is to be completed first and house the most students, 1,840.

According to Ricketts 150 different vocational course programs will be offered and not only will this affect students attending the school or center, but, "We hope to have this open to every student in the entire city for not only enrollment but also for inspection," Ricketts added that 75 courses that were not offered before will be available to students.

Ricketts explained that each Vocational Center would have its different specialties. Jack Gibbs, executive director of the soon to be completed Metropolitan Career Center added that he hoped more money could be allocated so that new programs such as child care and the performing arts could also be added under this program.

Ricketts also explained the procedure used for picking these career programs saying, "We choose them by the labor forecasts, recommendations of advisory committees and student interest surveys."

SPEAKING OF PLACEMENT Ricketts said, "We want every door of education open as long as employment exists in the field. If employment in the field dries up, we will have to close that particular department."

But Ricketts also emphasized, "We want the seniors of these schools to have early placement and have a realistic work situation while they are still in high school."

Flexibility in programs and services was tabbed as the major objective of each center and the board outlined what each Career-Center will provide.

These provisions are:

Competent instructors with rich backgrounds of successful work experience.

Facilities and equipment for approximately 25 specialized vocational programs not available in the comprehensive high school or in other career centers.

"VOCATIONAL PROGRAMS during school hours for students 16 years of age and older, and in the evening for adults.

Time blocks for programming based on the amount of time required for the development of entry level skills and competencies necessary for vertical mobility.

Advisory committees for all programs to insure up-to-date curriculum, equipment and programming.

Flexible scheduling service so that students may attend a center on a half day basis and return to a comprehensive high school for required general courses and other elective programs.

SPECIALIZED GUIDANCE services related to student needs and career development.

A program of career motivation, orientation and exploration available for students, grades kindergarten through tenth.

Services in job placement as employment readiness is developed.

Specialized services dealing with weakness in basic reading and mathematics skills as they relate to career development.

Ricketts and his associates that have worked on the project with him were lauded by school Superintendent Dr. John Ellis for their fine work and also by the Board itself. Board Vice-President Mrs. Virginia Prentice said, "These offerings are just tremendous; diversified and individualized."

Board President Thomas Moyer congratulated the men saying, "I'm very pleased with this report; this represents the promise of the forefront of vocational education."

Dr. Ellis concluded by informing the board that future refinements of this program would be presented to the board when available.

Eastland Awaits Greenhouse Completion

BY ELSIE V. WEAVER

East Columbus-Students majoring in Horticulture at Eastland Vocational School have been almost completely classroom-bound, but shortly they will have a three-room greenhouse as good as any florist has, and better than many. They will also have extensive land to use, back of the greenhouses.

Members of the junior, first-year classes, in Horticulture I, have been studying plant physiology, soils, and landscaping, with a little field work in the courtyard of the school, where they have planted trees, shrubs and flowers Horticluture I is taught by James Collins

Horticulture II for seniors has been tuaght by Gene Houser. The course is designed to teach floriculture, the growing and arranging of flowers. The class has been unable to grow flowers for arranging, although they have had flowers purchased outside the school to work with in arrangements.

After the green house is finished they will do all their own planting, propagation, experimenting, soil sterilizing, disease control, cutting, just as professional florists do. The temperature will be correctly controlled in their glass houses, with the students learning just how this is done. Mums, carnations, snapdragons, poinsettias and bedding plants are just some of the flowers to be grown.

Next spring a five-acre corn field in back of the greenhouses will become a nursery to grow shrubs to be used to complete landscaping around the school grounds.

Also planned will be commercial-type displays of evergreens and shrubs grown on this land by the students.

They may have a surplus of shrubs but will not sell them to the public because this would be unfair competition for local landscape gardeners, Houser asserts.

In the next two years the ambitious class plans call for a yard maintanence course with experimental lawns, where they try out different seed-sowing methods, shrubbing, edging, fertilizing, weed control and actual upkeep of the grass.

As culmination of this work, a putting range for the use of the public will be constructed. It will have 8 to 10 holes.

Houser says the social side of life of the students is not being neglected by the Horticulture department, either. Since the students majoring in the area spend six periods a day together, for two years, get-acquainted activities have been set up.

The groups have been camping, gone on a Halloween hay ride and attended other social get-togethers so far this fall.

The Horticulture department at Eastland will soon be too busy "living in glass houses" to find out "they musn't throw stones."

Drug Education Explained

By Sandy Schwartz
Special Staff Writer

Columbus–A stimulating review of the Pilot Drug Education Program was presented to the Columbus School Board Members at the Oct. 23 Committee of the Whole Meeting

Ann James, the program's coordinator, presented an outline explaining objectives of the program and means of incorporating these goals into the program. The emphasis Ms. James stressed was that taking drugs is a form of behavior and teaching the students about behavior is the theme of the program

The schools that are involved in the Drug Abuse Prevention Program are Champion, Hilltonia and Yorktown Junior Highs and Beatty Park, Burroughs, Easthaven, Eastwood, Highland, Lindbergh, Maybury, Oakmont, Old Orchard, Pilgrim, Wayne, West Mound and Woodcrest Elementary Schools. This totals 16 schools with the total teacher involvement being 254 and the student involvement tabbed at 8,399.

Board Vice-President Virginia Prentice, a member of the group which reviewed the textbooks before their use, agreed that the material was interesting and she lauded the approach that the material used.

Ms. James was accompanied at the meeting by Alan Trottman, Principal of Easthaven Elementary School, and Sandra Flanagan, a kindergarten teacher at that same school. Both are active in the program and had favorable comments about the text being used and also about the program in general.

Sandra Flannagan labeled the books as "versatile" and added, "It was just something different at first, but now the kids are accepting and applying the work to every day life."

School Superintendent Dr. John Ellis explained that the board would be informed of further developments in this program and more precisely said, "A written report will hopefully be submitted to the Board by mid-year."

Election Results

Here are the election results up to the Spectator deadline.

Columbus Councilmen Portman, Mentel and Rosemond all have apparently retained their seats.

Incumbent Columbus School Board members Moyer, Prentice and Walker have also apparently been re-elected.

Columbus City Attorney Hughes and City Auditor Derrian also apparently have been re-elected by wide margins.

In school levy and bond issue votes, Bexley's 5.5 mill operating levy passed while Whitehall's 5 mill levy apparently failed as did a $6.7 million bond issue for the Groveport-Madison Schools.

All results are unofficial.

Good skillful shampooing and conditioning of hair is Important , perhaps even more important than good styling The lowly hair cutting service which used to be so poorly appreciated that it would be thrown in with a shampoo and styling almost without any charge, has come into its own Today even men pay $20 or $25 for a style cutting without a murmur In our salon only special cutting costs that much, but now both our patrons and we appreciate how much the right shaping means to beautiful hair

HEARD UNDER THE DRYER

A good definition of a suburbanite is, a man who hires someone to mow the lawn so he can go play golf for exercise

BEXLEY-All three third-grade classes of Montrose Elementary School turned back the clock to the early 19th century at Adena, near Chillicothe, and back almost 100 years before the birth of Christ as they visited Mound City, the prehistoric Indian burial mounds, Wednesday, Oct. 24. Because there is no history of Ohio written for third-graders, the third grade teachers, in 1970 wrote their own mimeographed history of the state. This summer teachers Carol Marcy, Linda Klein, Carolyn Retzloff, and Kelley White revised the 150-page booklet. It has eight units, from the Ice Age to the history of Bexley. The classes were studying the Mound Builders of Ohio when they made their trip. In the picture above, the group enters Adena, the home of Thomas Worthington, the sixth governor of Ohio at the time when Ohio's capital was at Chillicothe.

ADENA GUIDE Mrs. Harrison speaks to the group in the Adena entrance hall before they start their tour of the 26-room mansion. She told them that the woodwork and flooring are all the original but that all of the glass in doors or windows are modern copies of the wavy glass of the early 1800s. She explained that the front door is extra wide because it had to be big enough for people to carry coffins in and out as funerals in those days were held in the homes. (Photos by Elsie V. Weaver)

Third Graders' Trip Spans 1800 Years Of History

AFTER SEEING the master bedroom with its canopied bed, one of Mrs. Worthington's dresses, and the christening dress for the 10 Worthington children, they visited the dining room where famous people of the day were sometimes served. Daniel Webster, Henry Clay and his wife, James Madison and Edward Tiffin, the first governor of Ohio and Worthington's brother-in-law were among the visitors. But the kitchen, with its wealth of gadgets and utensils fascinated the children most of all. Mrs. Harrison speaks of the cone of white sugar, a very expensive item in the early 1800s, a "sugar-snipper" which cut the sugar into pieces and which is the object resembling a key; butter molds; and other wooden utensils. In the rear of the room is Mrs. Carol Marcy, one of the teachers. On the wall hang a wild turkey, seen here, and also a squirrel and wild duck, some of the meat the people of those days shot and ate.

LINDA LUCKS, left, Montrose principal, relaxes at the top of a hill while students come up from the barn, recently built in the manner of early 19th century barns of the area. The group then left for Mound City where they climbed to the top of some of the 23 burial mounds of 1730 to 1800 years ago. They also studied exhibits of excavations that have been made in the mounds. They returned home with new respect for the early Ohio residents and the even earlier Ohioans who learned to cope with the Ohio wilderness long before recorded history.

Jesse Owens JAJYC Banquet Speaker

Jesse Owens will address the 2nd Annual Benefit Banquet of the J. Ashburn Jr. Youth Center, Inc., Saturday, November 10 at 6 p.m., at Imperial Arlington, 1335 Dublin Rd.

Former Olympic champion and holder of four Gold Medals, Owens is considered by many sports experts to be the greatest track and field star of the half century.

Owens is currently making public appearances on behalf of and conducting speaking engagements before youth groups, civic meetings, PTA's, sports banquets and delivering commencement addresses at various schools and colleges throughout the country.

The JAJYC, sponsor of the benefit banquet is located in the Oakley Baptist Church, 64 South Highland Avenue and is a youth services agency established in an area containing approximately 2500 young people. The center, funded under the Safe Streets Act of the Federal Government, and with a professionally trained staff to carry on a social service program, attempts to help meet the growing and vital needs of the Hilltop youth in their growth and development processes.

It is the purpose of this program to help individuals to become self-determining, self-sufficient, creative persons better able to participate in and contribute to our American culture and our democratic society.

The Center continues to serve the Hilltop community based on service for the prevention of juvenile delinquency, believing that the best way to control delinquency is to prevent it by providing youth with opportunities to use their leisure time creatively, thereby helping them to become constructive participants and contributors to their growing complex world. We believe our program will help produce better people, and we hold that only better people can make better communities."

Donation for the banquet is $10.

Wear White After Dark Makes Common Sense

"Driving at night demands extra caution from motorists--and also cooperation on the part of pedestrians," said J. David Ryan, General Manager of the Columbus Automobile Club, pointing out that more fatal pedestrian accidents occur in winter months because of th- longer period of hours of darkness. To highlight this point, AAA is distributing the award-winning safety poster design drawn by Maria Miranda, age 7, a second grade student at St. Joseph's School in Norwich, Connecticut.

"The poster helps explain why wearing white after dark is so important, continued Mr. Ryan. "Although pedestrians are aware of automobiles because of their headlights, the situation is entirely reversed for the motorist. However, the pedestrian can aid drivers and in turn greatly enhancehis own safety by wearing white or light-colored garments.

White clothing or material provides a sharp contrast against darkness. It is also a good idea to carry a flashlight or white object, such as a newspaper. However, one of the best ways to reduce your 'invisibility' is by wearing the highly illuminating retro-reflective materials now available.

These are the same materials used to produce highway and street signs which 'light up' in approaching headlights. This lifesaving material can be used in many ways toprotect pedestrians and cyclists after dark."

Ryan emphasized that twilight is an especially hazardous time and calls for extra caution. "Remember--it is the responsibility of the pedestrian to 'advertize' his presence. Anything that will increase your visibility should be worn or carried at night. You must be seen to be safe at night in traffic," reminded the AAA spokesman.

Spring Beauty Depends On How You Plant Now

A small investment of your time and effort this time of year can pay off in a continuous array of color and beauty throughout your landscape from next early spring through late fall.

This is the time to begin thinking about planting the bulbs that will brighten your world a few months from now.

There is a wide variety available for rock gardens, groupings, around trees, along slopes, forming borders, or as part of your formal garden combined with other plantings.

Your selection will depend on a number of factors. Some varieties of bulbs will bloom in early spring, others in the summer or fall; some require plenty of sunlight while others thrive in partially shaded areas.

It is a good idea to plan your plantings before purchasing the bulbs, considering such things as soil drainage, sunlight, the amount of space available, the height of plants desired, the colors, textures, and blooming times.

It is wise to buy from a reputable dealer who can give you an idea of varieties and prices from his catalogs or from his stock, and provide advice as you require.

The American Association of Nurserymen offers some tips to guide you on your planting.

They suggest you space the bulbs about three to six inches apart (depending on the size of the bulb and the size of the plant). Close spacing of flowers can result in under-development and could require replanting later.

Prepare the soil by spading eight to ten inches deep, breaking it up and mixing it thoroughly with peat moss or other organic matter and lime.

Bone meal and wood ashes, or other appropriate fertilizer, can also be mixed in the soil in the amounts recommended by your garden center.

Put a few inches of finely sifted soil in each of the holes so that bulbs will rest at the proper depth for the particular bulb. Place the bulbs in the holes with the root disc on the bottom, then fill the hole with the prepared soil, packing firmly and leaving a slight mound to compensate for settling.

In areas of the country where winters are sever, it is wise to protect the bulbs with a mulch of shredded bark, straw, hay, evergreen boughs, or other loose organic material piled about four inches deep.

Rabbit, Quail Populations Counted By Mail Carriers

A SURVEY conducted by Ohio's rural mail carriers for the Ohio Department of Natural Resources' divisionof wildlife indicates the state's rabbit and quail populations are up slightly from last year while the pheasant population is down.

According to the survey results, both the rabbit and quail populations are up nine per cent and the pheasant population is down nearly 12 per cent.

Ohio's rabbit, quail and pheasant seasons open November 15.

Each April and August, rural mail carriers conduct a survey of game animals convering nearly 700,000 miles of Ohio roads during each survey period.

These mail carriers perform a valuable service by collecting information that helps determine trends of game animal populations," said Dan C. Aebischer, chief of the division of wildlife.

"We couldn't hope to collect this volume of data with our limited manpower," he said.

THE MAIL carriers count the number of game species seen for 12 working days during each two-week survey period and record the number of miles traveled on their route. The informationis forwarded to the division of wildlife headquarters in Columbus where itis plotted on a chart and compared to the data from previous years. From this chart, wildlife experts determine the annual population trent of the various species.

"The information collected in April gives us an estimate of the spring breeding populatin trend," said Armbruster. "In August the survey is conducted to determine annual reproductive success."

The population trend can be used to determine areasin Ohio with high or low densities of game animals. This information is one of the tools used to determine hunting season regulations.

IN AUGUST of this year, 959 rural mail carriers participated in the survey, traveling 701,000 miles for the 12-day period. Since the beginning of the survey in 1958, rural mail carriers have logged 21.1 million miles durng the survey peiods.

4-H Offers Year Round Activities

MANY BOYS and girls find 4-H a year-round activity. Seasons have little or no bearing on most projects, and many activities go on rain or shine, in warm weather and in cold.

For example, Duane Lau, assistant state leader, 4-H, in the Cooperative Extension Service at The Ohio State University, calls attention to the recent National 4-H Dairy Judging Contest.

Although many dairy project activities seem geared to county and state fairs, which tend to come during the summer and early fall, others continue through the winter.

The judging contest early in October at the Ohio State Fairgrounds attracted 4-H judging teams from 34 states.

For those members who are most outstanding in their projects and activities, the year's efforts are capped by a trip to the Nationa 4-H Congress in Chicago near the end of November. But, even for those, the year's 4-H world continues, as it does for others, with new projects.

4-H'ers in Ohio may choose from ore than 170 projects. Some of the more popular areas in project work are clothing, crops and gardens, engineering, food and nutrition, and livestock.

In engineering, for example, youngsters may work on electrical projects, tractor or auto projects, small engines, lawn mower safety, and woodworking. And in each of these, members have a choice of severa l different project variations.

The other areas of interst may be broken down in similar fashion. The point of it all is, according to Lau, that 4-H has a variety of constructive, interesting projects, all designed to provide "learning-by-doing" practical experience, so that every boy or girl who wants to get such an experience may do so.

Those interested in learning about the opportunities in 4-H in their communities should call or visit their County Extension Office.

Better Prepared Teachers Is Taproot For Excellence

A REDESIGN of Ohio teacher education was initiated this week at a conference described by Superintendent of Public Instruction Martin W. Essex as "rivaling the historic significance of Horace Mann's concept of grammer schools for all American youth."

Armed with the consensus of over 125,000 Ohioans who participated in the nation's most massive search for educational priorities, Essex told the Teacher Education Redesign Conference "the citizens of Ohio have identified clearly the taproot for excellence in education--better prepared teachers."

THE CONFERNECE, which was called by the State Department of Education, drew over 100 representatives from Ohio's 53 colleges and universities which prepare teachers.

"Conditions are optimum," Essex said, noting the vastly improved supply of teachers in virtually all subject areas, "to switch from the numbers game played in teacher education during the past 30 years, and start perfecting professional teacher quality for the hard responsibility of educating everyone to their highest potential."

"SUFFICIENT study and ample research has already been done," Essex explained. "The task at hand is to set forth in clearly defined terms the standards which colleges and universities must meet if they desire to continue preparing teachers."

John R. Meckstroth, president of the State Board of Education, told the conference delegates, "We need your best thinking and considered judgement. While the legal responsibility for teacher education rests clearly and appropriately with the elected State Board of Education, you may be assured that the continued exercise of this responsibility will be done with due recognition of the knowledge which only people such as yourselves can make."

REFORM in teacher education, Essex acknowledged, "will lead to the sharpest kind of confrontations." But, he emphasized, "We are prepared to meet with every interested individual, group or organization in Ohio during the next three months to draft those teacher education standards which will get the job done."

THE BIGGEST challenges in teacher education reform, according to the state's chief school administrator, are to provide:

Earlier and more frequent experiences in Ohio's rural, suburban and urban elementary and secodndary schools for all college students desiring to be teachers. Abilities in motivating children and establishing a rapport with pupils, Essex claimed, can only be assessed in the actual classroom. Furthermore, he contends, college students should have ample time early in their college careers to decide if teaching is for them.

Extensive clinical work to prepare future teachers with the skills to diagnose individual pupil learning factors and to prescribe appropriate learning experiences.

DEVELOP the body of knowledge in professional education into a balanced, consecutive series of college courses "that will not only make sense to future teachers but make a difference in how they teach."

Certification of progessors who prepare teachers to assure the appropriateness of their preparation and adequacy of their teaching experience. "Until an indivudual has demonstrated outstanding competence as a classroom teacher," Essex said, "he has no business teaching teachers."

ACADEMIC rigor in the general education of elementary teachers. Every elementary teacher, Essex said, "should have sufficient mastery in at least one of the major academic disciplines to be at ease with other scholars."

Requiring experience and proven competence of all teachers in teaching of reading. "regardless of the subject taught," Essex claimed, "every teacher shall be prepared to become a teacher of reading and to have proven experience as to competence."

REQUIRING all new teachers to serve at least one year in a closely supervised internship under a special one year limited certificate. The cardinal factor in converting that initial certificate into a standard four-year credential, Essex said, shall be based on demonstrated classroom perrformance.

Improved funding for teacher education. Essex called for a 50 percent increase in state dollars for teacher education at Ohio's 12 state-supported universities, which prepare 75 percent of all new teachers in Ohio each year.

TEACHING is the only profession currently funded by the Board of Regents at the level of $1,171 per student, while students in such areas as agriculture, journalism, nursing and social work are subsidized at $1,680 per student, he stated. Teaching is the mother of all professions and it warrants equal funding. The new design will require clinical and field supervision which cannot be accomplished at the lower rate.

Dr. G. Robert Bowers, assistant superintendent for instruction in the State Department of Education, explained to the conferees plans to obtain suggestions on redesign during the next three months from all interested individuals, groups ad organizations throughout the state.

Robert O. Greer, the nation's first assistant state superintendent for urban education, presented concerns about teacher education for Ohio's eight major metropolitan areas--more than any state, except California.

"IN PIECE-MEAL fashion," Greer told the conference, "you have been asked to teach Swahali to the prospective black teacher while at the same time continuing the mis-education of white teacher candidates under traditional methodology."

"Black history for black teacher trainees only leaves us in the same vacuum of misunderstanding as when we started," Greer added.

THE RESULTS of the Search of Consensus regarding teacher preparation were presented by Dr. Frakniin B. Walter, deputy superintendent. "Each of the major issues on teacher education redesign were resoundingly called for by the citizen participants," Walter said.

The Search for Consensus was a statewide effort, beginning with local school district meetings and culminating in a state conference this spring, to determine the people's attitudes and ideas toward education. Over 125,000 Ohioans participated.

SUPPORT for the redesign of teacher education was also voiced by Dr. Paul R. Hailey, director of the State Department's Division of Teacher Education and Certification.

Hailey summarized the findings of ten comprehensive team evaluations of colleges of education last year. "The evaluation teams found far more weaknesses than strengths," he said, "in the preparation of teachers according to the present standards."

MAVERICK

WITH MUDDY SHOES

A NEW JEWEL in the crown of outdoor Ohio is Shawnee State Lodge, just west of Portsmouth and part of a 58,000-acre forest preserve. I spent last week at the lodge, dining and fishing with the fall meeting participants of the Outdoor Writers of Ohio.

As always, meeting with fellow writers and passing around the gossip is a highlight in my life. Missing this year was the smiling face of Jim Light of Greenville. Jim usually wound up as my alter ego in the other end of the boat or, in case of rain, my gin rummy partner.

Jim put his typewritter and fishing rod away this past June and went to rest. With him, a sizeable piece of my memories went along.

THERE WAS the time at Fontana Dam, North Carolina when Jim and I were fishing for some fabled smallmouth at the base of a water fall. Having placed his lure in just the right spot, Jim started to set the hook when the bass had other ideas and spit the hook all of twenty feet, right into my lap. Needless to say, we laughed much too much to continue fishing for a while.

Then I remember when Jim decided he would beat me at gin rummy no matter how long it took. We had been invited, along with thirty other writers, on a bus trip to Florence, Alabama where, it was reported, our hosts had some bass tied to a tree waiting for us.

THE BUS TRIP was 13 hours long. We played gin every wheel-turn of the way and when we arrived in Jor Wheeler State Park, I was a very few points ahead. On the return trip, we played again. Arriving back here in Columbus, Jim was just two points ahead after 26 hours of gin rummy. We never matched that marathon and never will. Jim could out fish me and easily out shoot me. He was traditionally the best trap shooter in Darke County, the birthplace of Annie Oakly.

He did a twice weekly outdoor column in the Greenville Advocate as his father' before him had done and now I understand his son will take over.

TO THE PEOPLE who stomped and spit with Jim, there was nothing like him. I only hope the clay birds, the deer and the bass aren't too elusive where Jim now tramps. We mortal outdoorsmen lost a great friend.

AAA Offers Parents Safe Driving Tips

Children should walk to school whenever possible, but when they must be driven, here are some safety suggestions for the parent drivers from J. David Ryan, General Manager of the Columbus Auto Club-AAA.

Pool rides with other parents to reduce traffic congestion in the area near the school.

Never double park or stop too near a crosswalk; this creates dangers for walking children and hampers the school patrols.

Always load and unload children on the school side of the street.

Check with school officials about a special schedule for children who ride and a designated area for picking up and discharging them. If no provisions are made, then set your schedule based on your own observations and conclusions.

Do not discipline children en route to school. If they get too rowdy and must be corrected, stop the car first. Remember you are driving into an area of heavy pedestrian traffic.

In urging that children walk to school, the AAA official notes that the safety record shows that children walking to class are about as well protected as they ever are, and adds:

"The children also benefit from the daily experience in traffic which helps teach self-reliance and judgement in meeting everyday situations."

Where Rain Has Lain You Mainly Hydroplane

YOUR CAR'S wheels can actually "float" clear of the surface of a wet road, depriving you simultaneously of traction and steering ability.

This phenomenon, known as "hydroplaning", occurswhen the water cannot get outof the way of the tire as fast as the tire is moving forward.

Traveling just over 50 miles per hour upon as little as a quarter-inch of survace water-depth, your tires are completely clear off and above the road.

Underinflated tires, treads worn almost smooth, can actually start y ou hydroplaning at extremely low speeds in as little as one-tenth of an inch of water on the road surface!

"If you attempt to brake at such a time, or go around a curve in the road," says Don Costa, safety firector of the Allstate Motor Club, "your tires have nothing to grip but water and that water isn't gripping the road so you continue to move straight onward."

THE DANGER, Costa goes on, is always present when roads are wet or slushy. In fact, if you can see the tracks of the car ahead of you in the water-you have mor than enough water-surface of which to hydroplane.

For all the traction you have, your car might as well be riding on water skis-which operate, by the way, on the hydroplaning principle, too.

The forward motion of the skier keeps him from sinking to the bottom in the same manner as the forward motion of the tires keeps them from sinking to the road.

Obviously, in an emergency situation, you would be sunk. So Costa suggests, if you find yourself driving on wet pavement:

1. Do not exceed tow-thirds of the posted speed limit--and in no event drive faster than 50 miles per hour.

2. Allow extra distance for stopping, and behind another vehicle maintain an even greater following distance than would be necessary on dry roads to avoid rear-ending the other car.

3. Try to drive directly in the tracks left by the car in front of you, where partly dispersed water has not yet had a chance to flow back, thus lessening the depth you'll ride over.

4. If possible, avoid any really deep water andpuddles, where hydroplaning can occur at even extremely low speeds.

5. If you have had to pass through deep water, check you brakes immediately afterward. Deep water can soak and limit the effectiveness of the brakes. To dry them, slow down by letting up on the accelerator, and--first making certain there is no one following too closely who might be alarmed by the brake lights--pump the brake pedal gently and repeatedly, being careful not to throw the car into a skid. until they grip without slipping.

"Remember," Costa concludes, "when your tires are treading water, their treads arem't gripping the road."

Lawn Care Must Be Remembered

..We're only a grass clipping or two away from winter, and with football games and whatever taking more of our weekends, we're prone to forget the lawn.

..Don't do it! It's very important to keep your grass mowed and at the proper height untill snow flies.

..A lot of people will argue about finishing up with a short mowing or a tall mowing going into the winter. Short mowing deprives roots of some natural protection and chlorophyll feeding. Tall mowing or leaving the grass too tall results in matting and a potential disease problem.

..The best practice is to continue mowing your grass at the same height – 2 to 2½ inches on bluegrasses. So, mow your grass regularly and at the proper height untill cold weather forces it into dormancy.

..Also, leaves should be raked before they accumulate because they can smother grass, especially during wet weather. Disease formation is also favored under wet leaves.

..Did yourknow that more maintenance is required for flowers on a square foot basis than any other garden plant? Still, flowers are normally the most desired plant in the landscape because of color.

..Those with low maintenance requirements, but still effective are daffodils, iris, peonies, daylilies, tall summer phlox, and hardy chrysanthemums. These can provide spots of color without much work.

..Most flowers or bulbs must be planted, cultivated, irrigated, divided, dug, stored, replanted, and pest-controlled. With careful selection of flowering ground covers, shrubs, and trees, spring and summer blooms are possible without the high maintenance required by annual and perennial flowers.

..Give these tips careful thought, weighing time requirements of plants you would like to grow with the tome you have to spend on them.

THE FALL SEASON is now back to normal and slowly the Polliwogs and Turtles are showing up for swim classes at the Jewish Center indoor pool.

The Aqua-Cise group met on Tuesday morning and we began to groan our way back in shape. Yours truly has laid off too long and after one week of back to the routine I wonder if the Ingrams can ever forgive me for falling asleep soon after dinner. Aqua-Cise is the only answer for those of us who take a vacation from regular daily workouts. We start on Tuesday morning at 10:30 a.m. and walk, run, flex, stretch and bend the arms and legs. Then we rotate the joints, do a few ballet legs, tread water, bob up and down and end up by swimming as many laps of the pool as we can in the time left. Even if you can't swim we could help you to learn of if you're a good swimmer we try and pace you a bit. Those persons who have already started to Aqua-Cise are: Lynne Ross, Nancy Ryzenman, Carol Meckler, Florence Furman and Blanche Dantzer who just comes in to swim her half-mile.

TORPEDO SWIM TEAM of the Jewish Center met with the Hilltop Y on Sunday, November 4th at 2 p.m. The meet was the first of this Fall session and was held at the East Side Y pool. We didn't keep score but rather noted the times of each swimmer so that the individual can begin to measure his own improvement.

Warrior Wrap-up
By Mike Brennan

THE DEMOCRATIC process is alive and well at Eastmoor High School. The election of senior class officers began last week with the runoff elections for president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer. Aspiring candidates filed a list of twenty signatures for their nomination with activities coordinator, Carol Griner. Then, on Friday, Nov. 2, the senior class narrowed the field down to two candidates in each catagory.

Vigorous campaigns will be waged throughout the week, and will climax in a senior class election on Friday. The newly elected officers will be responsible for planning and financing of senior activities, such as the senior dinner, the breakfast, etc.

STUDENT COUNCIL is duscussing a proposal to invite senior citizens from the Eastmoor area to attend school drama productions and activities. As proposed by Principal Charles Meyers, this would include any school-sponsored community event. Student Council secretary Sharon Towns explained, "We would invite them and provide transportation to and from the play or game."

Student Council is considering many programs, but may be forced to reject some of them because of a lack of money. Last month's Homecoming left the governing body's treasury sadly depleted. They hope tomake up this deficit with a T-shirt sale. Sharon said, "We'll probably have two designs, and a choice of a regular T-shirt or a tank top." The shirts should go on sale later this month.

IN OTHER COUNCIL action, senior Eric Farrel was chosen to represent Eastmoor at the new Student Interest Meetings. The meetings will serve as an opportunity for representatives from Columbus high schools to meet and discuss problems relevant to all students. The meetings will be held on a regular basis, possibly monthly. The first meeting is tentatively set for mid-November.

THE DRAMATICS department will present William W. Pratt's play, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," November 16 and 17. The leads have been chosen, and Masquer President Mike Feinstein stated that it will be an "interesting" performance.

Support Of Summer Olympics Appreciated

MRS. HERB GREFF, left, and Sandra Greenberg, center, accept a plaque from Jed Morrison, coordinator of Physical Education and Recreation for the Franklin County Program for the Mentally Retarded. The award was presented Oct. 9 to show appreciation for the financial backing given the program by Arc 13 (Aid Retarded Children), of which Sandra Greenberg acts as president and Mrs. Greff coupon book sales chairman.

East Columbus–ARC 13 received special recognition Tuesday, Oct. 9 when they were presented with a plaque in appreciation of their donation to the Summer Olympics program.

"The generous donation of $1100 covered the entry fee for all of our youngsters who were involved in the Track and Field events in June", stated Jed Morrison, coordinator of Physical Education and Recreation for the Franklin County Program for the Mentally Retarded.

Sandra Greenbert, current president of the ARC and Mrs. Herb Greff, Entertainment '73 coupon book sales chairman, accepted the plaque on behalf of the 17 member group. It was through the sale of the coupon book, currently being repeated, that this revenue was obtained.

About 250 Franklin County youngsters participated in this program in June. Without the funds from ARC 13 their participation would not have been possible.

The Special Olympics is a program that was developed in 1968 by the Kennedy Foundation, to provide athletic training and competition for the mentally retarded.

Through training and participation in the Special Olympics the athletes learn self-confidence, develop a positive self-image, and become more physically fit, which in turn will improve their performance in the classroom, at home and eventually for many, on the job.

A New Face For Fall

'IN' fashion

with Tess Stern

ESTEE LAUDER'S face for Fall calls for a very structured, sound face...well designed to make the most of natural assets.

"ARCHITECTURALLY STRUCTURED" face begins with a good foundation...Country Beige Mist Liquid Makeup.

TAWNY TAN Face and Cheek Tint is applied in the hollows of the cheek area in triangle shape.

FOR ALL YOU KNOW, you may be walking around with last season's face. Styles in faces change along with the new clothes...and now that fall fashions are in full swing, it's time to ready your face for the new season.

During the weeklong Estee Lauder cosmetic presentation at Lazarus...Kathleen Landry, charming and knowledgeable representative (with a flawless complexion, naturally) filled me in on "what's new" in the art of make-up. According to Estee Lauder predictions...it's the "All Together Look" for fall.

"There's a whole new way of looking at your face,. Your whole face...not just your eyes, your cheeks, your lips...how each feature relates to the other. The idea is to pull your features together with makeup and know-how...to look all-together and 'now'. First, examine your face closely. Think of it in a way you probably never thought of it before...as an organized construction of triangles that all relate to each other. Then think of how you can pull these triangles together with color like Bronze Sparkle on lips, Russet Bronze Rouge on cheeks, and Curry-Copper on the eye area. Looking at your face this way, as a system of triangles, you'll be able to do other beautiful things too...like bring out your cheekbones, and the area between your eyes (which is the area of expression) in fact, bring out the whole natural construction of your face."

ESTEE LAUDER'S "architecturally structured" face begins with a good foundation. Since she believes that "glow is the most important thing for your face" she starts with Country Mist Liquid Make-up...a new colored moisture base that leaves the skin polished, dewy and country fresh. The heightened glow at cheeks and hairline comes from Face and Cheek Tint. To color the lips there's exciting new russet and coppery lip shades. The eyes are made fascinating with combinations of color...24 possibilities are available with two-tone Eye Color Sticks.

To bring fall fashion right to your fingertips, Estee Lauder has created the new Painted Desert Colors in Lustrous Nail Lacquer...tawny shades to perfectly compliment the "browned" tones in fall fashion.

LAST BUT NOT least...as a final touch, there's fragrance. The newest, Estee's Super Perfume "ALIAGE" is meant to be worn every day...to make you feel clean, fresh and vibrant no matter what the occasion!

'ON SCHEDULE' is the good word from J.C. Penney Co. officials regarding the new J.C. Penney Co. catalog distribution center being constructed in the triangle of I-270 and I-70, Brice Road and the Penn-Central Railroad. Although bad weather early in 1973, a structural steel shortage and a local concrete strike all occured within weeks, the basic construction of the center is on schedule and completion is expected in late summer of 1974. The spread out one-story building is set on the 150 acre tract. Eventually the center will employ about 2,000 fulltime employes with peak periods experienceing a 1,000 jump to 3,000. A tennis center is also being constructed adjacent to that sight and other satellite businesses and industries are expected to completely fill the area west of the development.

Get something good out of your old battery.
If your car's battery has been in service three years or more, it's time to see one of the Delco dealers listed on this page. First, he'll check your old battery for signs of age like leaks and loose terminal posts.
Then, if it cannot be serviced and it needs replacement, he'll make you an offer — and let you trade in your old battery on a new Delco Energizer. Select either a conventional top post model or our sealed terminal design with connections on the side.
Both are vacuum sealed for freshness. And all Delco batteries are built to give that big burst of starting power. Even in extremes of heat or cold.
Get your battery checked today. And trade it in before it lets you down.

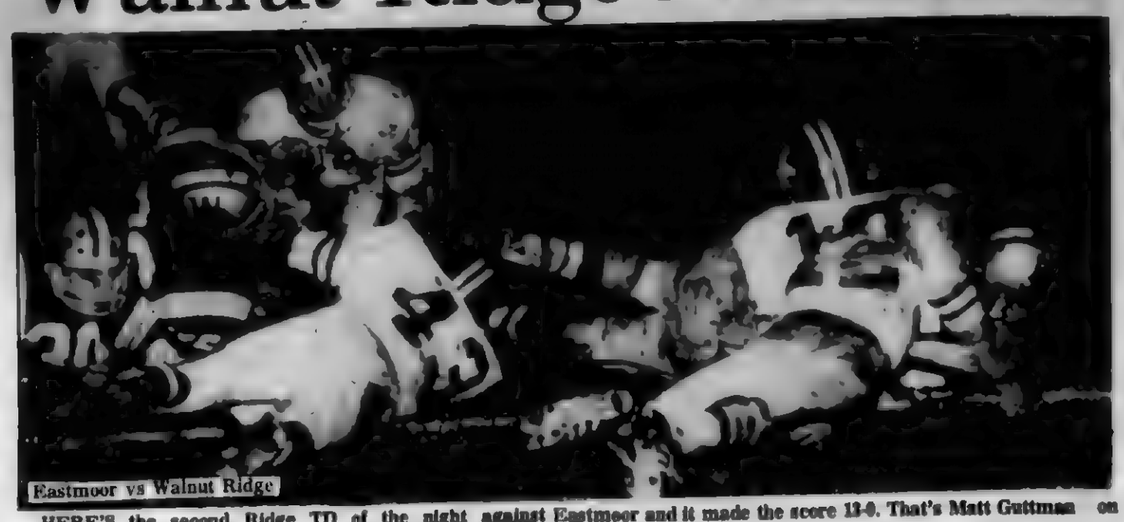
Walnut Ridge-Northland Replay 1972 Title Match



Eastmoor vs Walnut Ridge

..HERE'S the second Ridge TD of the night against Eastmoor and it made the score 13-0. That's Matt Guttman on the ground over the goal line.

Eastmoor vs Walnut Ridge

AFTER AN Eastmoor goal line stand - they stopped the Scots on a 4th down and goal situation - the Eastmoor offense took over and here, Ray Griffin (44) scampered for four yards.

Gahanna Repeats In OCC) Watterson Is CCL Champ

By Sandy Schwartz
Spectator Sports Writer

IT WAS A rainy day in November last year when Northland outsludged Walnut Ridge for the City League Football Championship. And it was a hot muggy day in August when Walnut Ridge grid mentor Vince Cahill told the SPECTATOR, "The conditions that we played Northland under last year in the City Championship game were just awful, mud everywhere, but we aren't making excuses, we'd just like to get back there this year."

Well the Scotsmen did just that last week in popping Eastmoor 27-0 in earning the berth via a co-championship with Eastmoor in Saturday's 10 a.m. showdown at Walnut Ridge.

And even better than getting a return ticket to the "City League Super Bowl" the defense-oriented Scots meet that same foe of a year ago, Northland.

DON'T THINK some revenge won't be on the line there.

It should be some incentive playing the team that shutout these tough Scoties who have now matured into the tightest defense in town under defensive coach Jack Stephenson.

Twenty two points the tough Scot defense has limited their luckless oponents as Eastmoor found out last week.

AND FEW probably realize that there is more dimension to this Walnut Ridge eleven than all-state linebacker candidate Steve Winslow and his defending dandys. Gary Gioia commands this smooth Scot wishbone which churned Eastmoor for 251 yards.

Matt Guttman has led with power for this wishboning success while Gioia likes to find wide receiver Bob Bardelang open to break the ground-gathering monotony. Terry Logan, Pete Bickel, George Snyder and Jeff Stace compliment Guttman admirably in the backfield.

AND WHILE all you Ridge Rooters are marveling over those offensive fireworks don't forget strong-toed Bickel and his accurate field goaling ability.

Yes, it should be some matchup for Coach Cahill and his successful footballers whose primary nemisis could conceivingly be Viking fullback John Giroux. Giroux blends his power running with some fine option passing not to mention his punting strength. And you really never know what Northland veteran coach Frank Howe has up his razzle-dazzle sleeve.

IN ANOTHER headliner that could possible suprise a few people St. Charles daring Cardinals challenge Watterson Saturday night at Whetstone. The Charleys feature backfield ace Dave Heilman who scored five times in one game while Watterson will try to counter with defensive end meanie Scott Brindgardner and passing wonder Dean Dixon.

Other action dotting the calendar this weekend has Reynoldsburg at Hartley and Grove City at Westland while St. Paris Graham and Ready tangle at West and DeSales travels to Franklin Heights all in non-leaguers.

IN OTHER action last week Gahanna tackled Delaware 27-3 to earn its second straight Ohio Capital Conference Championship.

Other OCC action saw the second place Worthington Cardinals thump Reynoldsburg 33-8 behind TD power of John Madry, Tom Atha, Dave Alban, Gary Chambers and Guy Collison, two Tim Crandell TD passes included.

In the other OCC affair Rick Robinson romped for three scores to lead Whitehall to a 27-0 thrashing of Westland. Mt. Vernon surprised Westerville, 28-6.

Watterson clinched the Central Catholic League Crown one more time with a 28-6 decision of Hartley. Jim Grimm sprinted three times to paydirt to lead the barrage.

IN A PAIR of non-leaguers involving City League teams East and Dayton Dunbar battled to a scoreless tie and West bombed Ready 22-0 behind a couple of Ron Williams six-pointers.

Senior halfback John Bernlohr bolted for two RDs in Bexley's 18-6 whomping of London and Franklin Heights running star Gary Jones took over the county's scoring lead with three scores in a 26-0 Heights blanking of Marysville.

Jim Casse ran for three TDs in closing out his Academy career in a 36-20 win over Lucas.

Note-Ables At Ramada North

The Note Ables are the current attraction at the always swinging Ramada Inn-North. I can't think of a better name for these four men. Wait until you hear their music, you won't forget it.

The quartet is comprised of talented musicians, who double on several instruments. Several of their arrangements consists of three trumpet parts. What a brass section that's offered to you. It has been a few days since I reviewed the act, and I can still hear those tremendous trumpets. All three men produce some mighty fine sounds.

To give you a change, the group may select an arrangement consisting of two trombones and one trumpet, two trumpets and one trombone, or two horns along with organ and piano.

There is always a different sound. You just don't get tired of hearing the Note-Ables.

Even if they never sang a note, this would be true. But, believe it or not, they come across with some really good vocal renditions, both in the solo department as well as in the harmony area.

Leader of the Note-Ables is Blaine O'Bray. Blaine plays trmpet, trombone, bass and sings all of which he does with plenty of command and assurance. He, like all the rest, are as much entertainers as they are musicians.

Another young man in the outfit is Don Buchanan. Besides playing some sweet sounds on the various brass horns, Don keeps your attention with his vocal works. Owning a well modulated voice, Don is able to keep up the excitement and enchantment offered by the Note-Ables. No question, he is a fine singer.

Keyboard man, plus being a fine trumpet is Tommy Hiatt. Tommy handles both the organ and electric piano. He seldom plays just one instrument. Most of the time is playing at least two, and sometimes he may play the bass pedals on the organ, the black and whites on the electric piano, and join in some trumpet harmonies with the other members of the quartet.

Keeping the rythym department strong and solid is Jai Allan. In addition to his duties with the sticks and brushes, Jai does a rather nice job in the singing arena.

Listening to the Note-Ables is more like listening to a full orchestra, rather than a quartet. They are very sure footed in their presentations. After hearing them for an hour or so, you will realize that you are hearing four men who are out to entertain you in the highest fashion by offering you pure talent.

Their musical library runs the gamut of today's and yesterday's music. If you are in your twenties, or in your fifties, you will enjoy their musical selections and their treatment of the same. They have achieved a sensable blend of the old and new, both in style and selections.

You'll find the Note-Ables at the Ramada Inn-North, Tuesday through Sunday. Take my advice and don't miss this one.

Funtastic Family At Holiday-OSU

The Funtastic Family is the new group that opened this past Mohday night in the University Lounge, on the eleventh floor of the new Holiday Inn-OSU. The trio is made up of Father, Bud Mercer, his son, Russ and his daughter, Linda. So you see it is actually a family organization. The Funtastic part of their name is derived from the fact, that they are a FUN group.

Bud plays bass and sings. He also dips back into his younger days of show biz when he was a song-and-dance-man with his brother. Known as the Mercer Brothers, Bud is continuing to gives his audiences dancing impressions of Ray Bolger, Fred Astaire and other famous dancers.

Actually, besides a fine musical group, you are presented a mini night club review in the University Lounge of the Holiday Inn - OSU.

Son Russ plays guitar, sings and sends out some exciting banjo renditions in the true Eddie Peabody manner.

Pretty daughter Linda provides the rythym section with her rythmical beats that sets your toe to tappin', along with turning in some nice work in the vocal department.

While I have not yet seen this group in person, they have been highly touted to me by several people in the business. No, not by the management of the Holiday Inn. So, come along with me, and let's catch the Funtastic Family one night this week. It does sound like a darn good, entertaining, show group.

Skipping Around Town

Caught that sexy Jo Kiser at the Lincoln Lodge the other night. Believe me, she's as talented and sharp looking as ever. Jo had a full house the night I was there, which is not unusual for this high powered performer. She is one of the mightiest single lounge acts in the business...Speaking of the ILodge, Bobby Bresch is back as bar manager. Welcome back home Bobby. Here is great news for all of his followers, Bob Singer is back working on the west side again. After a few years at the Jai Lai, Bob Singer is now at Bobby D's on West Broat St., in NewRome. Bob is still the best professional bar tender in Columbus. After all, he probably has more years of service behind the bar than any other man. Stop out and say Hi to Bob...Enjoyed another good Seafood Buffet at Ramada Inn South. Dropped in unannounced, and enjoyed every bit of it. After getting over their first two weeks of a couple of the items not being too hot, they now have all of their problems take care of...Ray Lucky and his review are back at the swinging Rodeway Inn Motel. Ray has one of the best show groups in the country. Excellent comedy, very fine singing by several members of the troop and the best musical presentations

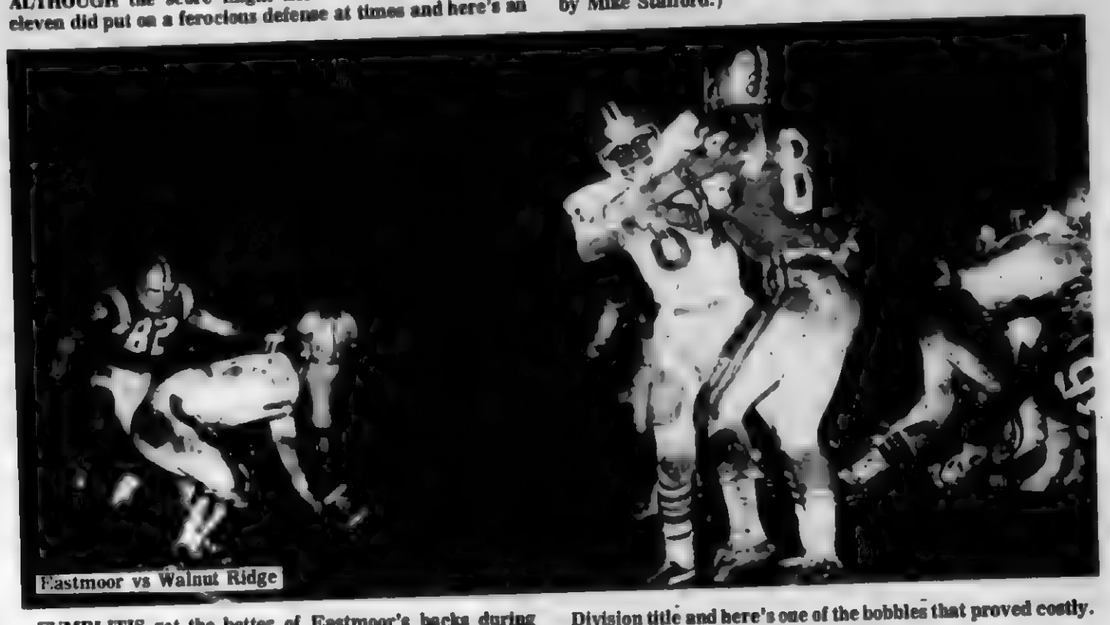
Walnut Ridge Whips Eastmoor

Eastmoor vs Walnut Ridge

ALTHOUGH the score might not show it the Eastmoor eleven did put on a ferocious defense at times and here's an example of their ability in freezing out a Scot runner. (Photos by Mike Stafford.)



Eastmoor vs Walnut Ridge

Kiser Lake Channel Catfish

Kiser Lake has recently produced some good fishing for Channel Catfish. Fairborn anglers Art Winburn and his wife recorded the fish which they caught while camping at the lake.

During six days of fishing they caught; 24 Channel Catfish measuring from 12 to 16 inches, 9 Bluvgills at 7½ and 8 inches, 4 Crappies between 8 and 10 inches, 3 Largemouth Bass from 11 to 16 inches and 1 Walleye at 23½ inches.

The Channel Catfish were caught on nightcrawlers fished on the bottom while the Largemouth Bass were harvested on artificial lures. Suggested baits for Bluegill included wax and red worms with minnows being the best bait for Crappies.

Squirrel Season Draws To A Close On Private Lands

Ohio's nimrods, enjoying another extended squirrel season, are reminded that the season closes on private alnds on Saturday, November 10. On public hunting areas such as Delaware, Big Island, Darby Creek and Deer Creek Wildlife Areas the season extends through Saturday, December 22.

The daily bag limit if sour and a total possession limit of eight in the aggregat of fox and grey squirrels. There is no bag limit on the little red squirrel, known as "fiddler", "mountain Jack", "piney" of "pine squirrel".

This little squirrel may be hunted any time of the year except on Sundays when hunting of game animals is prohibited.

Waterfowl Hunting Quality Increased

Pumping operations are almost complete at the two 75 acre marshes on the Delaware Wildlife and the 400 acre marsh on the Big Island Wildlife Areas to provide resting and feeding grounds for shore birds and migratory waterfowl.

Plantings of buckwheat and other wildlife foods are established prior to flooding to increase the food supply. These plantings create a higher quality habitat for a greater number of birds and will provide a stop-over for many migtatory flights.

Hunting of ducks, geese, coots, snipe, woodcock, gallinules and rails will be permitted from sunrise to noon on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday at these areas. There will be no waterfowl hunting permitted the remainder of the week.

Large concentrations of birds use the areas, but heavy hunting preasure, in the past, has cuased the birds to move on or continue their fall migration prematurely. Controlling the hunting period will increase the hunting quality by allowing flushed birds to return to their particular area.

The season on ducks and coots is now through November 24 and December 26 through January 2, 1974. The geese season is now through December 19 and December 26 through January 2, 1974. The rail and gallinule seasons are open through November 20.

Ohio Employment Services Open New Regional Offices

Jobs for people and people for jobs.

This phrase is what the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services (OBES) is all about. And, to better serve people looking for jobs, OBES is opening Job Service offices in several Columbus communities.

Three new Job Service offices are now available in the North, East and West areas of Columbus, according to OBES Administrator William E. Garnes.

Job Service offices – all conveniently located in shopping centers offer free, complete and efficient employment service assistance to job seekers.

These services include exposure to all listed job openings throughout the Columbus area and referral to selected job orders.

Job Service Interviewers will also develop jobs for applicants when no suitable positions are listed. Job development involves marketing an applicant's skills and talents to appropriate employers.

Applicants using the Job Service offices will benefit from the entire array of employment service resources available at the main office downtown; but, without the time-consuming inconvenience of parking problems, traffic congestion and waiting to see an interviewer.

Job Service is the new Employment Service.

OBES gas streamlined its organization into a dynamic service geared to the needs of the future . . . an organization with ready and available means of providing jobs which match any applicant's capabilities and people for any employer's job requirements.

Jack Warner, Manager of the Northside Office at the Village Center, 2007 East Dublin-Granville Rd., invites job seekers to take advantage of the free placement service available through his office. Stop in or call 888-7112.

New Job Service Offices provide pleasant surroundings for unemployed workers and people looking for different employment. Employers can place job orders with the Job Service by calling 466-2050.

Manager Robert Ward opens the door forjob seekers at 887 South Hamilton Road, phone 237-2550.

Al Baranowski, Manager of the Job Service Office at 3215 West Broad St., stands ready with his staff to assist individuals in securing employment. Office personnel include Thomas O'Day, Betty Scales, Fern Parry, Gladys Rozzelle, and Baranowski. Stop in from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. or call 276-2604.

Bexley Plans To Adopt 'Get Tough' Policy With Violaters Of New Building Maintenance Code

Bexley-Bexley is "putting teeth" into their laws governing the maintenance of homes and apartments in the city and providing penalties for those who do not comply. Third reading was given to the new Building Maintenance Code of the City of Bexley at the regular Bexley Council meeting last night. Passage of the ordinance providing for the code was expected after press time for the Spectator, unless objections from delegates to the meeting could cause its delay.

A City hall spokesman expects the eventual passage of the ordinance even if delayed at this meeting.

The same spokesman says the ordinance is aimed especially at the absentee landlord of rental property, who may live "hundreds of miles away and does not know the condition of his property," or the individual or company who owns single or multiple dwellings in Bexley and who does not check on their condition. This situation has been prevalent for many years, with deterioration setting in and noone officially forced to correct the conditions or penalized for violations of the old code.

THE NEW CODE provides penalties for violations reported to theowner, andnot corrected in a specified time, razing of the structure and even subsequent billing of the owner if the case warrants it.

Purpose

Specifically, and in the words of the new code, the purpose of the code is to "establish minimum standards necessary to make all dwelling structures, safe, sanitary, free from fire and health hazards, and fit for human habitation and beneficial to the public welfare; to establish minimum standards governing the maintenance of dwelling structures in such condition as will not constitute a blighting or deteriorating influence on the neighborhood and the community; to protect property values and to maintain the character and appearance of the community and neighborhoods within the community; to fix responsibilities for owners and occupants of dwelling structures with respect to sanitation, repair and maintenance; to establish additional standards for multiple dwellings, to authorize the inspection of dwelling structures, to establish enforcement procedures, to authorize the vacation or condemnation of dwelling structures unsafe or unfit for human habitation; and to fix penalties for violations."

Articles of the ordinance set up basic standards for residential occupancy and maintenance responsibilities for owners and or occupants of dwellings.

City hall officials are especially anxious that the outside appearance of homes, and commercial buildings alike, be kept up, although there are also regulations aimed at proper maintenance of interior, especially where it concerns plumbing fixtures and infestation by pests.

Columbus Board Affirms Medical Transfer Policy

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

Columbus--The Columbus School Board unanimously reaffirmed its support of a policy which will require the school administration to decline all requests of students for transfers on medical grounds except when extraordinary circumstances exist. This decision was reached by the Board at its Nov. 5 regular meeting.

This policy has been in effect since November of 1972 and the Board feels this is necessary to prevent unwarranted transfers in the Columbus Public Schools.

Columbus Public Schools superintendent Dr. John Ellis explained that the school system honored transfer requests for medical reasons for many years prior to November, 1972, but he added, "At that time it became necessary to terminate the practice because it was leading to greater racial isolation in Columbus Schools."

In other action the Board voted to instruct the City Attorney to appeal a federal court decision concerning the school's suspension policy.

The court had ruled in September that students may not be suspended without a hearing concerning charges against them. The school system has already adopted a policy to require hearings and the policy will be continued but the appeal will be directed towards the language used in the court's decision. The Board termed the language used as too "broad." The appeal stems from the case of Lopez vs. Williams.

Other action in the board's agenda included seeing preliminary drawings for the proposed Refugee-Noe Bixby Elementary School approved. This 6½ acre 600 pupil school is to be located on a tract of land already owned by the board near Refugee and Fleet Roads.

The theme of the school was tabbed as "an atmosphere of learning more than teaching." "Flexibility" was also labeled as a very instrumental tool for the design of the building.

Questions were brought up concerning the proposed school by Board Members Dr.Watson Walker and Dr. David Hamlar.

Walker was concerned about the energy conservation aspect of the school and Hamlar with the location since it will be close to the proposed junior-senior high. After discussion both seemed pleased with assurances that both issues had been thought about and properly planned out while the school was being designed.

The board also approved three amendments to its current contract with the Columbus Education Association representing the school system's teachers and ther certified employes.

The amendments will enable the school system to assign pupils to tutors of the neurologically handicapped in accordance with new state standards, allow retiring teachers to collect severance pay and place school nurses on the current teacher's pay schedule.

Other board actionincluded routine personnel changes and appointments.

More Double Sessions Immediate Effect Of Madison Bond Issue Defeat

Groveport-Madison Local School officials expressed shock and disappointment at the defeat of the district's 7.2 mill, $6.7 million bond issue on election day last week.

According to David Lindsey, community relations director, 187 voters out of 3700 persons voting defeated the measure.

Lindsey set forth the reasons for the defeat. First, there was a lack of turnout in the precincts where there are many school-age children. For instance, in a precinct within 50 yards of where the proposed middle school would have been built, the bond issue won by 51 percent. One hundred fifty-five out of 300 voters approved the measure. Lindsey explained, "In precincts where there are lots of children, we have to 'win big.'"

Secondly, there are many older residents of Groveport and Madison township who no longer have children in school.

Lindsey could not predict all the effects of the loss of the bond issue, but said there would be more double sessions and "it will get worse."

All Madison Local school classes sixth grade and up, are presently operating on double sessions. Lindsey says that now other classes will have to go to double sessions, starting downward from the fifth grade. He could not predict, at this time, just how far "down" double sessions would be necessary, but said they could "go all the way to the first grade."

The regular monthly school board meeting was moved from the second Monday standing meeting date to the third Monday, Nov. 19, so that many of the matters to be considered in the light of the bond issue defeat may be given further study before the board meets.

Whitehall School Levy To Be Resubmitted

BY ELSIE V. WEAVER

Whitehall-In the regular November meeting of the Whitehall City Schools Board of Education Monday night, Supt. Gilbert Johnson told the board that while unofficial returns in last week's voting on the district's fire mill levy showed that it had failed by 43 votes, the election board had informed him that it had lost by 40 votes.

The election board said that some absentee ballots were yet to be counted, but Johnson doubted that they would make enough difference to change the outcome.

A brief discussion on the possibility of asking for a recount, a process which would have a $260 price tag on it, ended with the decision that it would probably not turn up a minimum of 41 votes and not be worth the money.

The board turned its attention to the possibility of presenting the levy again at a special election yet in 1973, so that the financially hard-pressed district could get additional tax money in 1974. But that hope diminished when it was pointed out that Senate bill 44 passed this September stipulated that a special election can not follow a regular election by less than 60 days. Obviously it would be impossible to call a special election yet this calendar year.

So hopes were dashed for any additional tax money to be forthcoming in the whole of 1974, as tax money to school districts is always awarded the year after the taxes are levied.

The board decided on a plan to resubmit a levy at the time of the primary election in May, 1974.

If the levy passed at that time, the district would be able to borrow up to 50 percent of what they would be entitled to in 1975. Johnson did not feel they would have to borrow up to this limit.

The superintendent expressed confidence that the district will be able to meet their obligations in the remainder of November, and in December, but said they would have to borrow some funds after the tax books are closed in late January or February next year, to carry them at least up to the primary election time.

Some of the board members expressed fear that the high interest rates on 1974 loans would necessitate them asking for more millage on the May ballot, to cover the amount needed for operation in 1975 plus the interest charged.

"In view of the bad 'climate' at the time of the November election, rising prices, shortages, pollution, Watergate," said Johnson, "losing by 40-odd votes was fairly good." He stated that people just did not realize how much the district had cut back on spending.

on fuel gas, electricity, gasoline for buses, other utilities, for which we had appropriated $547,100 a year ago, and in which area we are already $78,000 in the red."

"Fixed charges can not be cut much," he continued, except on such things as bus trips, and after-school activities They will have to be cut."

In other business, the board voted unanimously to ask the Franklin County Soil and Water Conservation Dept. to draw up a plan to show how the science departments could best develop the 3-acre land laboratory area, south of the practice football field, already owned by the board. The long-range plans would be done at no cost to the district and would result in a valuable science program in good land use.

The board decided to send five representatives to an unemployment compensation seminar on Dec. 10 in Columbus, as a new Senate bill provides coverage for teachers.

They also decided to have Supt. Johnson look into the feasibility of having night burglar systems installed in the schools, which would be tied into the communications system of the new police department equipment. The installation would mean lowering of insurance premiums on the school properties.

City's SE To Get Police Substation

East Columbus-Columbus City Council, in its regular session Oct. 29, passed an ordinance authorizing and directing the Director of Public Service, Richard D. Jackson, to hire an architect to prepare plans and specifications for a Police Substation in the southeast section of the city.

The council appropriated $8000 for the project.

A Capital Improvement Ordinance passed in February authorized the building of such a substation.

The city had already purchased a parcel of land at 3030 Winchester Pike on which the building will be constructed.

Whirlybirds Hold Less Mystery Now

Bexley-The whole school, Maryland Elementary, turned out, despite a sudden frigid blast of cold air last Friday afternoon, to see one of the Columbus City Police helicopters land, stop, and take off at their playground. They heard one of the officers explain its use in patrolling the city, catching criminals, often within minutes after a crime, and filed past the machine to take a closer look. It was a rare opportunity, as most people rarely get to see a helicopter up close, and they learned many interesting little tidbits of information about it, like "it carries 30 gallons of gas," "you could buy five or six Cadillacs for the price of this helicopter," and "when the spotlight is pointed down at night, you can see a rabbit run across a field, from 1000 feet up." The stop at Maryland School, an earlier one last month at Montrose, and another scheduled for 1:30 p.m. tomorrow, at Cassingham, were coordinated through the Columbus Police Public Affairs Bureau, with Community Relations Officer Charles Morrison and Bexley Police's Community Relations Director, Sgt. Don Davis, making the arrangements. That's Sgt. Davis in the center of the picture. (Photo by Elsie V. Weaver)

24,691 Needed For Streets

How much paint does it take to paint a line five inches wide and 1,863 miles long? Well, 24,691 gallons, if anyone really wants to know. This is what the City's Division of Traffic Engineering used last year to line city streets to make driving safer and easier.

With this amount of area to cover, work is done in several areas of the city at the same time. Paintung will continue as long as weather permits.

Motorist are asked to be on the alert for these slow-moving vehicles (they travel about 12 miles an hour). A small vehicle with flashing lights follows the liner as a warning to motorists. The follow-truck also eliminates the need for cones and flags. The paint is applied at about 180 degrees and dries in 30 seconds.

Cones and flags are still used at crosswalks and other lines which are painted by hand-operated machines. When approaching these units, motorists are asked to remain in their own lane and reduce speed.

Anyone interested in a further breakdown on the mileage, it is as follows: 553 miles of centerline and 596 miles of lanelines. Another 491 mark the edgelines where there are no curbs. Crosswalks, stop bars and other miscellaneous lines complete the remaining 243 miles.

In addition to the paint approximately 100 tons of beads are applied to make the lines reflective.

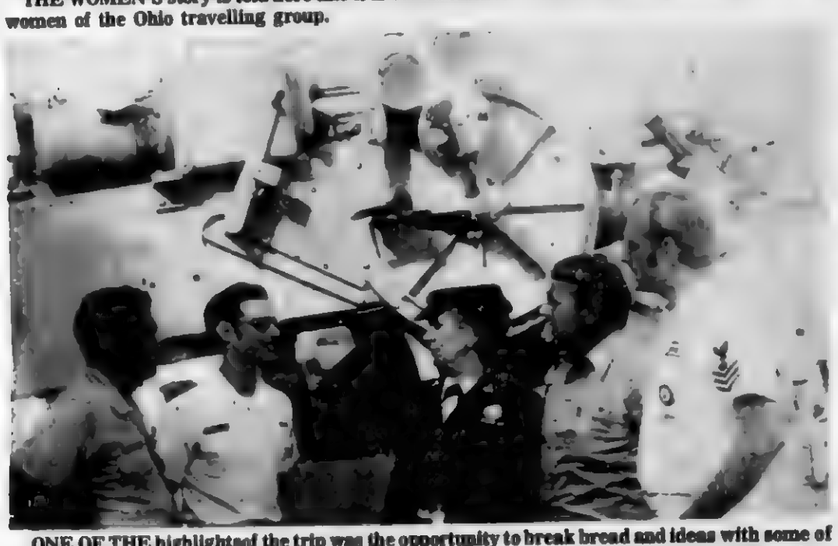
THE WOMEN'S story is told here like it is with the Naval Women escorts gathered with the women of the Ohio travelling group.



ONE OF THE highlightsof the trip was the opportunity to break bread and ideas with some of the Navy personnel who delve into the personal lives of recruits. Such a person is David A. Skrobot, YN2, second from left, who is a remedial reading instructor for the recruits. He is a Capital University graduate andhopes to come back to the area to teach. At left is E NC Norman Andrews, one of the race relations experts. Center is Wave recruiter from Columbus SK2 Mary Kaiser. Others from left are Groveport-Madison High School vice principal Robert Carter and EMI Terry Ford, attached to the Columbus recruiting district.

THREE MEN who added much to the education of thehigh school counselors and the only member of the media on the trip (Executive Editor Ray Adams) talked over their views while observing an anchor from a Spanish ship that was grounded by a hurricane off the Florida coast in July 1715. A Winter Park resident located two of the ships of the Spanish fleet and recovered more than $2 million in gold. Some of the relics from the ship are on display at the Langford Resort Hotel in Winter Park, a delightful place to spend a Florida vacation. From left are John Chatman,Brother Gerald Warner and John Maloney.

The Spectator Newspapers welcome letters from readers, expressing their views on subjects of interest to them – whether initiated by news stories or editorial expression in this newspaper or not. Because of space limitations, we prefer letters which do not exceed 300 words. Letters should be marked: "To the Editor, Spectator Newspapers, 3421 South Boulevard, Columbus, Ohio 43204" and must be received by Friday noon prior to publication date for possible publication in that week's edition.

Both Tell It Like It Is

Counselors, Navy One Educational Team

By Ray Adams
Executive Editor

THE DAYS OF rose-colored glasses for media and other professional visitors to Naval installations is passe.

The Naval Training Center at Orlando, Florida was on-limits to a group of high school counselors, principals and service agencies for three days last week.

We know what they saw. We were in the group.

THEY CALL it cultural shock - the first nine weeks (or at least the first two or three weeks) of a recruits training period. That goes for the Waves as well as the sailor-boys.

The name goes off and the number goes on - and that's just what it is: a fantastic by-the-numbers game that makes stout-hearted men out of boys and beautiful girls out of the raw beauty that they had in the first place.

THE NAVY wants men and women of high calibre. The Navy has the tools to precision-grind the human being into a machine that still has human emotions but has added dignity, pride, emotional maturity and just plain brains to the entire system.

What the counselors saw left them gaping and they all came out of the sojourn with a better understanding of the opportunities the Navy has to offer.

WE CAME back gifted - gifted with the priceless treasures of learning a little about a lot of educational systems - and the Navy in the raw.

If there was one thing lacking about the three day adventure into the Navy wilderness that is the Navy Recruiting Command it was that we didn't have the George Plimpton opportunity of sleeping, eating, marching, drilling, schooling and doing everything 100 percent Navy for the three days we looked at things from as close to the in side as we could get.

THAT OBSTACLE course even looked inviting and we hope we have the opportunity to test its strength on another visit next year.

The Navy is "Don't Give Up The Ship", "Damn TheTorpedoes, Full Speed Ahead", "You May Fire When Ready, Gridley", and a host of other famous orders all rolled up into one.

Now that we have arrived at this point I want to make it clear that what you have just read is a brief summary of comments from the guidance counselors - and not particularly just my own thoughts.

THE LOCAL area contingent included: Dennis Blaney, counselor, Marion Franklin High School; Robert Carter, vice principal, Groveport-Madison High School; John Chatman, Office of Guidance and Testing, State Department of Education; Mrs. Dolores Drenning, counselor, North HighSchool; John Maloney, Director, St. Stephens Community House; Mrs. Leslie Sims, counselor, Hamilton Township High School and Brother Gerald Warner, Executive Director, SalesianBoys Club.

Our official escorts were: LCdr. David Hafford Executive Officer, Navy Recruiting District, Columbus; Lt.Dudley Morris, Publicity Officer, Navy Recruiting District, Columbus; Lt. j.g. Veronica Zasadni, Wave Recruiter; MMCM Harry Lawwill, Cincinnati Zone Supervisor; EMCM Ian G. Wright, Columbus Zone Supervisor; EMI Terry Ford, Recruiter, Columbus East; SK2 Mary Kaiser, WaveRecruiter and JOSN David King. Publicity, Columbus.

IF YOU JOIN the Navy through your high school counselor and a service agency director chances are you'll get the "tell it like it is" story from them.

The career is there if you want it from A to Z so is the opportunity to enhance your education at all levels.

IN GETTING to the knitty-gritty of what the counselors were thinking I made ever effort to use what education I had at my disposal to make an attempt (no matter how feeble) be included as one in the "rap" sessions with Navy personnel while in discussions concerning remedial reading (what a program that is!), race relations (it's more than black vs white and includes religion, nationality, personal prejudices and the old "majority or minority of one" doctrine), drug education (this opened a whole new bag of worms so to speak and group dynamics (where the counselors hitched up their belts and got in quite a few licks that should leave the Navy with a bit of the solid (and very good) cultural shock they deal out to recruits in hopes of getting the best ones to stay as career people.

THE TOUR gave me a new view of high school counselors as was presented by those from such school areas (all from Ohio) as Middletown, Zanesville, Xenia, Cincinnati, Mansfield, Portsmouth and several from Kentucky.

Frankly, I have had bad luck from some counselors who challenged my right to let the "students tell it like it is in print." This occured some time ago but still lingers with me. Those affected should have the same opportunity of mingling with the high calibre counselors that I was able to educationally share for three days. These on this tour are the new breed whose first interest is the entire concern of the individual and as an individual - not just another number.

WHAT THEY had to offer the Navy is just as highly regarded by me as what the Navy had to offer them - the unvarnished truth. You wouldn't in any way, shape or form have been able to pull that first string of wool over these visitors eyes.

THE NAVAL Training Center at Orlado, Florida has both the traditional and modern architecture in its building style. What was there when the Navy moved in (it was first an Army base then an Air Force installation) has remained to a certain extent but the new architecture (chapel, mess hall, instruction area, etc.) is all decked out in a soft orange brown brick with lighter trim.

The mess has a capacity to feed 4600 in a ninety-minute period with three meals a day.

The food was mixed, especially attractive and there was plenty of it in unbelievable quantities. For example, we had Florida lobster (how much do you want, Sir?), shrimp, white fish, choice (or all four) of four salads, two hot vegetables, bread (three kinds), milk, tea or coffee, relishes and vegetable type dish, ice cream and three varieties of dessert.

MUCH TO our surprise the recruits told us that they didn't particularly think the Navy had prepared this just for us. If the Navy had done this to the visiting group they would have been in for a rude awakening. You just don't fool "ol mother or father counselor" with that kind of game.

This newest of the Naval Training Centers (the others are at San Diego and Great Lakes) is the jewel of Florida.

When the counselors really get back into the meat of talking with high school students about careers it will be much easier to tell them what it is really like.

"WE'RE LOOKED on by too many parents as baby-sitters for their children while in school, " indicated one counselor. "We want to help the student achieve his maximum potential in life but we don't want to replace the father or mother in the students thinking. He or she has to make this decision onhis orher own. Most are capable of doing just that. We uon't want to be looked on as having just the function of scheduling a student through school then on to further education. We want to be there for his or her use when things are going ginger-peachy, too - not just when everything of life is going off the edge of the world".

The women in the group were witty and charming.

We're avoiding the use of names in any of the conversation since it would limit what could be said directly.

The graduation of two companies of Waves left me a little more proud than I was before. "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Anchors Away" had a new sound to them. The cake cutting by the Sixth Naval District Commandant Rear Admiral Graham Tahler at the graduation reception had all the warmth to it of a wedding reception - and certainly these young women have wed themselves to a career that many will mingle with marriage and families.

THE NEW NAVY has arrived. Counselors from every educational school system imaginable (economic, social and otherwise) told us so.

They can tell your sons and daughters what it's all about. Trust them. Have confidence in them. If they don't meet the standards necessary to present day life tell your school board about them.

Counseling is an important part of your child's career-whatever the career might be.

LIKE THE insurance company motto says - (and we paraphrase it) you're in good hands with a dedicated counselor and men of the United States Navy who want you to be just that - YOU.

OUR TRIP to Orlando was in a Navy designated DC-9. We left Lockbourne AFB at 1300 hours (that's one p.m.) and arrived at Orlando at 1435 (that's 2:35 p.m.)

The trip was energy building in anticipation of what lie ahead.

While we stayed at the Lnagford Resort Hotel I also had the chance to chat with numerous writers from around the country who were at Rollins College in Winter Park for the annualWriters Conference.

They didn't match the careful educational grooming of any of the counselors on our trip.

It is always difficult for me to write about something so good that I want to embrace it.That'show I feel about this three day trip into a new educational area that would have been a jungle were in not for a host of Navy personnel and the counselors and others who made every step of the way one I'll long remember.

IT'S ALL there but you must join to enjoy it. That's your decision - but rest assured your high school counselor can pave the way for the highway your life is on.

LEAVE IT TO AN OFF-DUTY SAILOR to find the pretty girls at any port of call. Here's Columbus East Navy Recruiter Terry Ford with a host of college students who were attending a National Interior Design Association conference. That's a three dimensional mural of a ship at sea. And, of course, that's recruiting Terry in the middle. None of the girls would give name rank or serial number.

IT WAS A GRAND and glorious feeling when the Navy band arrived and made musical tribute. Here they are with the 50 state flag team that has also performed at Disney World.

THE DEPARTURE from Herndon Airport in Orlando, Florida was a sad moment for all of us as the temperature of 81 (scheduled) was perfect for another swim party. This is the Navy DC-9 City of Charleston with the group ready to get on board.

Jail Feasibility Study Finished

Columbus—Franklin County Sheriff Harry J. Berkemer and Columbus Chief of Police Earl Bruden announced that the feasibility study for merging the city-county jails has been completed.

The study identifies several alternative courses of action. The City of Columbus Administration, the Franklin County Commissioners, Sheriff Berkemer and Chief Burden are in agreement that combining the city and county jails would probably provide more efficient service. There has not been a definite decision as to what alternative should be adopted.

The jail merger feasibility study indicates that it is to the benefit of the City of Columbus and Franklin County to proceed at the earliest possible time.

It is proposed that a new court building be constructed adjacent to the Franklin County Hall of Justice. Any final decision on this jail feasibility study will be dependent upon construction of the new court building.

In 1972, trappers harvested furbearers providing 900,000 pelts worth more than $2.5 million in Ohio, reports Dan C. Armbruster, chief of the Department of Natural Resources' division of wildlife.

THE EASTMOOR THEATRE Arts department will present the 18th century melodrama, "Ten Nights in a Barroom." The tickets went on sale last Friday, for the November 16 and 17 performances in the Eastmoor Auditorium. Both performances will begin at 8 p.m., and will include a cast of villains, heroines, saloon girls, and assorted eighteenth-century characters.

The cast includes Mike Kobre as the drunk, David Kaye as the hero, Andy Darrow as the villain, Sue Love as the saloon girl and Marilee Hartland as the heroine.

Tickets are $1.50 for students, and $2 for adults. Tickets may be purchased from cast or crew members, or at the Eastmoor box office.

EASTMOOR is launching a school-wide candy sale of M & M confections. The entire school is involved in this. On the first day the salesmen completely ran out of the chocolate candies.

The most successful salesmen will be rewarded with prizes of posters, a Mickey Mouse wrist watch clock, and a $100 bill (bath mat).

Other prizes include an AM-FM portable radio, a digital wrist watch, a brass taxi horn, a random blinking moon light, an AM pocket radio, and an OSU beer mug.

IF YOU happen to spot an Eastmoor student selling the treats, help the school by buying a box.

Pool Patter

THE JEWISH CENTER Torpedoes Swim Team held their first competition this Fall season with the Hilltop "Y". We swam at the East Side "Y" pool on a Sunday afternoon. A group of forty Center members traveled the short distance by Center bus. Those parents who supported the team from the Center were: Mr. and Mrs. Sams, Mr. Quillen, Mr. and Mrs. Kroos, Mrs. Zacks, Dr. and Mrs. Davidorf and Grandmother Davidorf, and Mrs. Vogel.

Our teens who helped run the meet were Ron Golding, Colleen O'Donnell, Toby Brief, and Lisa Harris. Barbara Templeton acted as stroke and turn judge. Mrs. Ray Bumgarner (Shan), Assistant Physical Education Director is the Center's coach. The team works out on Tuesday and Thursday from 4:30 to 6 p.m. and at 6 to 7:30 p.m.

ADULT OUTDOOR Recreation—This group has met twice and the first time we took a forty-five minute walk on the Center's back forty; then we went for a dip in the indoor pool. The second time out we met at Blacklick Woods Park with bikes in the trunks of our cars. We enjoyed the forty-five minute ride around the park roads with all the Fall colors and smells.

This group meets on Friday mornings from 9 or 10:30 to noon. Our plans for the future depend on the weather but unless it really gets down to the bitter cold, we will always try to be outdoors. The idea is not to over-do, but just do. The actual walking or bike riding is geared for pleasure and not endurance. If you have the blahs by Friday morning, why not join us by calling 231-2731 and find out where we are going. If we get grounded by rain or snow we still meet for a swim indoors.

SPLASH— The Wednesday night Adult Swim Class has eight people now. Everyone is at a different level but we review each week and then try a new stroke toward the last few minutes of the class. Even if you are a good swimmer it wouldn't hurt to analyse your strokes. Those enrolled are: Carol Meckler, Carol Maxwell, Dorothy Deems, Sharon Mills, Florence Furman, Eric Pinkett, Dr. Roger Williams, Saul Izeman.

Furs Are "Big" Fashion

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

THERE'S GREAT variety in fur and leather...here the designer combines white mink with inserts of creamy beige leather for a smashing coat to be worn with pants or skirt.

MORE AND more women are buying mink coats...like this classic shaped ranch mink that knows no age or time of day.

THERE'S DRAMA in the "big" coat for fall...even more exciting when done in a spectacular fluff of white fox. All from Fur Industry of America.

A FROTH of Black Glama Mink with soft Empire cocoon bodice and dolman sleeves...the peplum highlighted with two belts...rhinestone buckled or tailored. Designed by John Stevens for Robert Sidney.

A WOMAN CAN SPEND SO MUCH TIME dreaming about a mink coat, that some of the best years of her life are over by the time her dream comes true. There's no reason why a woman shouldn't buy a fur this year...any fur...the variety is so great in shape, color and price...with all furs right on top of the new fashion movement. For many years everyone forecasted the rise of one "really" important fur, mink, and disregarded all others, but this is no longer the case. This year every fashion barometer has heralded the return of all furs...as a trim, as an accessory, as a part of a total look and on its own...furs are big fashion!

FROM RABBIT to sable to mink and nutria...furs have been dyed, patterned, cut, printed and partnered to give fashion a truly elegant, exciting, big lift for Fall and Winter.

Here are the important new looks:

CONSIDER a blazer in sheared rabbit...or a karate jacket of kit fox belted and bordered in gold suede for a young fun look. This year's Chubby is collared, like sable trimmed in raccoon...or kit fox with sheared raccoon accents.

THE CASUAL topper comes in sable, mink, red fox, lynx, opossum, raccoon and Swakara...it looks best in the important neutral and beige tones as well as the rich dyed shades.

MINK JACKETS are shown in a variety of new looks...one of the most glamorous is the blouson Empire...featuring a peplum and dolman sleeves.

MINK AND leather? Of course! Mink with leather is exciting in geometric shapes...squares, diamonds and chevrons...in a great choice of colors.

FOR THE ultimate luxury...there's a fully-let-out mink coat with a sailor collar and flaring skirt...or the new trumpet silhouette that flares below the hipline. The long glamour mink coat is often convertible...with zip-off hem, from jacket length to knee, to floor length...for "salability." Isn't that nice to know?

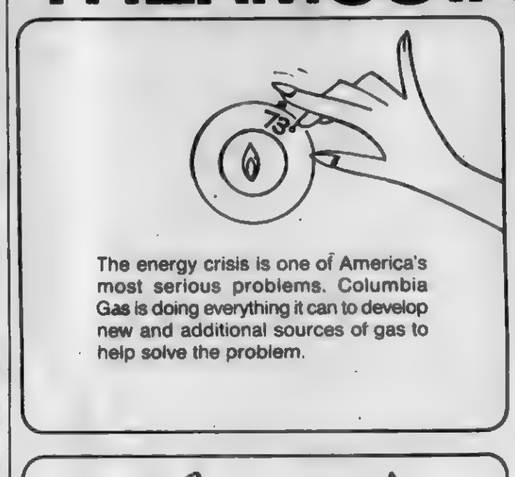
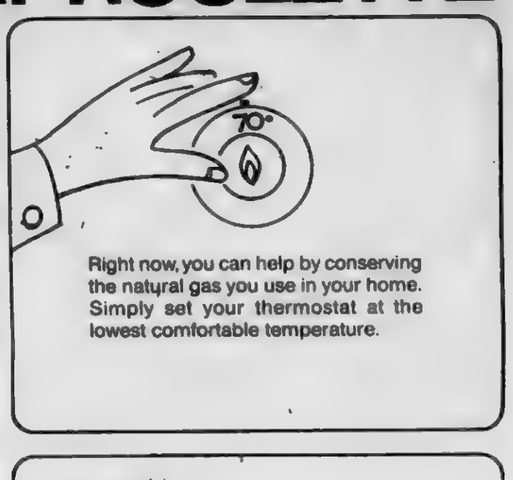
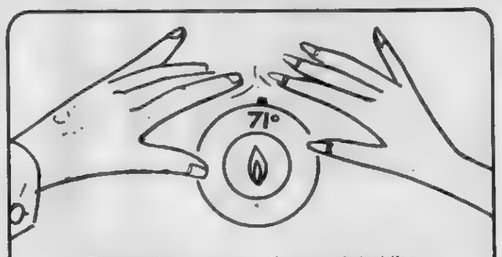
DON'T PLAY THERMOSTAT ROULETTE



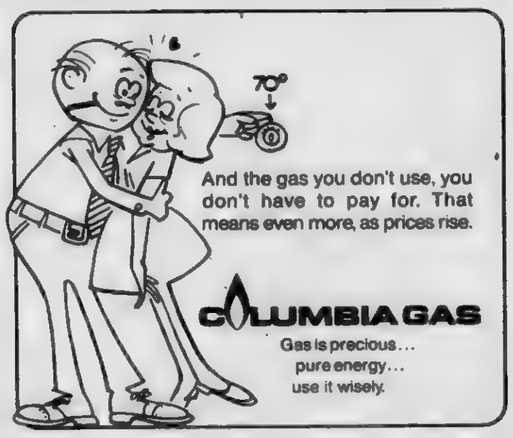
The energy crisis is one of America's most serious problems. Columbia Gas is doing everything it can to develop new and additional sources of gas to help solve the problem.



Right now, you can help by conserving the natural gas you use in your home. Simply set your thermostat at the lowest comfortable temperature.



Remember, set your thermostat at the lowest comfortable temperature. Heating costs increase 3% for every degree your thermostat is moved above 70°. A few degrees will save a lot of gas.



And the gas you don't use, you don't have to pay for. That means even more, as prices rise.

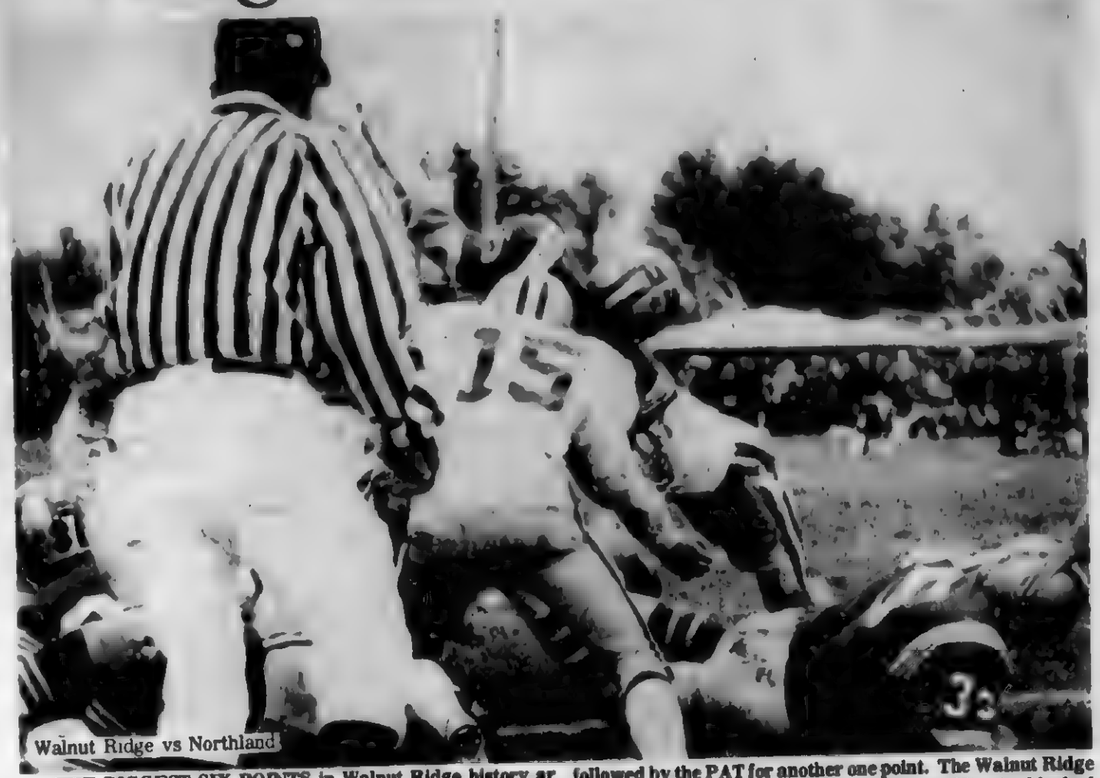
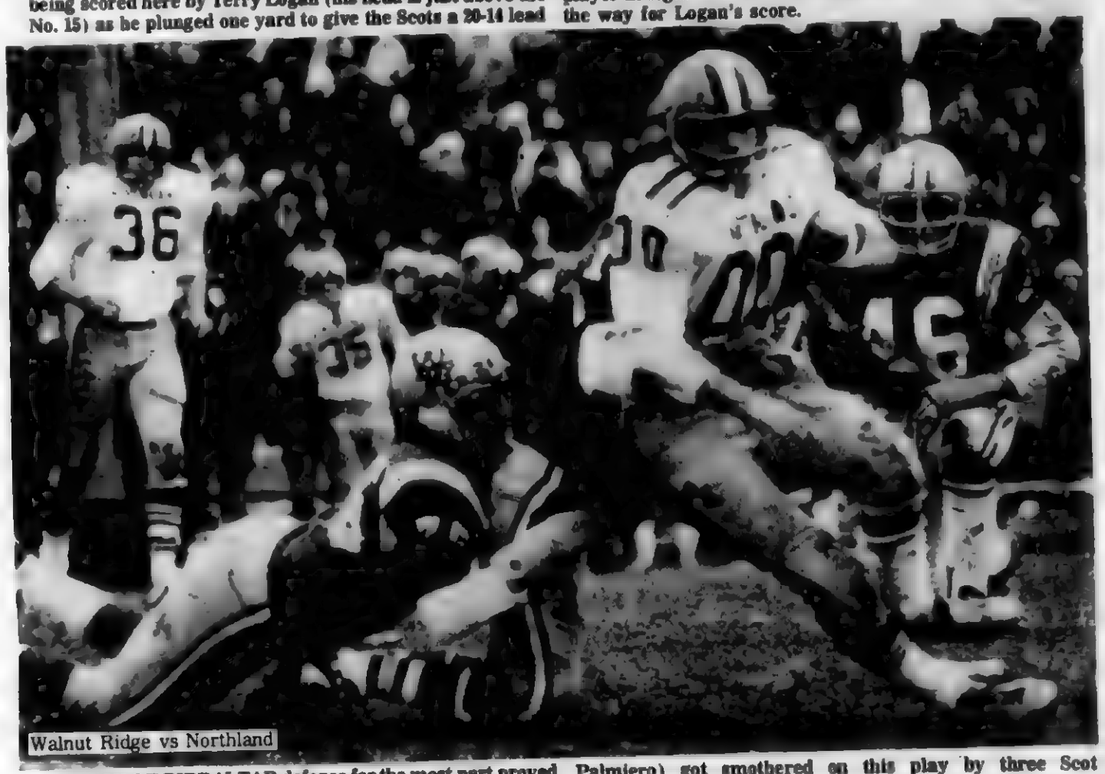
Ridge Runners Pace Title Win Over Northland



Walnut Ridge vs Northland

THE BIGGEST SIX POINTS in Walnut Ridge history ar being scored here by Terry Logan (his head is just above the No. 15) as he plunged one yard to give the Scots a 20-14 lead followed by the PAT for another one point. The Walnut Ridge player at right is Fullback MattGuttmann (35) who blocked the way for Logan's score.



Walnut Ridge vs Northland

A ROCK OF BIBRALTAR defense for the most part proved to be successful for Walnut Ridge as they kept the Northland Vikings at bay most of the way. Northland's No. 00 (Frank Palmiero) got smothered on this play by three Scot defensemen.

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

WALNUT RIDGE zapped Northland 21-14 Saturday to earn the 1973 City League Championship in a freezy breezy morning chiller. It is the first ever undisputed crown for the once beaten Scots who shared the 1967 throne with Eastmoor for its only other championship whiff.

And it was a sweet victory for this Vince Cahill coached gang who lost the Champ of Champs match 7-0 to Northland a year ago and had firm beliefs of coming back this year and going home with all the marbles, as they so convincingly did.

IT WAS a one yard burst by halfback Terry Logan that capped an 82 yard drive and rocketted the Scots into a 21-14 lead with 2:53 remaining in this championship contest. That along with the Ridge's "BIG D" iced the crown as the Vikings could not mount a serious threat on its ensuing possession.

Matt Guttman, Ridge's whirling backfield ace, smashed for 126 yards to lead the offensive barrage that saw the running wishbone throw but two passes all afternoon. One was valuable though, a big 48 yard gainer from commander Gary Gioia to quick-stepping Bob Bardelang. That was the supreme play in that game deciding drive.

But the real story, the same as it has been all season, was that famed Walnut Ridge defensive unit that was not overall as tough as usual but was tough in the clutch. Linebackers Mark Glenn, Steve Winslow, Mark Woodburn, and Kevin Glenn all turned in their normal super games on defense as did the interior offensive line.

Logan accounted for two scores as Geoge Snyder crossed paydirt for the other. Pete Bickel was perfect on three placements.

THUS, Walnut Ridge finishes its season with a impressive 9-1 mark (championship game included) and only 22 regular season points scored against them.

IN A WEEKEND surprise, St. Charles cracker-jack Cardinals upended AA powerhouse Watterson 20-14 via a three yard Jerry Hammond burst in mid-fourth quarter action. Dave Heilman fired seven yards to Fred Messmer for another St. Charles score and Ron Rau highlighted the game with a 76 yard breakaway from scrimmage for the other Cardinal six-pointer.

Watterson accounted for its scoreboard punch with the Dean Dixon to Scott Brindgardner passing combo clicking once in the first half and dittoeing that same trick later in the game. The clash left both teams with season ending 8-2 marks as St. Charles will enter Central Catholic League action for the first time this basketball and baseball seasons.

IN FRIDAY'S non-league action DeSales popped Franklin Heights 21-7 despite a fine performance by Falcon QB Hal Thompson; Hartley's Mark DiSabato and Ed Radcliff performed marvelously in a 27-0 Hawk zipping of Reynoldsburg; and Grove City bipped Westland despite a Duke Hoyle 37 yard three-pointer.

SHORTS--With area football just passed, basketball is before us this weekend as the first set of schoolboy roundball action presents StateAA champs Ready hosting Buckeye Valley, Central at Hartley and Bexley at Reynoldsburg ... Franklin Heights's elusive running back GARY JONES finished as the county's leading scorer with 96 points...JEFF EDELSTEIN, Bexley's sturdy two way performer was named the Lion's most valuable player...It shouldn't be forgotten that BOB STUART'S Eastmoor eleven finished as Co-Champions of the City League South, Ridge represented the South in the Championship Game due to its win over Eastmoor in head on competition...Placing on the Ohio Capital Conference's All Star Football Honorable Mention List are MARK ELLIOT and JEFF TEACH of Worthington, TOM ATHEY and DAVE FLEMING of Whitehall, TIM MALONE and MIKE SMITH of Reynoldsburg and MARK JOHNSON AND GREG LUCKENBILL of Westland...Westerville's STEVE WOHLERT was named player of the year.

Funtastic Is A Family

The Funtastic Family is providing plenty of lively, unusual entertainment nightly at the Holiday Inn-OSU. The Family is made up of Father, Bud Mercer, Brother, Russ and Daughter Linda. All three combined together to give you a highly entertaining show comprised of music, song, tap dancing and at times a little humor.

Daughter Linda is the drummer and vocalist for the trio. She plays drums nicely. Laying down a very strong, solid rhythm, Linda keeps the group moving musically. She doesn't pound the skins and cymbals, but presents a strong attack. Linda is not afraid of them, as so many female drummers seem. What she may lack in stage personality she more than makes up for with the sticks and brushes. As a singer, Linda can also hold her own. She is certainly not the best you have ever heard, yet she does entertain you with her vocal renditions.

Son Russ is the one who owns a beautiful voice. No doubt about it, he is the best singer in the group. Owning a good, mellow voice, Russ shows plenty of control, along with rather heavy stylizing. His voice has a nice pretty sound to it. Good quality.

While I consider Russ a darn good singer, and one I feel that you will enjoy, singing is not his main contribution to show business. Wait until you hear him play the guitar. His style and approach is so smooth and mellow. Russ does not play guitar like so many of the so-called guitarist in the young groups today. He is a true guitarist and artist in every sense of the word. The treatment he gives such songs as, "Satin Doll", and the new one, "Joy" quiets down the entire room. Outside of his guitar, you could hear a pin drop. Russ can almost make that guitar talk. He creates all types of sounds from the electric strings. Now, mind you, he uses the amplifier to create beautiful music, not noise.

Things really begin to move when Russ lays down the guitar and picks up the banjo. Playing the banjo in the true Eddie Peabody style, Russ dishes out such songs as, "12th St. Rag," "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," and many other old favorites. When he shifts into high gear, Russ's fingers fly faster than a bumblebee in a rose garden.

Now, that I told you about the two younger members of the family, let me tell you about Dad, Bud Mercer. Here is the real star of the show. This man is a showman's showman, all the way. No matter what he does, play the electric bass, sing or tap dance, it's all pure show biz.

That's right, I said tap dance. Bud does impressions of Ray Bolger, Fred Astaire and many of the other great ones. I can't remember how many years it has been since I have seen a tap dancer on any stage. Bud is good. He is light on his feet, which by the way move faster than Houdini's hands. Bud is as agile as a twenty year old. His "performed in an old time" song and dance man," who with his brother appeared in top night clubs around the country and motion pcitures, as well as the Palace Theatre in New York and many top variety television shows, including Ed Sullivan. You just can't beat experience, and Bud's years in the business show through.

The Funtastic Family is a fun loving, happy type trio. This is the key to the success. They give you FUN. Fun music, fun, happy singing, and fun atmosphere. With the different generations in the group, you get a touch of the old and new, both in material and style.

There is never a dull moment in the University Lounge at the Holiday Inn OSU with the Funtastic Family on stage.

Kingswood Inn Offers Much

George Dill is the new general manager of the Kingswood Inn Motel. In my opinion, they couldn't have picked a more qualified individual, or a nicer guy, than George. Many of you may know him, having worked in many leading hotels and motels around Columbus, including such places as the Neil House.

A native of St. Marys Ohio, George and his wife Catharine have made Columbus their home for many years. Putting in twelve hours a day at the Kingswood Inn is not enough for George. His hobby of interior designing has turned into a business, which he owns, Design Interiors.

Using his knowledge in this field, George has made many improvements in the decor of the dining room at the Kingswood. He is presently installing new carpeting and chandliers in the dining areas of the motel.

George's philosophy which he ahs put into operation at the Inn is serving the best food possible at the lowest possible prices. Take it from me, the food is exceptionaly good. And, with today's prices, it is hard to believe the very reasonable prices on the menu. Without a doubt, it's the best Around Town.

George also stresses service as an important aspcet of good dining. You'll find this to be true at the Kingswood Inn.

To make sure that you are served the finest meals possible, George hosts the dining room every night, checking on the service and inspecting every plate before it is served. Yet, he still finds time to chat with his customers, so they get the feeling of personal interest by the staff and management.

The end result is a meal that you will talk about for days afterwards in a congenial atmosphere and pleasant surroundings.

The Kingswood Inn Motel is located on route 161 and Avery Road. Be sure you take the Avery Rd. turn off. It's a little difficult to get to, because the place does sneak up on you. Don't let the outside foo you. The dining room is beautiful and the food is great. GeorgeDill makes sure it always remains that way.

Skipping Around Town

Yours truly has a red face. I told you last week about the great Thanksgiving Smorgasbord at the Holiday Inn Reynoldsburg. But, I gave you the wrong price. It is 70 cents cheaper, than what I said. You get roast turkey, baked ham, honey fried chicken, with all the works, and I do mean all the works, for only $4.25. What a buy. Knowing the delicious meals I've had at the Holiday Inn-Reynoldsburg, I know this will be a fantastic Thanksgiving Day meal.

Upland Game Season Opens November 15

Ohio's season for pheasant, quail and ribbit opens Thursday, November 15. The daily bag limit on quail is six, pheasants, two cock birds and on rabbit, four. The possession limit after the first day equals a two day bag limit on all species. The season for ribbits and quail extends through Januaryy 25 on both private lands and on public hunting areas.

The cock pheasant season is split again this year on private lands with the first segment closing on December 8. It re-opens again on December 24 and extends through January 1, 1974.

HUNTING hours on all species are from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. and hunting is prohibited on Sundays.

Wise hunters have already contacted farmers on whose land they desire to hunt and have secured permission. There are thousands of acres within Ohio which are in a state program which land owners agree with the Division of Wildlife to allow hunting on their properties with their written permission.

The Division furnishes landowners with permit books and signs which read, "Hunting With Permission Only." These signs are yellow and black and have a space for the landowners name and are posted around the boundaries of the property.

HUNTERS who observe these signs are urged to contact the owner and ask permission to hunt. Refusal of a landowner to allow a hunting party on his land doesn't necessarily mean he doesn't want people to hunt.

Perhaps that particular day he has already given others permission to hunt, and if he has limited acreage he may deny additional hunters at that time but give them permission for some future day.

Salmon Fishing Northeastern Ohio

The Chagrin River continues to provide fishing for Coho and Chinook Salmon. The Coho are running 4 to 6 pounds while the CChinooks often weigh between 6 and 12 pounds. Mepps, Tadpolys and Rooster Tails continue to be the most productive lures.

Both river and off shore lake fishing are productive. Lake Trowling and shoreline surf casting using spoons has been successful for Coho, Chinook and rainbow trout.

One of the most productive lake fishing areas is located near Arcola Creek, Perry Township, Lake County.

DISTRICT Three (northeastern Ohio) personal suggest that fisherman planning trips to Lake Erie should check weather forecost before making the trip. Many times the lake is too rough to fish and may pose a definite safety hazard.

Hunting In Ohio

Due to the heavy rains last year, many acres of crops were not harvested and much of the crop land was not plowed or planted until after the nesting season this past spring which means there was more cover than usual. When the cover is available your population increases and it looks like sportsman in many areas will enjoy good hunting.

Since over 90 percent of Ohio's hunting is on private land, sportsman are urged to ask the landowners permission to hunt. Respect the landowners property and stay out of unharvested crop fields.

The deer-bow season and grouse season are underway and 23 deer have been taken by bow hunters in Distric One (central Ohio).

GROUSE are plentiful throughout their range but dry conditions have kept them "spooky" and it has been tough going even with a dog. Rain the past week should improve grouse hunting considerably.

Compost Pile Solution For Fall Leaf Disposal

The disposal of fall leaves becoming a problem for some home owners effected by local regulations prohibiting open burning. The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency recommends an alternative disposal method that creates no pollution problems and produces a valuable end-product.

Imagine a new, miracle soil enricher tht could produce fast-growing, healthy plants resistant to drought and insects. In addition, fruit and vegetables raised in the new product would exhibit extra flavor and be more nutritional than untreated produce.

Home gardeners would normally rush to their local garden center to buy such a horticultural wonder. Yet, most of us already have the necessary ingredients to create this super soil conditioner in our own backyards. The product is compost and the process that creates itis as old as life on earth.

Compost is a valuable, self-enriching humus that is created when micro-organisms go to work on leaves, grass clipping, vegetable trimmings, and other organic wastes. Nature invented compost. Leaves mouldering on the forest floor are composting, as are prairie grasses and other natural vegetation that die each year.

Compost can be read in two to three weeks in summer if materials in the pile are finely shredded, the pile is turned often, and supplied with sufficient nitorgen. Compost piles built in the fall are usually ready for use the following spring. Shredding leaves and other wastes by mowing them with a rotary moweris a simple way for most gardeners to speed up the composting process.

A foul-smelling compost pile is a sign of insufficient oxygen or nitrogen. By omitting such wastes as grease, meat, bones, and fats, the pile will remain fly and dog-proof. Earthworms, sowbugs, pill bugs, and hter small living tings are an asset to the pile since they aid the decompositionprocess and will add value to the soil when used in the garden.

Home gardeners aren't the only ones interested in composting. Many cities are discovering that leaf composting is an economical method of disposal in the fall months. The finished compost can later be distributed to local citizens or used in city parks.

The Ohio Environmental Protection Agnecy has developed new brochures on composing, at both the individual and the municipal levels.

Children's Levy Support Appreciated

To the Editor:

On behalf of the 8,000 children who will be served this year by the Franklin County Children's Services, we thank voters for their support of our levy renewal. These youths are now assured of continued services and care with the goal being a secure and happy childhood for each.

We also thank the many residents who contributed much time and effort for levy renewal and The Spectator for helping to bring the issue to the attention of community voters.

Sincerely,

George Bracken
Chairman, Children's Services Levy Renewal Committee

Mrs. Paul Sebring
Area Coordinator

COLUMBUS–Shown here are the ration books left after rationing ended in the U.S. The books belong to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wichterman and include stamps, tokens and ration book holder. The Wichterman's had two small children who didn't use their portion so Mrs. Wichterman doesn't remember being short of rationed goods.

What Rationing Was Like

BY KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus–"The way people live today, rationing will be tough. We have too many softies. They won't be able to cope," according to Joe Goodwin.

Goodwin doesn't think people will submit to rationing because there is no war and they don't want to be denied what they've grown used to.

He said he doesn't remember many difficulties but thinks it was because people lived a simpler life before World War II.

GASOLINE WAS rationed based on classes of people with doctors and health teams first; police and city government officials; people in defense, who were asked to form car pools; then ordinary people who were allowed small amounts which lead to bootlegging of stamps, he said.

Mrs. Elsie Weaver remembers the family had to borrow someone else's car when her sister-in-law died because her family didn't have the necessary gas to travel. "It inconvenienced others. We had to look out for each other."

Mrs. H. C. Booth said people cheated. "There were so many restrictions and red tape. It really bugged you when the government intervened. People resented it."

Mrs. Booth remembers that there was a lot of siphoning of gas from tanks and stealing the stickers from windshields which told how much gas a person was entitled to.

MRS. BOOTH WAS a little surprised at the instructions on the back of the book because they were actually orders.

The instructions read, "This book is valuable. Do not lose it. Each stamp authorizes you to purchase rationed goods in the quantities and at the times designated by the Office of Price Administration. Without the stamps you will be unable to purchase those goods....Do not throw this book away when all the stamps have been used, or when the time for their use has expired. You may be required to present this book when you apply for subsequent books.

"Rationing is a vital part of your country's war effort. Any attempt to violate the rules is an effort to deny someone his share and will create hardship and help the enemy....Give your whole support to rationing and thereby conserve our vital goods."

Rationing is used to assure each individual a fair share of scarce supplies, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

"THE DECISION to ration is based partly on the severity of shortages–actual or anticipated–and partly on the extent to which such scarce goods are essential to life and health," Britannica said.

Before formal rationing is imposed informal rationing may take place through asking consumers to reduce their consumption or by suppliers allocating their product as they wish, according to the encyclopedia.

Types of rationing which could be applied to the current shortage of fuel are:

Rationing by use, which takes place when a single commodity used for a variety of purposes becomes scarce. The least important uses are curtailed.

Through rationing by quantity, customers are classified on the basis of importance or need and assigned rations accordingly. This applied during World War II when A, B and C stickers were assigned (the C was for unlimited use).

Some "How To's"

Energy Shortage Is Here-Keep Warm, Save Money

BY ELSIE V. WEAVER
Editor, Spectator East

Columbus-In spite of government controls, fuel oil is scarce and getting more expensive. According to some reports, the costs of natural gas and coal could also soar, which could mean higher electric bills since those resources are often used to generate electricity.

There is no way to hedge against an energy shortage it is already upon us but there are plenty of ways to stretch your home-heating dollar this winter. Here are a few suggestions to keep your family comfortable, conserve energy, and save money.

INSULATION

Check your insulation. If you live in an older home, chances are that there is very little or none at all. A poorly insulated home can cost twice as much to heat as one with proper insulation.

Since warm air rises, a significant amount of heat can be lost through the ceiling, and ultimately, the roof. One way to control this is to add extra insulation between the floor joists in the attic.

Putting glass wool fiber glass bats between the joists on the floor of the attic or crawl space of your house is a simple task. It is also easy to pour a layer of expanded polystyrene insulation granules in an even layer over the floor between joists. You need not be an expert to install insulation although may wish to get advice from your insulation materials dealer before tackling the job.

Another way to cut heat loss through the ceiling is to put up an accoustical-tiled ceiling. The materials not only insulate against unwanted noise, but can reduce ceiling heat loss by as much as 15 per cent, according to heating experts.

If you live in an older home with 10 to 12 foot ceilings, you are heating unusable space up near the ceiling. You may want to consider installing suspension ceiling, with thin metal strips crisscrossing the room at the height you want the new ceiling. You simply drop the blocks down onto the open spaces, with no need to fasten them anywhere. With a reduction of cubic content, the room is more easily and economically heated.

MORE TIPS

If your home has radiators and you're planning to re-paint them, be sure you use paint specifically formulated for that purpose - flat or metallic paints can reduce heat transfer by as much as 25 percent.

Fireplaces add beauty to any home but remember that they are one of the least efficient methods of room heating and with the damper open, up to 20 percent of your home's warm air can escape up the chimney.

There are many other ways to reduce your home's energy consumption: storm windows, weather stripping on doors, insulated draperies, and during windy, snowy nights doubling a throw rug across the bottom of each door to the outside.

Reducing temperatures in the house to 68 degrees, closing off rarely-used rooms, and closing registers in rooms not used all will contribute to the reduction of home-heating bills.

Heating takes a large bite out of our nation's energy supply. The experts say, keeping the country warm this winter will account for 14 percent of the United States' total fuel bill. The percentage will probably rise as fuel resources are depleted.

Fuel costs are going up so fast, say some experts, that almost anything you do to cut back this year will pay for itself next year.

Madison To Ask $7 Million Bond Issue In March, 1974

Groveport- Madison Local School District held their regular meeting Monday night, postponed one week from the usual second Monday of the month. They decided to request a special election in March for resubmitting a bond issue to the voters, rather than wait until the May 7 primaries. They also commended the school personnel for their conduct and action during the Nov. 2 disturbances at Urbana High School and promised a decision by Dec. 14 on how and where the upcoming Madison-Urbana basketball games could be played in the Central Ohio area with assured safety of the players, but possibley without an audience.

Supt. Philip Williams, in discussion of the proposed building program, noted that the need for additional educational facilities for the fast-growing Madison School District has not changed since Nov. 6, when the bond issue for the program was defeated by 187 votes. The board decided to set March 19 as the date for the special election. The lapse of additional time before advertising for construction bids, if the election is successful, will result in higher costs due to inflation. The architect recommended allowing five percent for this increase. Being defined as a Special Needs District, they voted to ask for a seven million bond issue, to be reduced over 23 years, the maximum maturity period.

The monies would be apportioned as follows: $200,000 for real estate; $5,800,000 for building improvements and athletic facilities; $995,000 for furniture, furnishings, equipment, landscaping and site improvement; $5000 for payment of costs of advertising the Notice of Sale, printing the bonds, legal services and obtaining an approval opinion.

The decision to not place the bond issue on the May primary ballot was influenced by the fact that the 8-district-supported Vocational Education Board will be requesting a bond issue for a second vocational center, and the board would not wish to complicate the problem of informing the public of the need for both building programs; also, building costs are rising at such rapid rate than if advertising for bids would have to be delayed until June, another $50,000 might have to be added to construction estimates.

The special election will cost the board $3,000 which will have to be appropriated out of the general fund next year but bids may be advertised for in March, and the whole process will be cheaper than waiting until June.

The board feels that the bond issue will be passed this time if all parents are informed of the need for it and all parents vote for it. Supt. Williams expressed the need for preparing a statement of just how their children will be housed if the bond issue should fail, and this will be forthcoming later.

The necessity for an increased effort toward informing the public of the need for the bond issue was pointed up in the meeting, when a citizen close to the schools and a former board member asked, "What happened to the new income tax money we have been paying; we thought that would take care of everything!'" President James Fenstermaker answered, "Income tax money pays for operation only."

The same citizen asked, "What about those four new cars used for driver education classes parked out in front of the administrative offices: they cost $4,000 apiece. People think you don't need money when they see things like this."

Supt. Williams answered him with, "Those four cars are donated by a car agency and do not cost us one cent. They are parked in front of the offices because they are less likely to be vandalized when parked there."

In the problem involving crowd control encountered at a football game played at Urbana, Nov. 2, which could have erupted into a situation resulting in many injuries to members of the band, cruiserettes and football team, the school board commended the football coaching staff, instrumental music staff, cruiserette director and administrative staff of the high school for their conduct and actions and sent them a copy of their resolution.

Williams explained that although there might have been some minor harsh words and scuffling between the students of Groveport-Madison and those of Urbana, the problem was largely a black-white problem among non-student rowdies, mostly from Urbana.

The problem of upcoming winter basketball games with Urbana in Groveport's last year in the Mid-Eight League has been discussed by Williams and Urbana officials. It has been agreed that Groveport-Madison athletes will not play in Urbana. The administrators have given Dec. 14 as "a self-imposed deadline" for deciding on an alternative playing plan.

The possible solutions are: playing in a closed gym, with the "rowdies hopefully kept outside;" playing during school hours, with no public allowed in; or play in a metral place, in another gym, unannounced, at an unspecified time, without student or public spectators. Lockbourne Air Base gym was stated as a possible site.

The board did not wish to penalize the players by forfeiting games to Urbana. Forfeiting might keep players from being eligible for athletic scholarships, as well as be disappointing to them.

In other action, the board added pregnancy to the reasons for the use of sick leave among non-certificated personnel, bringing their policy in line with new state laws on the subject.

The board contracted with the Village of Groveport for Ray Kruedelbach's services as a fulltime dropout prevention program director The program is 100 percent state-funded, including his salary. The village will supply his car and expenses. He will work a 40 hour week, sometimes involving evening home visitation, or Saturday work.

The board was authorized to advertise for an additional school bus bid; they reduced the price of milk in the lunchrooms to five cents; hired Susan Pasley for intramural director for grades 4 and 5 at Asbury School and Richard Scott for seventh grade intramural basketball.

Auxiliary Police Seek Members

East Columbus-The Columbus Auxiliary Police Unit is a volunteers' organization. All members serve the community without pay. They must pay for their own uniforms. Yet auxiliary police have full police power when on duty, working in all branches of the Columbus Police Department–juvenile bureau, radio room, patrol working with the department's drug program.

One may find them at work everywhere, with only one exception. Since most are regularly employed, they are not allowed to work on labor disputes.

Women have recently joined the ranks of the volunteer police. Three women who graduated Nov. 8 in the latest class are now at work, mostly in the juvenile bureau and in the radio room.

There are now 125 auxiliary police, but more are needed, according to Capt. R. J. O'Harra, in charge of recruiting and training.

Graduates of the auxiliary police training course are awarded the Ohio Peace Officer's Certificate. Training consists of 272 hours of class and "lab" work, which is 32 more hours than is required by the state for this certificate.

Classes are held Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 10 p.m. every week for eight months.

From 35 to 40 students attend sessions on such varied subjects as criminal law; arrest, search and seizure; collection of evidence; directing traffic, traffic laws; firearms training; self defense; riot control; communications; first aid, including closed chest heart massage; human relations; juvenile problems, and vice and gambling.

People who are physically sound and mentally alert, with high school education or GED certificate may apply for auxiliary police training.

A new class is being formed, to start training January 8. Applications are being taken through Nov. 28. Interested parties may contact Lt. Robert Goldsberry, Columbus Police Academy. 462-4800.

As for the time the auxiliary police spend on the job, eight hours is the minimum they are to give a month, but O'Harra explains, "they all do auite a bit more than that." He says they are on call, for crime control, parades and special assingments such as Halloween patrol, then all of them, being highly motivated when it comes to helping the public, volunteer many more hours doing just that.

Tipton said that UW had achieved 82.6 percent of its $6.8 million goal, with pledges of $5,579,215 as of Nov. 15, when the drive was extended.

Tipton noted, "We want to successfully conclude several company drives and bring these funds into the campaign total." Although several UW fund-raising divisions have achieved 90 percent or more of their goal, a number particularly Commercial B, Construction, and General Business are well below that level. An intensified wrap-up effort will be made in these divisions.

Farm Land State Issue I Has History-Making Margin

IN THE PAST six decades, Ohio voters have faced 120 proposed amendments to the Constitutions. The big all time winner is State Issue 1 on the Nov. 6 ballot. According to the latest figures from the Secretary of State's office, it carried by 1,230,476 votes, the biggest winning margin of any state issue.

SLIGHTLY more than 76 percent of those casting their ballots favored the proposed amendment, the largest percentage ever recorded on either side of a constitutional issue in Ohio.

Issue 1 - which provides for taxing farm land at its use value rather than its "speculative" value - carried in all 88 counties. The lowest percentage margin was in Cuyahoga County, where the issue won by 96,393 votes. The highest percentage was in Delaware County which went for the issue by a margin of better than 10 to 1. The best urban showings were in Franklin County (Columbus) where the issue carried by a 5 to 1 margin and in Montgomery County (Dayton) where it won by a 4 ½ to 1 edge.

"THIS IS a great decision by the people of Ohio", Seth Taft, Chairman of Citizens for Open Space, said today in his victory statement.

At a time when there are serious doubts about the viability of the democratic processes, we showed that democracy is alive and well in Ohio. Literally thousands of Ohioans, rural and urban, campaigned for the issue and more than 8,000 contributed funds to it.

"CITIZENS from all walks of life and all sections of the state recognized the threat to Ohio open spaces as a result of the Supreme Court ruling in the Park Investment case.

As a result we had an enormous number of endorsements from organizations, public officials and the news media. Clearly the people of Ohio have given the General Assembly a mandate for quick action so that farmers will not be forced to sell their property in order to pay taxes."

Charles R. Baker, executive secretary of C-SOS, pegged the total cost of the campaign at $300,000.

"THE BIGGEST contributor was the Ohio Farm Bureau which gave the sponsoring committee $10,000 plus a loan of $15,000 which was subsequently repaid. While many organizations sent smaller contributions and the direct mail appeals were productive, about two thirds of the campaign funds were produced by grass roots committees at work in 86 counties," Baker said.

The closest contender for popular appeal was the 1921 veterans' bonus proposal which passed by 74.6 percent. A dozen years later 69 percent of Ohioans voted in favor of the repeal of prohibition.

THE BIGGEST all-time loser in Ohio history was the proposed repeal of Ohio's graduated income tax, last year's Issue 2. It was rejected by a 1,406,863 vote margin.

For Baker, the Marcus Advertising Agency and Albert H. Sealy, Issue 1's victory was a repeat of last year's performance. Baker was the executive secretary of the citizens committee which campaigned for Issue 1 this year and the one that opposed Issue 2 last fall.

The Marcus Agency handled the radio, television and graphics in both campaigns. Sealy, Dayton Attorney and tax expert, was chairman of Ohioans for Fair Taxation, last year's campaign entity, and a member of the 5 man executive committee of Citizens to Save Open Space.

The other four are Taft, Baker, C. William Swank, Executive Vice President of the Ohio Farm Bureau, and W. Rex Davis, retired Columbus bank executive.

Christmas Mailings Should Be Advanced One Week

BECAUSE OF the energy crisis, Postmaster General E. T. Klassen has urged Americans to post their domestic and foreign Christmas mail one to two weeks earlier than the Postal Service originally recommended.

"The urgency of the fuel energy crisis compels us to request a one week advancement of the suggested dates we gave for domestic mail and a two week advancement for foreign mail," Klassen said.

THE NEW deadline for posting domestic first-class Christmas mail is December 8, rather than December 15, as previously announced. Domestic surface parcels, except those for Alaska and Hawaii, should be mailed by December 3, instead of December 10.

Airmail parcels and letters within the United States (except Alaska and Hawaii) should now be posted no later than December 15, rather than December 21.

"THE SERIOUSNESS of the fuel shortage to the Postal Service is underlines," Klassen said, "by the fact that in addition to the fuel consumed by commercial air carriers, we require approximately 350 million gallons of fuel traveling 2.25 billion miles to deliver the 90 billion pieces of mail that flow through the system each year. Our requirement for the month of December alone is 45 million gallons." Klassen said that "public cooperation on meeting these new, advanced mail early dates is needed to help us complete all Christmas deliveries."

"REDUCTIONS in the number of evening and early morning scheduled airline flights is of particular concern to us," Mr. Klassen said. "Although roughly half of our Christmas mail remains within a 150-mile radius of senders, the Christmas season is a time of particularly large volumes of long-distance mail.

"Except for surface parcels and other bulk materials, much of this long distance mail travels by air.

"So far, reductions in airline flights have not interferred with our ability to meet service standards since alternate flights have been available," he said. "But further reductions, particularly coming as they may during the Christmas season, give us cause for concern."

TODAY, the Postal Service delivers airmail letters overnight to designated cities, generally those communities within a few hours' flight time and with appropriate air service. Within the contiguous 48 states, the Postal Service promises that at least 95 percent of all airmail letters will be delivered in no more than two days.

The Postmaster General has also requested that long-haul truck operators under contract to the Postal Service observe the 50-mile-an-hour speed limit asked by President Richard M. Nixon. To enable them to do this and still meet contract requirements, the Postal Service is re-evaluating its long-haul truck operations to make necessary schedule changes. The Postal Service clamped an energy-saving 50 m.p.h. limit on its own vehicles last May.

"The effect of the 50-mile-an-hour speed limit will be most noticeable in the West, where typically you find long distances separating communities," Klassen said.

The Postmaster General emphasized that the Postal Service had anticipated the nation's energy crisis, noting a continuing decline over the past years in the Service's energy use while mail volumes were simultaneously increasing.

"Over the past five years, we reduced our energy use by an average of 4.4 percent per year and over the last three years, our average per annum decrease has been six percent," Klassen said.

A CONSERVATION program at Washington, D.C. headquarters facilities and similar effort among the nation's 40,000 postal facilities was instituted earlier this year.

The Postal Service plans to announce further actions in connection with the energy crisis.

American Red Cross Has Christmas Package Ideas

THE AMERICAN Red Cross has some suggestions for Christmas presents for servicemen and a reminder to their families and friends to mail soon. With years of experience in Services to the Armed Forces, the Red Cross suggests that a variety of small items to open is usually more welcome than one large gift.

The Red Cross also advises originality in the seasonal wrapping and a special effort to put some personality - yours and the receivers - in these Christmas gifts.

AMONG THE items Red Cross suggests are: a combination pocket knife, small tool kit, cuff links, individually wrapped shoe polish envelopes, packages of pre-moistened towelets, shoe mittens, adjustable picture frames, guidebooks for countries the serviceman might visit on leave, after-shave lotion, pocket comb and nail file, a key case, a rechargeable flashlight, notepaper and stamps (gentle hint!), clip board clothes brush, lint remover, set of greeting cards and wrapping paper, a filled photo album, hand-knit items, a traveling chess or checker set, playing cards, puzzles and small games, ever-necessary handkerchiefs, a thermos, a quick immersion heater, a selection of dehydrated soups, individual pudding packs, smoked oysters, cheese, canned meats, an enlargement of a fovarite home neighborhood scene, the latest book in his hobby field, a subscription to the hometown newspaper, folding slippers.

CARE SHOULD be exercised not only in choosing gifts but in packing them properly. Fragile items must be well cushioned. Foam rubber chips are practically weightless and hometown newspapers stuffed beta een the gifts help keep them from shifting.

If home-prepared food is sent, be sure its edibility extends several weeks. Red Cross advises that cookies should be individually wrapped and packed in metal air-tight containers. The outer box should be sturdy and the address legible.

Hospital Smoking Regulations Are Not Being Observed

A RECENT study of fires in Columbus hospitals has caused Fire Chief Raymond Fadley to re-emphasize observance of smoking regulations in such facilities. The study shows that more than 80 fires have been reported over a three year period. One-third of those fires were directly attributed to smoking or careless handling of smoking materials.

Pointing up the seriousness of the problem, public records show in recent years, two deaths in local nursing home fires attributed to smoking.

SMOKING is not encouraged, but hospital officials realize patients would often be placed under a great stress if denied the right to smoke. Of course, patients under sedation or deemed not responsible, due to their medical condition, are not permitted to smoke or are allowed to do so only under supervision. Ambulatory patients are encouraged to smoke only in lounges, waiting rooms or areas provided.

Chief Fadley has issued a plea to visitors to observe the smoking regulations. He pointed out that the majority of visitors are in the hospital for a short period of time and should be able to observe the rules banning smoking in patient rooms. They, too, may use the areas designated for smoking.

THE CHIEF said that fortunately the fires reported in the study were of a minor nature, but he fears the possibility of a serious hospital fire that would bring tragic consequences. Safety inspections are conducted regularly and hospital personnel are trained in prevention and fire fighting techniques.

However, his main concern is that visitors cooperate with hospitals in insuring the safety of patients by complying with smoking regulations.

A Great Athlete Is Honored

JESSE OWENS, the great Olympian who will soon be presented with the National Collegiate Athletic Association's highest honor, the Theodore Roosevelt Award, received a memento of his most recent visit to Columbus from J. Fred Pomraning, Columbus Group Manager of Sears, Roebuck and Co. Owens completed a four-day round of speaking engagements and personal appearances at the Sears Sports Luncheon and the Salesian Inner-City Boys' Club November 13. Urging public support of the Boys' Club Owens told some 150 youngsters at the Club that "you form the core of our society, and you little people face great responsibilities". Owens spoke to some 250 high school coaches, city recreation leaders and state and local dignitaries at the Sears Sports Luncheon. Other Sears Officials shown above are Bob Brown, Group Merchandise Manager, left, and James Rugge, Group Sales Promotion Manager, right.

Goodwill Industries Are Very Thankful

To the Editor:

November is Goodwill Industries national "Thanks-For-Giving" Month. I would like to take this opportunity to thank each member of the Central Ohio community for support of our five Goodwill Centers in Columbus, Marion, Newark, Chillicothe and Portsmouth.

If you have contributed one dress or one item of used furniture to Goodwill Industries, you have helped Goodwill in its effort toward helping people fulfill their roles in society.

You have helped Goodwill inevaluating and training those with physical impairment or mental handicaps.

Your contribution has helped Goodwill provide counseling, guidance and job experience to the emotionally disturbed, those on welfare, and parolees from our state prisons.

Nonprofit Goodwill Industries nationally served over 65,000 handicapped and disabled people last year. Locally, we helped over 2,000 handicapped persons. These people are from all walks of life with differing abilities, personal tragedies and personal goals.

The financial contributions, business contracts and surplus items given to Goodwill are greatly appreciated. They help Goodwill fulfill its objective..."Helping the Handicapped Help Themselves."

As Thanksgiving Day is approaching, I would like to thank each of you personally for your assistance to the Goodwill program, and look forward to an even greater program for the handicapped in 1974.

The tour train and the riverboat are out of service until early spring but most exhibits remain open and according to Dr. Savoy, winter is a great time to go "zooing"!

The Ohio Historical Society presents "The Colonial Naturalist" as the free weekend movie shown at the Ohio Historical Center located at the intersection of I-71 and 17th Avenue.

It will be shown at 2 and 3 p.m. in the Center's auditorium on Saturday and Sunday, November 24 and 25. Admission is free.

Warrior Wrap-up

By Mike Brennan

The Administration of Eastmoor High School is expanding its curriculum in order to make possible a more relevant and individual course selection. In addition to the school's job training courses, COE, OWE, DE, and IOE (which incidentally has the only word processing lab in the city), students may pursue personal course of independent study for which they can receive up to one full credit.

EASTMOOR has students working on independent study projects in Social Studies, Journalism, and Greek. Stephen Kerscher, the Journalism II advisor, commented that his students were pursuing a wide variety of projects, and added, "We run a top-notch educational course here."

One of the independent study classes came about when senior Gary Hoffman voiced a desire to study Greek, a course not offered at the school. He found a qualified Greek teacher in Craig Toth, the school's In The Know advisor. Other students Ken Supowit and Steve Tyroler, heard of the class, joined, and Eastmoor now has the only Greek study course in the Columbus Public school system. Tyroler commented, "Since the class is so small, we progress rapidly," and added, "I understand we are keeping pace with the OSU beginning Greek course."

STUDENTS interested in studying Russian may be in luck next year. Mr. Toth is working on his certification in that language, and if he completes the courses by September, will provide instruction in that field.

The results of senior class officer elections were announced last week. In the runoff contests held last Nov. 9, Pete Cannon was elected president; Jeff Block will serve as his vice president; Carol Peery emerged victorious in the race for secretary, and Trent R. Clark cashed in on the office of senior class treasurer.

Band director Robert Birkhimer last week announced the 1973 Fall concert of seasonal music. The concert will be held in the Eastmoor auditorium, Dec. 16, at 3 p.m., and will feature performances by the Eastmoor concert band and wind ensemble. Admission will be free.

Velvet For The Holidays

'IN' fashion

with Tess Stern

CROMPTON'S luxurious rayon velvet was made for romantic evenings like this charming Juliet dress by Calderon for S. Howard Hirsch of California.

THIS luxurious velveteen gown with glittering silver thread all-over embroidery is designed by the House of Branell. Comes in grey, black or brown.

MASTER of elegant sportswear, Kasper of J.L. Sport created a delightful cotton velveteen pantsuit collared and cuffed in racoon. Available in black or brown.

FOR THE fashion conscious man, consider this velveteen blazer by I. Aaronson in Crompton's rich cotton velveteen...comes in Rally red, brown, navy, bottlegreen. All available locally.

VELVET AND VELVETEEN, those incurable romantics, are never as lovely or enhancing as during the Holiday season. Traditional favorites of the hostess and party-goer alike, these festive fabrics by Crompton, appear each year with a fresh and exciting new fashion message.

FEMININITY IS rampant throughout the collections...and whether the look is bare or covered, the feeling is always elegant and luxurious in long fluid evening dresses. A seductive decolletage or subtly bared back are shown in romantic Juliet dresses and tailored halter gowns. When the look is covered up, there's usually the added opulence of medieval embroidery or gold and silver threads used in delicate quilting.

FOR DAYTIME all the great fashion looks begin this season with the velveteen or velvet jacket. It can be blazered, wrapped, double breasted or long and snug...but always designed with great individuality and flair in details and trims...lavish fur collars and cuffs as well as glittering embroidery...while man-tailored velveteen tuxedos and quilted velvet pea jackets are the epitome of understated elegance.

EVEN THE MEN have been included in this yen for velvet in their clothes. Solid velveteens in a variety of colors are shown in handsome, impeccably cut blazers, that need only a change of accessories to take them from daytime to evening. For formal evenings or groom's wear, clover-shaped lapels of soft grey velvet add excitement to a worsted dinner jacket...a two-button black tuxedo is enhanced with fleur-de-lis embroidered velvet collar and notched lapels. Velvet completes a harmonious portrait for today's young lovers...whoever they are!

Rounding Up The Rams

by Pam Cascioli

FLOWERS for Algernon was presented to the public in the Whitehall-Yearling High School auditorium on Nov. 9 and 10, at 8 p.m. The play was sponsored by the Drama Department and was directed by Mrs. Breen. The student director was Fran DelValle.

The mouse used in the play was donated by Pet Land. The play turned out well because of the efforts of the cast and crews.

THE RAMS' track team and statisticians had a very unusual fund raising project to do on Saturday Nov. 17. All around Whitehall they were seen walking from door-to-door in their grubbiest clothes and asking if there was anything they could do to help in any way. They raked leaves, cleaned garages, washed cars, and anything else they could help with, for any donation.

The wrestling team has a new addition this year. They now have a group of about forty girls called "Mat Stats". The girls will have uniforms that consist of black pants, white shirts, red sweaters, and red hats. These girls will not only help Mr. Tennant, the wrestling coach for the varsity team, but also cheer and support the Rams' wrestling team. The team will have their parents at Whitehall on Nov. 28. The girls will be introduced then.

ON MONDAY, Nov. 12, a band concert was given after the P.T.A. meeting in the auditorium. The concert was given in honor of Mr. Floyd Eddiott, who retired last year from teaching orchestra.

Speaking of Beauty

THE SWEET SMELL OF SUCCESS

On Wall Street beauty stocks reflect steady and sometimes spectacular growth thanks to the American emphasis on "Looking One's Best". We in this beauty salon understand why that should be so because we're the people who recognized how firmly that idea was entrenched in the American dream, and built our lives around it. Whatever you want to know about beauty and or beauty products, you can probably get the best and most perceptive answer from the owner of the beauty salon you patronize. So whether your question is which beauty stock to buy or what product to use for your own beauty needs, come see us. Beauty is our bag.

"BRADY BUNCH" star Barry Williams chats off camera with an "extra" while other members of the "Brady" family, Robert Reed and Christopher Knight (center), film a scene in the Coney Island section of Kings Island. The show will be broadcast this Friday on channel 6, WTVN-TV.

Roland Sunker is "on vacation" this week and his column for this week is abbreviated. He'll be back at the regular "Around Town" beat next week.

Skipping Around Town

Pat and Diann opened this past Monday at Lincoln Lodge. They are a high powered duo, with plenty of good instrumentals and vocals. Wait until you see Diann, what a knock out! More on them next week....For you lovers of fine, gourmet food, remember the Marriott Inn. Their food is fit for royalty. So is their entertainment. Duke Jenkins reminds me a lot of the old Nat King Cole. Take my advice, and head to the Marriott Inn soon....For the time of your life, with good entertainment, be sure you visit the Miss Delois Lounge in Gahanna. Owned and operated by that sexy bomb shell, Miss DeLois, the lounge features the gal herself on stage doing her fabulous singing and dance routines. Miss DeLois has worked all over the world, as well as several of the top spots in Columbus. She loved the area so much, that she decided to settle down. So she bought her own club and entertains there nightly....The Four Coins returned to our city. They are currently at the Ramada Inn South. This is the group that sold several million records a few years ago. Drop in and give them a listen. They put on a fine show, as well as playing for dancing...Joel Dane is currently at the Ramada Inn East. Joe has become an old favorite to the people of Columbus. His group presents a high powered show, that's for sure. Up a Ramada Inn-North The Don Hinton Show is making a returned engagement. So take your choice and be sure to visit one of these great show groups at one of the Ramada Inns. Having seen all three, let me give you a hint. Try to catch all three, you won't be sorry...

Remember last August when yours Truely went to Kings Island to interview the Brady Bunch gang while shooting a show for their TV series? Well, that show will be broadcast Friday, Nov. 23.

Officals at Paramount Television, the producers of the show, said the sequence will be shown nationally on the ABC Television Network, and will be seen on WTVN-TV, locally.

Thousands of Kings Island visitors watched, and some even participated in the filming of the show. The 60 man cast and crew utilized the park's five themed areas during the four day filming session.

The sequence, entitled, "The Cincinnati Kids," has Mike Brady, played by Robert Reed, take the family with him as he presents his architectural plans for a new addition to Kings Island. The plans become inadvertently misplaced while the family is in the park and a variety of comic situations evolve while recovering the drawings.

Also appearing in the show are co-stars Florence Henderson, and Ann B. Davis and the "Brady" children, Maureen McCormick, Eve Plumb, Susan Olsen, Barry Williams, Christopher Knight and Mike Lookinland.

After watching parts of the show being filmed, I can assure you this is one of the best and funniest ones of the season for the Brady Bunch. Also, I think you will enjoy seeing the sights on television that many of you have seen in person. Who knows, you may even see some of your friends in some of the crowd shots.

It all happens on channel 6, WTVN-TV this Friday. This is one television I will be watching.

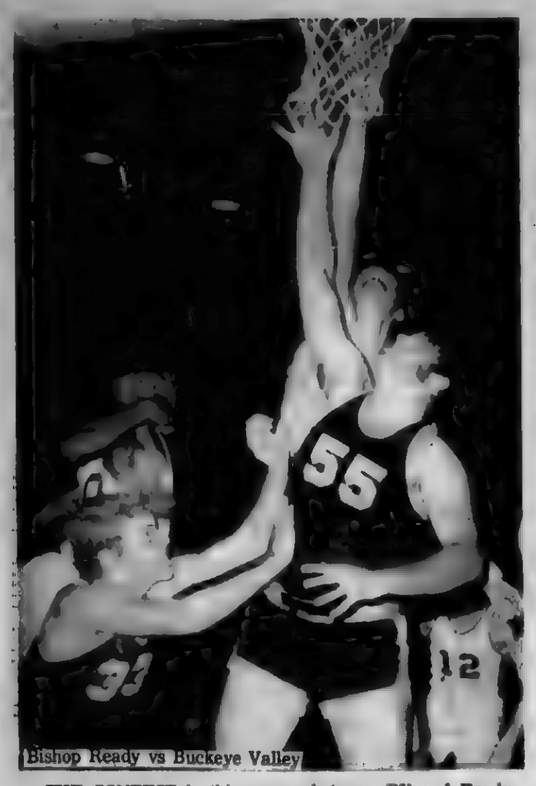
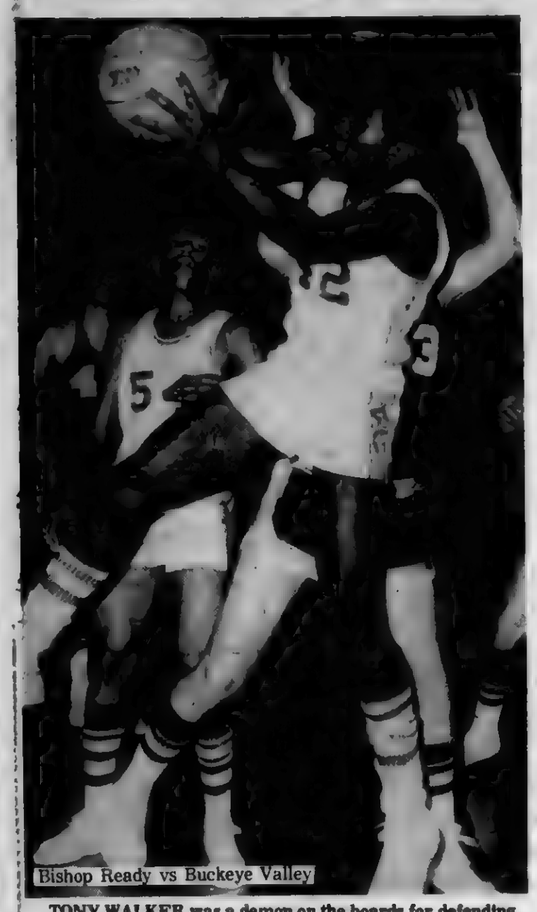
Bishop Ready Seems Ready To Repeat



Bishop Ready vs Buckeye Valley

THE CONTEST in this opener between BV and Ready provided the fans plenty of thrills and close-quarter play. In this Craig Weaver photo Ready's Barry Longhino tosses up a shot while at left Mike Curtis (30) comes into the play and BV's Eastergay (55) and Brent Fickle (33) make an effort.



Bishop Ready vs Buckeye Valley

TONY WALKER was a demon on the boards for defending Class AA state champs Bishop Ready as they downed Buckeye Valley easily last Friday. Walker (42) grabs this rebound as Bob Cumberlander (54) watches and BV's Brent Fickle (33) goes for the ball.

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

THE ROUNDBALL arced toward the hoop last weekend with Bishop Ready continuing its domination of area AA action via a blasting of Buckeye Valley. In other first week action Reynoldsburg handled Bexley, Hartley dropped its initial contest to Central and Worthington looked impressive in downing Whitehall.

Things get into full swing after Thanksgiving and here is how the league races look.

CITY LEAGUE

South took the marbles last year but things look different now as the coaches are calling East and Walnut Ridge as the cage strongboys in the highly touted CL.

Ron Marshall should be the shooter of the Walnut Ridge five as Nick Vollman, Todd Loe, Larry Capehart and Bob Bardeland also return. This Jack Moore coached group should resemble the speed of the state-championship days for the Scotties.

Paul Pennell's East High Tiger crew's hopes lie with four returning lettermen. Hilton Hale (6-3), Mike Hall (6-2), Terry Jameson (6-6) and Phil Nixon (5-11). Hale, the only returning starter, (he averaged 8 points a game last year) is considered all-league talent by area coaches. Jameson logged considerable playing time last year also for the fast breaking Tigers.

West looks to be a solid contender this season as Marv Schultz finds four regulars back from last years 8-11 squad. Tim Thrush (6-2, 12ppg.), Wes Redd (6-1, 16.8), Ron Williams (6-2, 16.2) and Warren Lewis (6-3,5.6) represent almost 51 points per game. The free-lancing Cowpokes could surprise a few people providing their defense lives up to expectations.

Eastmoor could be a deceiving club this year according to some area coaches. The Warriors have Brian Stertzer, Pete Liptrap, Rob Hunter and David Potter returning.

Stertzer, a valuable two sports star, will hold the hopes of the Warriors and reports are that he has looked extremely impressive in pre-season scrimmages. Brian is a lean but muscular 6-3.

OHIO CAPITAL

The OCC has coaches calling the shots quite differently as almost every team has gained mention as a contender. It should be some race with Westland as a solid choice and Worthington and Whitehall also labeled as sure-fired bonafide contenders.

Things look real bright for a supreme turn around for former Ohio State basketballer Dan Andreas and his Westland crew. The Cougars were a meager 6-13 last year but that seemed to be a rebuilding year.

Four starters return in Jim Cuthbert (6-4, 10.5 ppg.), Gregg Stormont (6-3, 9.5), Gregg Spellman (6-1, 12.2) and Mike Riggs (6-2,2.9). All four should be able to perform a clog in Westland's switching defenses and its control offense.

Never count out a team coached by the "Dean of Coaches", personalbe Russ Gregg. Four letterman return with Terry Burris leading the charge. Other letter winners returning are Chris Zag, Bill Besalski and Steve Marinello.

Burris is the high-jumping dandy, he averaged 15.8 points per game last year and has been mentioned by some as an all-state coandidate. Benton Teddie a smooth ball-handling guard, is a transfer student from Gahanna and Coach Gregg is looking for some help from him.

Worthington returns three starters; Tim Crandall, Don Brough and football genius Doug Burkhardt. Crandall was all-league a year ago and should be counted on heavily to improve on his 10 point per game average.

The trademark of this Pat Mannion crew is its pressure man to man defense.

Reynoldsburg has leading scorer Ed Williams back to control things while he will be complimented by Pat Beasley, a smooth backcourter. Also returning to add point power are Mark Wade and Mike Mahaffey.

CENTRAL CATHOLIC

Two time Class AA State Champions Ready have lost coach Pat Penn and sharpshooter Jimmy Jones but area onlookers don't think that they have lost the championship touch as the Silver Knights still captain the CCL.

Ready will bank on the experience of Bob Cumberlander, Tom Walker, Barry Longino, Tom Curtiss and Tony Walker. And, yea, there is something else that Ready has backing them, a bunch of pride and tradition.

Hartley welcomes back five letterman, Dave Profera (6-5, 9ppg.), Rick Boone (6-5, 2.0), Mike Gilliland (5-10, 3.5) (those three started last year) and Doug Jones and Ron White.

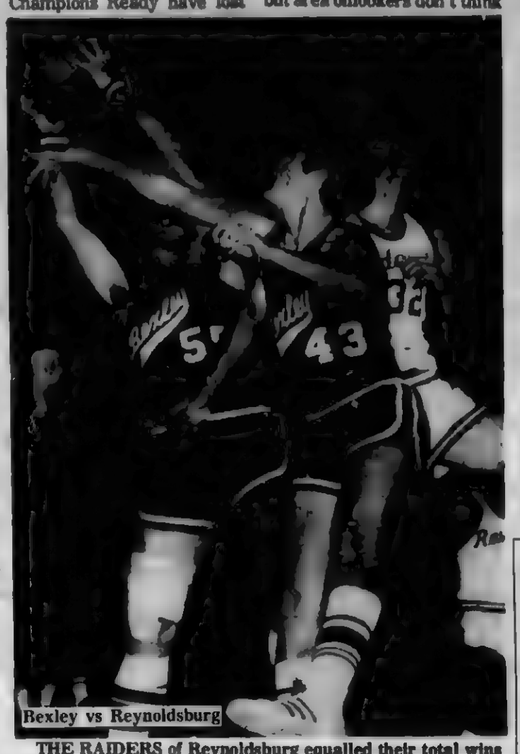
The pressing Hawks of Dick Geyer could give Ready a run for the crown.

St. Charles is the new entry of the CCL and this Jerry Connor coached gang looks real eager. Jim Carlisle, Rhett Plank, Marty Klunk, Eric Stinson, Phil Polk and Mike Haufeld all logged enought time last year to letter. Stinson, (16ppg), Carlisle (12) and Hausfeld started a year past.

OTHERS

Bexley is coming off of a great 17-5 season but heavy graduation losses make coach Gene Millard feel that the Lions are not in the Mid-Eight title picture. Hustling guard vonverted scorer Marc Abramson and lanky center Mark Liefeld are the Bexley hopeufls as both started on last year's district championship team.

Franklin Heights coach Bruce Brown says, "Darkhorse," when questioned about the Golden Falcon's Metro League hopes. Returning starters Larry Ferst, Mike Blount, Gary Jordan and Ron Lathem will lead the Falcon charge. Blount is the only senior, the others are juniors. Ferst averaged 17 points per game last year for the pressing Falcons.



Bexley vs Reynoldsburg

THE RAIDERS of Reynoldsburg equalled their total wins of last season (one) as they tripped Bexley last Friday at the Raider gym. Numbers were not available to the Spectator photographer but this action caught everyone in the ball control game. At top two Lions go for the ball as a Raider comes up to contest it. Bottom is a Bexley ball handler maneuvering out of the way of a Raider defender. (Photos by Dan Unkefer.)

Bishop Ready vs Buckeye Valley

READY CO-CAPTAIN Bob Cumberlander (54) got this high arch shot away over the outstretched arms of Buckeye Valley guard ob Curties for two of his game high points. (BV-Ready photos by Craig Weaver.)

Westland Host To Illinois

The Wildcats are members of the Mid-West Youth League.

The Bloomingdale Bears will be guests in the homes of the Wildcat players.

There will be a 110 lb. game at 5 p.m. between the Westland All-Stars and the 110 lb. team from Bloomingdale.

Doctors Hospital Honors Volunteers

Columbus--Columbus' Mayor Tom Moody was featured speaker at the Doctors Hospital Volunteer Recognition Brunch held Nov. 3 at Scioto Country Club. The award luncheon is given annually by the hospital as an expression of appreciation to its volunteers who now number almost 400 adults and teenagers.

"There is special lilt and grace to uncompensated service," Mayor Moody told the 178 volunteers who were in attendance. "What a magnificent thing it is that there are people like you in our community. The service you give is good for our economy, for our happiness and it is good for you."

Members of the Doctors Hospital administrative staff also paid glowing tribute to the volunteers: Richard L. Sims, Administrator; Dewitt L. Adams, D.O., Chief of Staff; J. David Luckhaupt, Associate Administrator, Patient Services; Lois Waite, Director of Volunteers; Betty Zuhars, Associate Director of Volunteers; and John L. Bishop, Associate Adminstrator, Operational Services, who served as Toastmaster. Mrs. Charles W. Pavey, Chairman of Red Cross Hospital Volunteers, also spoke words of appreciation before presenting the Red Cross awards.

Doctors Hospital volunteers come from all areas of the city as well as from nearby towns. A number are retired citizens, some working as a husband-wife team. Some are high school teenagers who serve under the Volunteer Program. The oldest volunteer, however, is 82 years of age.

A new program, begun a few years ago, involves ninth graders age 14 and over. These Junior Volunteens are trained to serve in many areas not directly involving patient care.

After an interview with the Director of Volunteers, those accepted undergo an indoctrination period during which they are trained to work in many different areas of the hospital.

Among services performed by volunteers are: manning the information desk; working in the gift shop and taking the gift cart to the floors; manning the desk in the Surgery and OB waiting rooms; assisting the nursing staff in the emergency room; assisting in pediatric and OB clinics; distributing Ruth Lyons toys to pediatric patients; clerical work in various offices.

Volunteers also work on the nursing floors, performing a number of duties that do not require professional personnel such as personal services for patients, feeding, filling water pitchers, distributing mail and flowers and escorting new admissions.

COSI Christmas Tree Lighting Is International Event

A HOLIDAY EVENT that has become traditional at the Center of Science and Industry is the annual international Christmas tree lighting and the arrival of Santa Claus which this year falls on Friday, November 23.

Santa is scheduled to arrive at the Center at 7:30 p.m. and will touch his magic wand to a switch which will illuminate all of the trees.

He will then lead the assembled audience in the singing of "Silent Night" accompanied by the Strollers of Upper Arlington High School and Mike Williams at the organ.

The trees are a public service project of the Columbus Rotary Club and symbolize peace and understanding among nations.

THIS YEAR a live pine tree 12 feet tall planted in the solar front exhibit area will join the inside lobby trees in proclaiming the joyous Holiday Season. This tree was contributed by the Columbus Metropolitan Park System.

Another traditional event connected with the tree lighting is the first showing of the planetarium Christmas show, "The Star of Bethlehem" which takes the audience back 2,000 years to see the sky as it may have appeared when Jesus was born. The audience in the planetarium sees the many astronomical phenomena that may or may not have been seen by the Wise Men.

On week days during Christmas, school vacation extends from December 24 thru December 31, and during this time the show "The Star of Bethlehem" will be shown at 1:30 p.m. daily.

COSI will be closed on Christmas and New Year's Day.

OTHER HOLIDAY events scheduled at COSI include two live magic shows, "Red Penley'Master Magician" Sunday, November 25 at 2 and 4 p.m., and "The Amazing Keplar" Sunday, December 23 at 2 and 4 p.m.

THE CENTER'S Education Department will also be conducting Colonial Christmas workshops for students Saturdays in November and December in Colonial Christmas cards, Christmas Candles, Home Decorations for the tree, and Homemade Presents.

The classes are for pre-school-kindergarten, grades one thru three, and grades four thru eight.

Persons interested should call the Center's education department at 228-6361.

THE DURELL Street of Yesteryear at the Center will again be gaily dressed in its colorful style of the 1800's and early 1900's, and there will be Christmas music to give cheer to the holiday background.

For information about any of the Center's programs call 228-6361.

Year Of The Linebacker Made Season Crackle

BY SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

As the weeks rolled on during this past football season the public address system repititiously echoed..."Snider on the tackle...Hall on the stop...Ball carrier knocked out of bounds by Griffin, Meindel and Hunter...QB sacked by Belcastro...Pass batted down by Winslow...tackle by Woodburn and Glenn.

THEY TALKED about the speedy running backs in the area, boasted of the awesome linemen, bragged about the strong-armed quarterbacks and even whispered about the cute pony-tailed cheerleaders. But make no mistake about it. This 1973 high school gridiron season was "The Year Of The Linebacker".

And heading this elite group of area schoolboy toughies is six-foot 185 pound strongboy Don Snider. Snider, the pride of West's rugged Cowboy defensive unit, was labeled by one area coach as "animal." (compliment intended Don)

"We really consider him as the best," raves West grid mentor Dave Koblentz. "He was our captain and he is just an excellent leader." Snider intercepted two passes and recovered five fumbles during the season that saw the Cowboys belt City King Walnut Ridge 10-0.

Snider was ably assisted by co-worker Hap Hall. Hall also drew great praise from Koblentz, "Hap is not real far behind (Snider), he's a great linebacker." Koblentz added, "These two complimented each other real well."

AND JUST that they did. Snider participated in 141 tackles while Hall was credited with 88 and according to Koblentz, "We expect our linebackers to be in on 75 percent of all tackles, and both of these kids did." This was some duo.

Walnut Ridge's City League Champion Scots, perhaps, possessed the best group of linebackers assembled on one defensive unit. Mark Glenn, Steve Winslow, Kevin Glenn and Mike Woodburn stood out in this Scot defensive eleven that held its opponents to a meager 22 regular season points.

"We felt the big forte was that not one of these men stood out because they are all so good and they all worked together so well," explained Scot coach Vince Cahill.

Kevin Glenn led with 94 participations but there were few solo tackles accumulated by this group because, "There was almost always two or three defenders at the point of attack, they were just so quick," accounted Vince.

"We really can't tell just how good each one is because of this," he concluded.

EASTMOOR boasted a rugged trio of linebackers in Rick Meindel, Rob Humer and Duncan Griffin. These three anchored the defensive wall that helped rocket the Warriors to the City League South Co-championship. Meindel and Griffin were important clogs in the Warrior's offensive machine also, while Hunter filled in occasionally on offense.

These three were instrumental in holding their City League opponents to a petty 3.3 yards per carry.

Franklin Heights dandy defensive demons were Tim Matheny and Perry Belcastro. Coach Ed Lewis labeled the two as "Very different because of our slant defense."

LEWIS DID say, "Belcastro is just a great football player and we feel you can't sell Matheny short either, he was hurt the last four or five games and that did take away from his performance."

Belcastro also led the offensive drive of the nifty Falcons while being credited on defense with 33 participations in one single contest. (By the way area coaches, he is only a sophomore.)

Jeff Edelstein, Bexley's sturdy two way performer, was the class of the Mid-Eight defenders while Paul Keglemeyer of Hartley and Dan Dillon of Watterson stood out in the Central Catholic League. It looked as if all three had enemy runners sprinting to the opposite side of the field continuously.

SMOKEY WION'S second place Ohio Capital Conference Worthington Cardinals had Doug Burkhart pacing the defensive charge for his performers. Durable Doug, 6-2 185, was also labeled by Coach Wion as "A real team leader." As an OCC standout, Doug landed a first team berth on the All - Star team.

So whether you are an offensive wizard or a defensive hardhitter, you would probably agree, this football season was, "The Year Of The Linebacker."

Ice Fishing Without Ice

Local panfisherman awaiting the ice fishing season can try the following method for harvesting large bluegills during the late fall months. Attach two tiny ice fishing jigs (size 10 - 12 hooks) about a foot and a half apart on the end of your line. Impale a golden grub onto each jig and fish the jigs as close to the bottom as possible using the smallest bobber that will float.

Fish the deepest holes you can find, avoiding shorelines and swallow water. Remember that fish feed more delicately in cold water and the slightest motion of your bobber is normal when a fish takes the bait. Using this method, anglers have made consistent outstanding catches of large bluegills and redear sunfish and once the fish are located, you can enjoy the same fast action as found in winter ice fishing.

Reminder To Upland Game Hunters During Deer Gun Season

Upland game and raccoon season will be closed in counties having a deer gun season. Check "Special Notice" in the 1973 Ohio Hunting & Trapping Regulations for detailed information.

The following counties in District One are effected by these regulations: (Deer Zone 2) Delaware, Logan, Marion, Morrow and Union counties; (Deer Zone 4) Fairfield, Knox and Licking counties.

Any public hunting areas falling in a deer gun zone (including Big Island, Delaware, Kokosing, Alum Creek and Ohio Highway Transportation Research Center Wildlife Areas) will be closed to all hunting, except waterfowl and deer, from November 26 thru 28, 1973 (Zone 2) and November 26 thru December 1, 1973 (Zone 4).

Youth Hunt Results

The Division of Wildlife of The Ohio Department of Natural Resources reported that more than 1,000 young Ohio hunters participated in a special early upland game season this month.

The young hunter, who had to have a safe hunter certificate from the Division of Wildlife and be accompanied by a licensed nonhunting adult, harvested 109 rabbits, 103 pheasent and 38 quail.

The hunt was conducted at Delaware, Resthaven, Spencer, Grand River, Woodbury and Spring Valley wildlife areas.

Upland Game Outlook

Ohio hunters should find rabbit and quail plentiful this year, but probably won't see as many pheasents as last year. The Division of Wildlife reports that an August survey shows the state's rabbit and quail populations are up nine percent and the pheasent population is down nearly 12 percent from last year.

Ohio has about 500,000 acres of free public hunting land andmore than 700,000 acres of farm land where the owner has an agreement with the state to allow hunting with permission.

Dan C. Armbruster, Chief of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Division of Wildlife, urges sportsman to use every safty precaution when hunting. "Hunters should make sure of their target, load their gun only when in the field and hunt at a leisurely pace," he said.

Golden Age News And Notes

TO SMASH through the stone wall of loneliness often seems an impossible task to an older person confined by either physical or economic circumstances to one spot.

To help him penetrate this wall and show him the way to help others through it is what Tele-A-Friend Reassurance and Outreach-is all about. It is a division of the Columbus Area Community Mental Health Center and the Council on Aging.

From its headquarters at the North Columbus Jaycees, at Jaycee Arms, 266 E. Main St., Tele-A-Friend reaches out all over the city to its 170 clients and 170 volunteers.

Mrs. Lois Kuhn, its enthusiastic Director, is convinced there are thousands in the Community needing its services. She is currently engaged in various promotional schemes to ferret them out and get them to join her happy family.

ACTUALLY, this is kind of like the old fashioned party line enjoyed by our grandmothers in simpler and more rural settings.

Say you're plunked down in the middle of the city and for any number of reasons you can't get out and you don't know anyone to talk to. That's where the "lonely wall" comes in'it could happen to anyone.

YOUR SOLUTION is as near as your telephone-simply dial 224-7444. You'll be given a volunteer. This volunteer enters into a compact with you to telephone you seven days a week, talk with you, and check on your well-being.

If there is no answer at the agreed upon time, the volunteer will enlist the aid of a friend, relative, or agency to make a home visit to see what is wrong.

OF COURSE, how it turns out is that you find a friend, a surrogate family, and there is soon a community of ideas, interests, and tidbits of news to eagerly exchange each day.

The reason Tele-A-Friend keeps expanding is that the you who thought he was too lonely to be part of the tide of life any more, discovers after a few months that there are all kinds of things to be interested in and that need doing in the community. You are soon on the telephone asking; "Can't I be a Volunteer and have a client of my own?

I think I can help someone else."

MEANWHILE, back at Tele-A-Friend headquarters, the agency itself is not idle. Mrs. Kuhn explained that both client and volunteer are regularly called once a month to evaluate the quality and refularity of the service.

This keeps both in constant contact with trained geriatric staff personnel. A newsletter is edited and mailed monthly to clients and volunteers with news items about participants and information of interest to the elderly.

SPEAKING of information, volunteers are furnished with an impressive kit of information about every service and aid that exist in the community.

The sources range from legal aid, through dental assistance, to medical and hospital facilities, food stamp information, welfare aid, and senior recreational opportunities.

The volunteer has at her finger tips the telephone number that will solve an astonishing number of problems. Finally, there is an emergency service.

THE TELE-A-FRIEND number is plugged in automatically at the end of every working day to the Mental Health Center. Here a staff of four professionals, with transportation available, are on 24 hour duty.

Mrs. Kuhn spoke with pride of her new efforts of expansion in the Community: Operation Outreach now has two centers; the East North Broadway Methodist Church, and the Northland Church of Christ.

These centers will operate on a concept of service to their neighborhoods providing a focal point of contact for anyone needing help.

Assistance.. from home visits through emergency relief to arrangements for every kind of health care as well as just friendly conversation will be available.

ANOTHER movement is the wholly new organization "The Grandkids". These are groups of selected teenagers throughout the city who adopt a matching group of "grandparents" who are mostly institutionalized.

The kids have one requirement; they must promise to send four letters a month at least and for their part the grandparents agree on at least one answer per month. This of course just begins the "Grandkids and Grandparents" dialogue.

Mrs. Kuhn spoke with regret at not being able to reach more people whom she knows must be aching for her services. The problem is not volunteers'there are plenty-it is clients. She asks "if you need us-just call 224-7444."

Group Changes

At the recent meeting of the Board of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce, the name of the Downtown Area Committee, an organization affiliated with the Chamber since 1965, changed its name to the Downtown Action Committee.

The committee for years has expressed the concerns of the downtown and instituted programs that were action oriented and is now involved in the promotion of such action projects as the river front amphitheatre and implementation of planner Vincent Ponte's downtown park and Broad Street tree projects.

The Downtown Action Committee is composed of downtown businessmen and governmental officials who have a commitment to develop the downtown area of Columbus as the heart of the progressive and urbanized state Capital of Ohio.

NOW HEAR This: The Jewish Center indoor pool will be open for family swims over Thanksgiving Day Weekend. The holiday schedule is as follows: Nov. 22, Thursday, Thanksgiving, 1 to 4 p.m.; Nov. 23, Friday, 1 to 4 p.m.; Nov. 24, Saturday, 2 to 5 p.m.; Nov. 25, Sunday, 10 - 12 Adults only, 2-5 Open swim, all ages.

..DIVING--Instruction in basic diving is offered on Saturday evenings at 6-7:30 p.m. Boys and girls 8 years and up who can perform a standing front dive are invited to join the class.

Diving has long been an outstanding sport for the City of Columbus and this year a developmental league is being formed for local competition.

Once a series of dives are demonstrated, the student is made ready by learning to tumble on a mat, then to the trampoline, and next to a one and two meter diving board in our pool. The approach to the board, the execution in the air, and finally the entry into the water are individually repeated until some sign of competence is, experienced by the student.

We are looking for talent to form a Jewish Center Diving Team that will work out on one and three meter diving boards in the city pools this Winter. Those people interested in advancing in skill should begin now to get "on board".

SPLASH--Kevin Kroos, our five-year-old wonder, swam the individual medley at swim team paractice the other night. The coach, Mrs. Bumgarner, said Kevin did butterfly, back, breast, and freestyle strokes all in good style. I say that adds up to 80 yards no matter how you slice it.

Get something good out of your old battery.
If your car's battery has been in service three years or more, it's time to see one of the Delco dealers listed on this page. First, he'll check your old battery for signs of age like leaks and loose terminal posts.
Then, if it cannot be serviced and it needs replacement, he'll make you an offer — and let you trade in your old battery on a new Delco Energizer. Select either a conventional top post model or our sealed terminal design with connections on the side.
Both are vacuum sealed for freshness. And all Delco batteries are built to give that big burst of starting power. Even in extremes of heat or cold.
Get your battery checked today. And trade it in before it lets you down.

POURING, DABBLING, scrubbing, doll-dunking and squeezing soft plastic bottles delight the children in the water therapy room several times a week. It's a wet and wonderful fun experience which to the teachers is known as small muscle motor control practice. No one scolds if soapy water splashes on the floor. Mrs. Delores Turner leans forward to hear a comment from a young soapsuds-loving boy who doesn't think it's "sissy" to wear an apron. (Photos by Elsie V. Weaver)

Family Trained, Too

'Special' Child Gets Extra Special Help

BY ELSIE V. WEAVER
EDITOR, SPECTATOR EAST

Columbus-Diane carefully scrubs the doll with a soft sponge, completely and happily absorbed in her work. Sandy, across the table, rubs a large flat bar of soap over the round head of her doll, the soapsuds running down to her elbows and dripping unheeded onto the floor. David's eyes go back and forth, following the motion of his hands as he pours soapsuds and water from one plastic bottle to another. He grins delightedly as bubbles swell and burst.

Such is the scene when several times a week classes of youngsters use the art room of the Childhood League Pre-School Development Center as a water play room. No one minds the puddly floor, soapy tables, wet shirts and aprons. It's part of the center's "small muscle motor therapy," introduced to produce better eye-hand muscle coordination. It's more than that, though; it's the thrill of indulging, uninhibited, in an activity that is usually forbidden at home because it's too messy to suit Mother.

As you walk down the hall Kevin suddenly pops out of the "pretend" room to lift the school's pet rabbit out of his pen in the hall and give it a big hug. He puts it down and disappears through the nearby doorway.

THESE ARE "SPECIAL Children," complete with capital letters, to the staff and volunteers who give them "Special Care" and training. They are children from all parts of Franklin County who have disabilities of some kind—mental handicap or hearing, vision and motor difficulties. The goal of the center is to help each child achieve his true potential, and grow and develop until he is able to enter a public school.

After 13 years of operation as a Day Care Center, the facility at 850 S. 18th St., became in 1964, a center for children with special learning problems. It started with two staff members and three students but now has grown to include nine dedicated staff members and 48 students in eight classes.

A strong program of volunteer helpers assists in all facets of the center's work. Notable among these are the 85 League women who are volunteers for a five-year membership term, and who are responsible for operating and maintaining the center and for raising monies to cover the operating budget.

The students have all been diagnosed as having some type of developmental disability by the family doctor, a Children's Hospital staff member or practicing psychiatrist.

They come to the pre-school on one-half day schedules five days a week. A maximum of seven children work in an "academic" classroom with one teacher and one volunteer. In some activities such as gym classes, there may be a volunteer for each child.

A PEEK INTO AN academic classroom may afford a glimpse of a child with very thick eyeglasses, a timid child, a boisterous child, one with a hearing aid and one whose movements are slow and jerky. "They help each other in their work," explained the young director, David Proctor, "the active one drawing out the timid one, for instance."

Each class spends part of their half day in four rooms: one of the three academic classrooms, the art room, pretend room and the gym.

Reading readiness is the chief emphasis in the academic program so that the children will be ready to enter a regular class in public school when they leave the center.

The speech and hearing therapist, whom the enthusiastic director describes as "second to none in the state," screens each child every fall and spring. She invariably finds at least one who needs a hearing aid. Last year she found only two students in the entire school who did not require some speech and hearing therapy. This year she has just finished the screening and now every child in the program will be in therapy.

TWO THERAPY SESSIONS A week will be attended by each child. Remodeling earlier this year has given the school a carpeted speech room with sound-absorbing accoustic ceiling. It has something found in many other parts of the building, a one-way glass window so that parents, observer-volunteers and visitors may, from an adjoining cubicle, view the participants and hear over a speaker system the lessons going on.

Other supportive services are offered by the social worker and part-time physical education instructor. Every Monday afternoon the school goes to the YWCA pool and parents help with the children in the water.

Asserting that "this has been an exciting year for us," Proctor pointed out other improvements brought about in the extensive remodeling.

The social worker now has a tiny but efficient office; the speech room was moved away from a noisy spot near the gym; an air-conditioner purchased by the Northwest Sertoma Club was installed in one area of the building, but best of all, the large open area that most nursery schools have was divided into several smaller rooms with hallways for more effective use by the school.

THE RABBIT AND guinea pig in hallway cages, Proctor says, "come in for a lot of loving." Children who are emotionally disturbed and have not yet warmed up to another child or adult have first shown love for one of the pets. Some who have no pets at home have had the treat of taking one of them home over a weekend.

Todd enters the pretend room with others and heads for a spaceman's uniform. Now, with a football helmet on his head, he is a spaceman. A little girl is typing on a machine behind the child-size stove and sink. Now Todd is a father striding around the room in ankle-length overcoat and a hat down to his eyes. Perhaps he is imitating a father he loves; perhaps he is imitating a father he does not have.

Playing house with the huge collection of household items with others, or playing alone, the pretend room is a fun thing for the children, but a laboratory for studying progress in child development for the trained observer.

The objects in the room and its arrangement are changed often to provide for new discoveries and encouragement for social interchange.

LOOKING THROUGH the one-way mirror into the gym at a class of five youngsters and five volunteers in a semicircle around the master teacher, one sees the kids putting large red gloves on their right hands (a struggle for some), while the teacher repeats, "This is my right hand." They wave their right hands and repeat after her, "This is my right hand!" Now they walk in a circle tothe strains of "Loopty Lou," while the adults sing the lyrics.Learning is fun in this class in Adaptive Education. One little fellow suddenly drags his feet and the volunteer must strain to hold up herself and him until the game is over. One is struck with the hard work and effort put forth by the volunteers and teachers in the training of children who could not be "coped with" in the normal classroom.

Not only is the pre-school educating the "whole child," physically, intellectually, socially and emotionally -the prime aim of educators-but at the Childhood League Pre-School they

PRETENDING IS MORE FUN than anything, in the creative play room of the Childhood League Pre-School Development Center. Typing and being a sea captain at the same time is the most natural thing in the world. A sink full of "dirty" dishes is shown in the foreground. The kitchen shelves are full of "food." A family can sit down to dinner and all types of family life can be acted out with the objects available. But a child can also sit and pretend by himself if he wishes.

..THE FUN BARREL gets a good workout as the kids climb in and out of it in the pre-school gym. Mrs. Cynthia Jeffrey, a Childhood League volunteer, looks on, wearing her volunteer apron with the League emblem on it.

School Board Commends Energy Crisis Committee

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

Energy, a vital subject today, was among the topics discussed at the Columbus School Board's Nov. 20 regular meeting. Also on the agenda was a resolution of recognition and an announcement of retirement.

At the meeting the Board emphasized its goal of "avoiding the closing of the schools." A resolution was passed commending the Energy Crisis Committee for its prompt and thorough work which outlined the energy problem and the proper ways it should be dealt with.

The resolution did say though, "The lack of energy could require that schools close or modify their schedules."

The Board also praised School Superintendent Dr. John Ellis for his work in appointing an Energy Crisis committee to deal with the problem as quickly as he did.

The retirement announcement was that of James Wade, the assistant superintendent of teacher personnel, Wade's retirement which will become effective Feb. 1, 1974, will culminate a distinguished 33 year career as a teacher, principal and central office administrator in the Columbus Public Schools.

Wade will become president of Piney Woods Country Life School in Piney Woods, Miss. The Board expressed extreme sadness upon hearing of his departure andEllis said, "Mr. Wade will leave a gaping void in the school and community life of Columbus."

In other action taken by the board a 50 acre tract of land owned by Dr. and Mrs. RobertD. Patton of Galena, Ohio will be leased to the Columbus Public Schools for the sum of $50 for one year. The land will be used as a Nature Study Center.

The Board voted to accept an amendment to Section 110.11 of the Administrative Guide to the Columbus Public Schools.

The amendment limits the speaking of public participants to five minutes. Persons wishing to address the board must indicate their intent to address the board and the subject of their address prior to the scheduled time of the meeting.

The Board also established tuition rates for non-resident students. Monthly tuition rates are : kindergarten students $32.29; grades one through six $64.67; grades seven through nine$68.39; and grades 10 through 12 $85.77.

Preliminary drawings were passed for the Shepard Elementary School. The drawings were assessed by the Shepard Advisory Committee on Educational Program and Facilities.

Rejected were the bids for the proposed addition and remodeling of Walnut Ridge High School. The bids were all 20 per cent over the allowed budget. Revision in drawings and specifications will be made as necessary and the project will be rebid.

Walnut Ridge's football coach Vince Cahill and representatives from his championship football team were on hand for the meeting to receive copies of a resolution passed by the Board commending the team's season accomplishments.

Other items passed by the board were routine personnel changes and appointments.

No Lights On Bexley Tree; Decorating Contest Out

Bexley-Bexley Celebration Association workers will begin decorating the community Christmas tree in Bexley Circle, E. Broad St. at Drexel Ave. Saturday morning, Dec. 1, but there will be no lights on it this year.

There had been plans to have lights on the tree from dusk until 11 p.m. nightly, but after hearing President Nixon's TV speech on the energy crisis last Sunday night, the association trustees decided to eliminate all lights, according to BCA President James Hughes, Jr.

John J. Coughlin, 215 S. Cassady Ave., heads the decorating crew which will work both Dec. 1 and Dec. 8, if necessary to complete the project.

Instead of the traditional tree-lighting ceremony, Santa Claus will be present to talk with community children and a speaker will be presented at 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 9 at the Circle.

The organization has also cancelled the annual home decorating contest which was held between Christmas and New Year's Day.

"are teaching" the whole family as well.

Mothers meet with the staff every week. Their sharing of problems finds sympathetic ears. The discussion of solutions benefit the teller and listener alike.

PARENTS' meetings are held once a month. They learn what to expect from their children and how to deal with them in the best manner.

Meetings with siblings (brothers and sisters) of the pre-school students are held once a month. Their ages range from seven to 16.

Proctor meets with the younger of the siblings. He helps answer questions like, "What do you do when someone calls your brother a dummy?" He says his advice depends on whether the sibling is a boy or girl and what type of neighborhood the family lives in.

Parents pay what they can because there is no tuition schedule. The differences between fees and costs are taken care of by Childhood League.

MORE THAN 600 Active, Assisting Board and Life Members raise monies through various activities, such as the annual Merry-Go-Round at the Ohio Theatre, seeing almost every business in the community for one of the two forms of League advertising on trash bins and on the Merry-Go-Round programs. They also solicit private individual's donations and those of families.

In an especially rewarding program, they encourage the giving, by individuals or businesses, of scholarships for a particular child. The sponsors are given progress reports on the child three times a year.

Volunteers from Childhood League assist the staff, who are trained professionally for their assignments. The League's Board of Advisors is made up of leaders in the field of child development, psychiatry, mental retardation, medicine, psychology and special education.

Thus the Childhood League has assumed the leadership to provide a program of early intervention to help both the special child and his family. The school also functions as a resource center for area universities and for the professional community. Its influence is felt, too, through the availability of the staff for outside counseling.

Telling something about the great need for such a school, and the dedication of parents of special kids, is the fact that some of the families have moved to Columbus from other cities in Ohio and even from outside the state, so that their children might attend it.

Metropolitan School Plans Craft Sale

The parents of the Metropolitan School of Columbus will hold their annual Craft Sale Saturday, December 1, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the school's new location, 1485 West Fifth Ave.

The event features a variety of popular crafts, plus a liberal sprinkling of the "Frankly Unique."

Planned as much as an entertainment as a sale, the Craft Sale will feature demonstrations and workshops in crafts, including some for the little ones.

Refreshments from the ongoing bake sale will round out a day of happy browsing among myriads of items, including indoor swings and trapezes, candles, potted plants and macrame hangers, stained glass items, a variety of aprons, beanbags, folded and dyed wrapping papers, and homemade candies.

Featured also will be astrological quilts, with a personalized horoscope appliqued in the center, which can also be used for wall hangings.

The Metropolitan School, well-known in the Columbus area for its unique program of individualized instruction for elementary school aged youngsters, opens its doors to children from a variety of economic, racial and cultural backgrounds who are prepared to benefit from its open classroom format, designed to foster inner-directed achievement and satisfaction, mature group interaction, and self-discipline.

Parent activities such as the Craft Sale are a major source of financial support to the school, which also receives gifts, from individuals, businesses and foundations throughout the Columbus area. Tuition is on a sliding scale.

Dahlias Meet

The Greater Columbus Dahlia Society will hold its Christmas party, Sunday Dec. 2 at the Berwick Party House at 4:30 p.m. with installation of officers.

Navy Honors Two Outstanding Men

Two Navymen were recently honored by the local council of the Navy League and the citizens of the Navy Recruiting District Advisory Committee (RDAC).

Senior Chief Petty Officer Tom Philips and recently retired Chief Petty Officer Charles Wood were each awarded a $25 check and an evening of entertainment and dinner for "outstanding contributions to their command and the impressive image they display to the civilian community."

Philips is the recruiter in charge of the downtown Columbus Navy Recruiting Station, and was selected for the honor as Navyman of the Month for October.

Wood, who just recently retired after 20 years naval service, was September's selectee.

He was the Navy Liaison at the Armed Forces Examination and Entrance Station at Fort Hayes.

John Loehnart, vice president of Dollar Savings, and Lieutenant Commander J.W. Shelton, commanding officer of the Columbus Recruiting District, made the presentations. Loehnart represented both the RDAC and Navy League. The two groups honor two Navymen of the Month in bi-monthly ceremonies.

New Plastic Product Prevents Serious Glass Injuries

FLEX-O-GLAZE, a rigid, safety-approved plastic developed by Warp Bros., pioneer manufacturer of plastics, is now being used to replace broken glass in storm doors, windows and in other hazardous areas around the home.

This new, break-resistant acrylic plastic is clearer than glass, is non-yellowing and can withstand sub-zero temperatures. It is easy to cut, saw and trim. Is available in 3 thicknesses and several precut window sizes. FLEX-O-GLAZE sells in the same price range as ordinary glass.

The prime purpose of FLEX-O-GLAZE is to prevent severe injuries, and even death that may result from sharp, cutting edges and flying glass. The U.S. Health Service reports over 250,000 needless accidents occur each year to people walking into or falling against storm doors and other glass entrances.

Half of these accidents occur to children under 15 years of age. Because of this high percentage of accidents, many states have passed laws now making it illegal to install ordinary glass in hazardous areas around the home.

FLEX-O- GLAZE meets all the rigid test standards as required by law for safety glazing and bears the ANSI Z97.1 safety approval insignia. It is sold by hardware, lumber and building supply stores.

The Energy Crisis

THE ENERGY CRISIS that is upon us is a problem that can easily be turned into an opportunity for many residents and businesses.

Lower thermostats, less driving for pleasure, fewer lights and a general cutdown on all use of sources of energyis the apparent answer to the situation.

THIS IS NOT only our feeling on the situation but that of many leading business people in the Spectator community.

Last week Robert Lazarus, Jr., Executive Vice president, Lazarus Department Stores, held an open press conference on the energy crisis.

He outlined what Lazarus Department Stores were already doing and what they planned to do to save energy.

General reductions in store lighting and temperatures headed the list.

ENCOURAGEMENT of employes to use car pools and mass transportation and other energy saving hints are included in 450,000 shopping bags being distributed to customers.

The explanation of the "air curtain door" (loses no more heat than your own door opening and closing in the wintertime), the elimination of the "Tree of Lights" that has been a landmark for visitors coming to Columbus from other areas and other energy saving factors were touched on.

THE RECENT suggestions by President Richard M. Nixon and implementation of fuel-saving rules will no doubt have an effect on how much energy is saved for more needy purposes.

There is also money to be saved by individuals and businesses when less light and heat is used - or is used more wisely.

The contributions of ideas from individuals and business leaders will go far in determining when this crisis will end.

IF EACH of us does a little there will be more for all of us in the long run.

Let's Keep The Coaches

THE BELL will toll this winter for some area football coaches (mainly in the high school ranks) for their apparent failures to produce winning teams in league and open competition.

We think the school boards should not submit to the pressures from booster clubs, principals and athletic directors and automatically accept these letters of resignation (let's face this part because they kid on one and are being fired or forced into resigning) from some men who have contributed much to the young men within the system and not just the athletes.

WHEN THE Monday morning quarterbacks start tearing down the season perhaps they should lookmore deeply into the records of the men who did the interviewing andhiring of these coaches.At the time they were hired it was expected that they were the best available for whatever price the school wanted to pay.

No one is infallible - but to change coaches just because a team hasn't met the expectations of the principals and athletic directors and some high ranking boosters is folly and should be treated as such.

A WINNING or a losing season should not be the meter by which these men are judged.What they have contributed to the school and the communityas a whole should be heavily weighed.

We say, school board, take a closer look at the athletic program as a whole and remove the zealous athletic director or principal who thinks that the "Leather Gods" must produce or be thrown to the Lions.

Muscular Dystrophy Drive Most Important One Yet

"THIS MAY be the most important year in the history of America's volunteer battle against dystrophy and equally tragic crippling neuromuscular diseases," Raymond R. Fadley, campaign chairman of Franklin County's 1973 March Against Muscular Dystrophy announced in officially launching the final door-to-door drive to take place December 2.

"The intensive, worldwide research effort supported by the March has reached a definite turning point," said Chief Fadley. "We may well be on the threshold of the final scientific assault on these vicious diseases which kill and disable hundreds of thousands – most of them innocent children."

CHIEF FADLEY was referring to the stepped-up thrust in MDAA-sponsored research announced last month at the Association's International Scientific Conference in Phoenix, Arizona.

With funds derived primarily from this year's March, he explained, M.D.A.A. will seek to establish a number of university-related research nuclei where intensive multi-disciplinary studies of muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular disorders will be undertaken.

The new project will supplement M.D.A.A.'s already-existing program of grants to scores of individual scientists throughout the world.

THANKS TO the first allocation of funds by a state government specifically earmarked for research into neuromuscular disease, the initial center in the new series will be established at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"Establishment of the centers," Chief Fadley said, "represents the greatest hope for victims of neuromuscular disease since the creation of M.D.A.A. That's why this year's March Against Dystrophy is perhaps more important than any we've ever held."

POINTING to the endorsement of this year's drive by George Meany on behalf of the AFL-CIO, Chief Fadley urged the all-out support of Franklin County residents. He noted that the funds raised by the annual Jerry Lewis Telethon represent only about half of what is required to maintain the Association's research and patient service programs.

As part of the program, Dr. Jerry Mendel, of the Ohio State University, is conducting research into the Duchenne form of muscular dystrophy, under a $10,000 grant from M.D.A.A.

IN ADDITION to its extensive research activities, M.D.A.A. supports 124 free clinics throughout the U.S. including one here in Columbus at Dodd Hall on the Ohio State University campus, which was recently provided with a new $16,000 electromyograph machine.

Firewood Gathering Has Method For Exactness

THE OHIO Department of Natural Resources has some suggestions for Ohioans searching for increasingly scarce dry firewood to burn in long-formant fireplaces and newly acquired woodburning stoves.

Possible shortages of home heating fuel have increased the demand for firewood, and until supply catches up withthe demand there may be a shortage of dry wood in some urban areas, says Natural Resources Director William B. Nye.

GOOD firewood is heavy, well-seasoned and free of insects and disease," Nye said. "Unseasoned or green wood has little heating value since most of the heat is needed to drive moisture from the sod."

Unseasoned wood can be detected by end cuts that are fresh. Leaves also may still be on green firewood if it was cut from branches.

DENSE WOODS, such as oak, beech, hard maple and hickory provide considerably more heat than lighter woods such as cottonwod, tulip tree or box elder. Logs of dense wood also burn longer.

Ernest J. Gebhart, chief of the division of forests and preserves of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), said firewood should be checked closely for evidence of rot and decay.

Gebhart advises that wood be stored outside the house and that only as much firewood be taken into the house as will be used during an evening.

Gebhart added that diseased or punky wood burns much faster than sound wood.

OHIOANS will find wood buying much easier if only pre-split wood is considered. Although more expensive and averaging slightly less weight per cord, the buyer can check the interior of the wood for insects and disease. Split wood also burns better because of the increased surface area exposed to the air.

Byron Kent, division staff forester, said firewood is becoming more expensive alothough costs vary in differentparts of the state.The cost generally is governed by the distance the wood must be transported for sale.

FIREWOOD is sold either by the cord or rick. Most dealers sell a rick or "short cord" measuring four feet high by eight feet long by the length of the firewood which usually is 18 to 24 inches.

"People should be aware that logs don't stack closely together, so in any stack of wood there is a lot of air," Kent said. For example, a standard cord usually contains about 100 cubic feet of wood rather than 128 cubic feet.

THERE'S NO secret to buying firewood," he said. "Everyone has the ability. All they need is a little knowledge and some common sense."

Lazarus Estates Benefit Planned Parenthood Group

PLANNED Parenthood of Columbus has announced the family planning agency has received a totalof $170,000 from the estates of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lazarus, Sr., from gifts in their memory and from Federated Department Stores, Inc.

At a press conference held at the Planned Parenthood building, 206 East State Street, Planned Parenthood President Charles E. Brant said the agency had received bequests of $75,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Lazarus, $10,000 from gifts to the agency in their memory and $85,000 in matching funds donated by Federated.

THE MONEY will be used to expand Planned Parenthood's counseling service. The program will be called the Robert Lazarus, Sr., Counseling Service, according to Planned Parenthood Executive Director Mary E. Harris.

"We are grateful," Mrs. Harris said, "to Mr. and Mrs. Lazarus and to Federated Department Stores for their generous gifts, and we are excited about our new counseling service."

Ralph Lazarus, chairman of the board of Federated, and a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lazarus, Sr., made the formal presentation today for Federated.

When Mrs. Lazarus died in 1971, she left Planned Parenthood a $50,000 bequest. Mr. Robert Lazarus, Sr., willed $25,000 to the agency when he died on February 4, 1973. Gifts in their memory given by hundreds of friends totaled another $10,000, making a total of $85,000.

FEDERATED Department Stores, seeking a proper memorial to Robert Lazarus, Sr., well known forhis humanitatian works in the community, decided to match that amount.

"It is a fitting memorial," Brant said, "to a man who was so deeply involved and concerned with the community and the people of Columbus. I am certain that he would be pleased to know that this counseling service has been established in his name."

Robert Lazarus, Sr., was president of Lazarus Department Store from 1947 until 1959 when he became chairman of the board. He served in that position until 1969.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Lazarus worked for Planned Parenthood in Columbus. Mrs. Lazarus was a co-founder of the group back in the days when the very idea of birth control was a shocking subject. Mrs. Lazarus and a small group of daring women fought for public acceptance. The Planned Parenthood building on East State was a Lazarus family gift commemorating the 75th birthday of Hattie Lazarus.

THEY BOTH worked actively with Children's Hospital, Planned Parenthood and many other civic groups. In 1970 they were named Franklin County's "Outstanding Example of Human Brotherhood" by the honors committee of Temple Israel.

The Columbus Urban League gave its awards for community service, health, welfare and education, cultural arts, religion and humanity to Mr. and Mrs.Robert Lazarus, Sr., and their family, "in appreciation for the many contributions they have made for the betterment of family and community living."

There were many other recognitions from retail groups, college groups and other civic organizations.

THE ESTABLISHMENT of the Robert Lazarus, Sr., Counseling Service will mean new growth for Planned Parenthood which currently operates its main clinic at 206 East State Street as well as three satellite clinics. The present program includes contraceptive services, infertility referral services, vasectomies, pregnancy testing, abortion referrals, veneral disease screening and referrals on marital, sexual and emothional problems.

ROBERT LAZARUS, SR.

Mrs. Harris says that over the last few years large numbers of persons have been turning to the agency for advice and help on sexual, emotional and medical problems. In many cases the agency is the only possible resource for teenagers, college students and those who can't afford private help. Because of program limitations and priorities, Mrs. Harris explained, questions in these areas often have had to be dealt with superficially.

IN AN EFFORT to meet the needs for these services, Planned Parenthood is establishing the counseling program which will be involved with family problems, marrige and family life education and training of counseling professionals.

In the first phase of the new program, direct counseling for family problems will be offered. Two counselors will work on a half-time basis at the 206 East State Street clinic and at the clinic at 1814 North High Street. Primary areas of concern will be pre-marital counseling, short-term crisis intervention counseling, family planning couseling including birth control and problems of pregnancy, and short-term family counseling.

Dr. Lennis Green is director of the Robert Lazarus, Sr., Counseling Serive.

A MARRIAGE and family life education program will be developed in 1974-75 to meet the needs of pre-marital couples, professionals in the community and the general public. A "preparation for marriage" series will be offered quarterly. Additionally, a program for professionals will offer lectures on topics of interest to those working in the area of marriage and family life. For the general public there will be an annual lecture series and speakers bureau.

By 1975-76, it is hoped that graduate students in counseling courses at area universities will work in the four clinics to gain clinical experience for academic credit. Planned Parenthood in the past has worked with the OSU School of Social Work, College of Medicine and School of Nursing and the School of Nursing at Capital University and found it to be a very satisfactory arrangement.

Holiday's Warm Feeling Comes From Christmas Glow

By
Marie Louise Dagnall

"CHRISTMAS is becoming too commercial!" For years I have heard this refrain and listened intently and tried to understand this point of view.

Nevertheless, I find that when I go into the stores and see the Christmas decorations beautifing the otherwise dull walls, I instinctively get a warm feeling.

I can not help smiling to myself as a surge of happiness penetrates me and, I must confess, I thoroughly enjoy the hustle and bustle of the pre-holiday rush.

PEOPLE ARE more friendly, too, and the desire to give permeates the atmosphere and naturally that is why the stores are full of shoppers as they are there to purchase their gifts for family and frineds. And after all, that is the way it all began, when the Magi came to the Holy Child and presented Him with gold, frankincense and myrrh.

WHEN YOUR loved ones receive and you know that it is your material expression of affection for them that has made them smile and brought them happiness, they, in turn, have bestowed upon you a great gift for y ou know that your special effort on their behalf has brought forth joy.

This pleasure of mutual exchange of both the tangible and the intangible brings a great deal of satisfaction into one's life. Remember when that little one jumped with glee because of a gift you had selected?

Your heart knew no greater fulfillment even though to him it may have come from that all-knowing giver of gifts – Santa Cluas.

SO CONSEQUENTLY, every year about this time when I hear voices condemning the commercialism in Christmas, I tune them out. Instead, I plunge into the fun of buying so that I can give for in return, I receive my reward. What is that reward?

It is the deep down knowledge that I brought a smile. It is the return of a sincere thank you kiss or one of my children saying, "Gee, Mom, that's just what I have always wanted. How did you know?"

SOMEHOW, love knows. So turn on the lights in the town and in the stores. Decorate the streets and the shop windows the walls, the aisles and the stands. It will not take long until the excitement of Christmas spills over into your homes and into your hearts.

CARE Contributions Will Make Holiday Happier

BUDGETS for holiday gift lists may be a little tighter this year, and there always seem to be more people to buy for than we thought.

But a unique holiday gift plan makes a few dollars donated to CARE go a long way to help feed hungry children, heal the sick and equip needy people overseas with the means to help themselves.

BY MAKING a contribution in the names of friends, relatives and business associates, you give them a share in providing life-saving aid for the world's needy. Simply send CARE the names and addresses of those on your gift list, with your contribution – at least $2, or as much as you can, for each name. Keep a copy of the list so you can sign and address the "Season's Greetings" cards and envelopes which will be mailed to you in return.

The cards let each person know that you have given to CARE in his or her name, to help others less fortunate.

BE SURE to send your holiday donation and list of names as soon as possible, to allow ample time to receive the cards, to CARE, Ohio-Kentucky Regional Office, 8 E. Chestnut Street, Columbus, Ohio, 43215. Make checks payable to CARE.

Speed Limit Cutback Opposed By OMBA

To the Editor:

Recent proposals to reduce the speed limits on our state's highways to 50 MPH in an effort to conserve fuel, has received considerable publicity in the media. Such a proposal, related to the intercity bus industry, would actually have the opposite effect – wasting fuel.

Prior to your paper's taking an editorial policy on this issue I would appreciate your consideration of the following adverse effects of such a proposal on the bus industry, and more importantly, on the public it serves.

(1) Intercity buses are designed to operate most effectively at about 60 miles an hour at 1,800 r.p.m. They use either four-speed manual or automatic transmission with a rear axle ratio most compatible to give the most efficient speed ranges in each gear.

The shift point from third to fourth (high) gear is approximately 48 miles an hour. A speed limit of 50 at 1,400 r.p.m. would mean that a bus would be at the high point in the second curve when the bus is in high gear and minimum engine rmp.

This is a bad lugging condition, which not only reduces fuel economy ,but damages the engine.

To gear a bus in proper operation at a top speed of 50 would require a change in the rear axle ratio at considerable expense, and the required ring gears and pinions are unavailable.

Bus fuel consumption would be reduced only if a miximum speed limit of 50 required bus schedules to be cancelled for lack of patronage or lack of equipment.

(2) To save gasoline, the objective should be to transfer passengers from automobiles to modes of public transportation that use less energy per passenger-mile.

If fuel supplies get tighter, more and more people will rely on public transportation. Therefore, any action making travel by bus less attractive would be counter-productive. Intercity buses are by far the most efficient consumers of energy.

Buses obtain 85 passenger-miles per gallon of fuel, railroads 48, automobiles 40 and aircraft 16 (Source: Eric Hirst: "Energy Intensiveness of Passenger and Freight Transportation Modes: 1950-70," published in April, 1973.

A study sponsored by the National Science Foundation.)

(3) A sharp reduction in the maximum speed limit for intercity buses would require a corresponding increase in the size of the intercity bus fleet to provide just the current level of service to the public. (And during the time required to augment equipment, it would be necessary to discontinue some essential bus passenger service.) Thus, if we were required to put on more buses, due to decreasing the average miles operated per bus because of slower running speed, fuel consumption would rise.

(4) Sharp speed limit reductions would severely disrupt schedules and break connections throughout the country, resulting in much less efficient vehicle and manpower utilization.

To institute a 50-mile speed limit would require total rescheduling of 90 percent of the intercity buses throughout the country, causing undue hardship on the traveling public.

(5) A 15 to 20 percent reduction in the bus speed limit would increase labor costs by approximately the same amount. With bus drivers' hours of service limited by Federal Highway Administration regulations, new drivers would have to be hired to keep service at the present level.

Another factor is that with reduced maximum speed, many driver division points would have to be relocated. Present turn-around assignments would be disrupted. Some drivers would be forced to relocate their residences due to these operational circumstances.

(6) It goes without saying that our costs would soar if new equipment must be purchased, if schedules had to be substantially revised, if there is less efficiency per driver and if new drivers had to be employed.

Thus, at the very time it is in the national interest to conserve fuel by discouraging automobile travel, we would have to seek anti-promotional fare increases to cover these higher costs.

In many cases, these higher fares would have to be paid by those least able to afford them.

Sincerely,
Langdon D. Bell
Executive Vice President.

Township Trustee Sets Record Straight

To the Editor:

Congratulations to Trustees Quelette and Shaffer on their relection. They won despite the dirty tricks letter published in the daily papers the day before election.

I would hope the Franklin Township firemen did not condone this letter. It was signed by oneof the fireman, and to my knowledge no attempt has been made publicly to deny it.

To set the record straight for the people of Franklin Township I feel a statement should be made.

The trustees, working with the fire chief, do have the personnel to cover 3 fire houses. There are 31 paid firemen, 4 paid dispatchers, and 32 volunteer firemen.

Furthermore, in the past five years their salaries have increased by 36 percent.

Our firemen now have the following wages and benefits.

1(Starting wage is $8,000 per year upward to $10,500.
2) Up to 90 days sick leave.
3) 9 paid holidays.
4) Up to 4 weeks vacation.
5) Fully paid Blue Cross and Blue Shield.
6) Uniforms and fatique work clothes are furnished.
7) January 1973, a cost of living was voted upon to insure our employees would be covered against inflation thru 1976.
8) 13.7 percent of their salaryis paid by the township into Fireman Retirement Fund.

Finally the firemen are on duty only 2½ days a week. This gives them 4½ days a week to pursue their parttime jobs and businesses.

I believe the published campaign letter was untrue, andhope this will clarify the situation for our township residents.

Francis Boehm, Trustee
Franklin Township

Spring Fashion Advance

'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

SHANNON RODGERS of Jerry Silverman designed marvelous twin woven dot costume in green and white cotton.

STEPHEN BURROWS shows his contemporary signature in black layered chiffon skirt combined effectively with lime green and black tiered blouse.

THE BIG TOPPER is Leo Narducci's new spring look for Ambiance. Flower-printed crepe jacket covering a slinky, black matte jersey slipdress.

PAT SANDLER created this charming printed crepe shirt and pyjama topped with sleeveless ribbed sweater, for a "day into evening" costume for all seasons.

NEW YORK:

SPRING 1974 promises to be a MORE SO fashion season! Every showing I've been viewing this week seems to be more so than ever before.

According to Eleanor Lambert's briefing (she's director of the American Designer Shows)...girl-girl freshness and woman-woman allure have completely erased hard, sharp-tailored chic. As a result, lines float, swirl and caress, are diamond-cut, wrapped or diagonal...never, never masculine. Nostalgia has not disappeared, but it is far less evident in spring clothes that are breezy and sexy...with today, not yesterday, in mind.

THE DRESS is the main pivot of spring fashion. What seems like a suit is more often a dress and jacket. Wrap-and-tie and diagonal cut are important in all collections. The straight shirt dress and the dress with the stitched hipline are giving way to more voluminous or more fitted silhouettes. The full-top dress or coat is news...often a loose, bubbly blousing or a full float of sheer fabric, sometimes in several layers above a slender slip. Most dresses are bias, or the skirt is cut on the bias with a slender hip and flaring hem.

COATS PROMISE to return as a spring essential...in white or pale colors...most of these in double-faced wool. Some designers feel the jacket is more of a look than a full length coat.

MORE SO for spring is the return of the short sleeve. Turned-back shirt sleeves, soft fluttery cape sleeves...while sleeveless dresses bare most of the shoulder. Many dresses and coats are beltless and loose or indented at the waist in the side seams. The belt is often replaced by the sash or a drawstring.

FABRICS are more so in every variety. Except for denim and cotton twill, airiness is the number one requirement. Voils and chiffons are both tailored and allowed to fly free...there are more knitted fabrics and knit touches—prints and super-luxurious, hand-painted crepes and chiffons...many directional stripes. Colors are more so...clean as new paint...more pure white and cream, platinum grey, sand and every flower and jewel tone, from white coral to marigold and cornflower blue.

AS TO hemlines, designers give women a free choice from mid-knee to ankle. American designers are staying well away from the battlefield. Maybe they're chicken, but they prefer to pray for peace...and pass the ammunition!

Dollar Savings can now offer you these highly attractive savings certificates which, when interest is left on deposit, will yield almost 8% a year. That's a handsome return at a time when interest rates are generally going down.

(Banks, incidentally, are not permitted to pay as high a rate on 4-year $1,000 certificates.)

Because of the new low minimum $1,000 deposit, the door is now open for many more savers to invest in Dollar's 7½% certificates. Consequently, we may be required to withdraw this offer at any time.

Do Dollar's 7½% certificates fit into your saving program? Yes, they do if you are fairly certain you will not have to withdraw your deposit prior to maturity. In this event, Federal law would require forfeiture of 90 days' interest, as well as reducing the amount withdrawn to the passbook rate.

But please come in and discuss this and other matters bearing on your savings objectives with one of our experienced financial counselors. You will be courteously and confidentially advised in your best interests. And of course, there is no obligation.

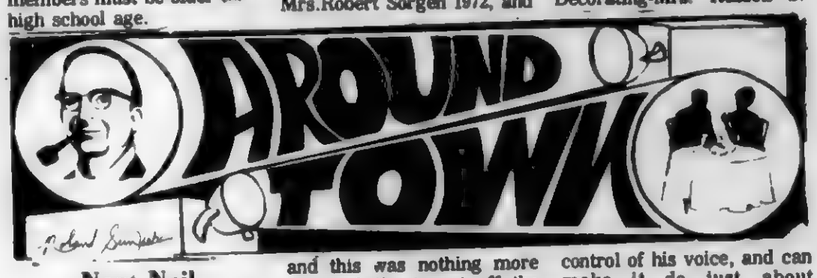
NOW IN their second week at the beautiful Holiday Inn-OSU is the Boy's Nite Out. This trio has proven very popular in the first floor Heritage Lounge, Appearing on the eleventh floor University Lounge is the Funtastic Family.



Neat Neil

Last week I stepped into the cocktail Lounge at Howard Johnson's East to catch a newcomer in show business. Not only is Neal Donnelly new in the business, but he is also a Reynoldsburg policeman. Since this was his second night on a professional stage, and playing a nice room like the lounge at Howard Johnson's, I had several thoughts in mind.

First, that this guy just couldn't be any good. No experience, and all of that. Secondly, I reasoned that he probably arrested one of the officials of Howard Johnson's and this was nothing more than a bribe to get off the hook. Thirdly, I have yet to see a real strong single act that consists of a guy playing guitar and singing.

Three strikes and I am out.

I was wrong on all three counts.

Neil Donnelly is one of the best single acts I have ever seen. He is a lively performer with a dynamic voice. Since I was so sure that this was going to be a bad act, I only scheduled myself to catch one forty minute set. I stayed for two hours.

This handsome young man sings with a gush of spit and fire. Neil has excellent control of his voice, and can make it do just about anything he wants. And, Neil demands plenty from his voice. He has a litteraly fantastic singing voice. Sounding a little like Elvis at times, without even trying, Neil possess a wide range.

Needless to say, Neil is a strong stylist. He attacks as if he were conducting his own six day war on stage.

Accompanying himself on guitar, Neil shows that he is an exper in this field, too. Playing a host of chords, along with a combination of a heavy melody line and strong rythyms, Neil provides plenty of excitement.

In fact, that is the secret to Neil's success. He gives you exciting vocals as well as exciting guitar music. You'll not grow tired of listening to him perform.

While this was only his second night as a professional entertainer, I'm sure the best agent in the country would never have guessed it. Neil knows how to work an audience, even to the point of putting down a heckler with class.

While he has been on the police force four years, this fellow has what it takes to turn his badge in for a star. With a little luck I feel this will be true.

Before this happens, stop into the lounge at Howard Johnson's East and give a listen to Neil Donnelly. I was there on a week night, and the place was packed, which goes to show you I am not the only one who thinks he is something special. You will, also.

Lincoln Is Swinging

Pat and Diann is the current attraction at the swinging Lincoln Lodge. Pat is a talented young fellow who plays the various keyboard instruments. Diann is the cute little bug in a rug that sings and plays a rather large cocktail drum set. Together, they team up with a host of delightful entertainment.

Pat makes with strong piano stylings. While he may not be the best that has ever come down the pike, his style and technique is more than average. You name it and he can play it. Filling in on piano, Pat also plays a portable electric organ. At times, playing both at the same time, at creates a full musical sound.

Diann not only fronts the duo, I say that not just because she stands in front of Pat, but Diann is the charmer in the duo. Not only does she possess personality plus, she also owns a darn good voice. The tonal quality is clear with lots of good sounds. While she could develop a little more stylizings to her presenttions, Diann still is able to sell a song. The weakest part of the entire act is her drumming. While it is certainly not distracting, the act could be more lively and exciting if Diann could work the sticks and brushes better. As it is, Pat has to provide the basic rythyms with the organ.

All in all, I promise you an enjoyable evening with this pair. Their musical library runs the gamut of the music industry. However, it is safe to say that most of their selections appeal more to an older group, which is good because that is the make up of the audiences at Lincoln Lodge.

Stop out to one of the most popular motels Around Town this week, and you'll here plenty of pretty music.

SKIPPING AROUND TOWN

Before going on vacation last week, I dropped into the Charleston Club. Found out, that owner Hal Case now has a luncheon buffet consisting of roast beef, two hot items, a large salad bar and a fresh hot bread. It's all you can eat for only $1.79. While there I was treated to some of Hal's fine organ stylings. As many of you know, Hal use to be a big band performer, having worked with Louis Prima and others. Nobody, but nobody plays electric organ like Hal Case. To bad he doesn't treat his customers to a performance more often. Also, joining in with Hal was music store owner Larry Fresch. Wait until you hear him sing. Larry is also an old pro who has turned business man. But, Larry still owns a fabulous voice...This Friday at Mershon, Charlie Byrd, America's most versatile guitarist, and his trio will play a one night stand. While Charlie has been called the world's greatest jazz guitarist, he is also an excellent classical guitarist. Few people know that he was a pupil of the great Spanish guitarist, Andres Segovia...Dropped into the Marriott Inn the other evening for dinner. Their food continues to be out of this world. It s truely one of the finest restaurants Around Town...Remember the bried entrance on the night scene of Puca's Palace? The well known and well liked Joe Fraccasso, a partner in the adventure, is now at Worthington Ford in the new car department. Drop in and see Joe, I'm sure he is just as amusing surrounded by new Fords, as he was surrounded by tables of dinners...Now, that vacation is over for a while, I'll be Around Town this week. Hope to see you.

Cage Season Gets More League Tests

Friday night's area roundball action has Mt. Vernon at Worthington, Westland at Reynoldsburg, Delaware at Whitehall, and Gahanna at Westerville in the Ohio Capital Conference.

Dublin visits Franklin Heights in a Metro League tilt, while Watterson travels to Northland and Hartley to Walnut Ridge in non-leaguers. Bexley and St. Charles renew a rivalry in another non-league scrap.

Saturday's actionpits East and Withrow tangling in Cincinnati and Eastmoor and Chillicothe tussling in Chillicothe. Arlington will bus to Worthington in another rivalry contest.

Last week's OCC action found Whitehall downing Reynoldsburg, Westland nipping Westerville, Mt. Vernon zipping by Mt. Vernon and Worthington getting past Delaware.

Reynoldsburg vs Hartley

BIG ED WILLIAMS, the tower of strength for the Reynoldsburg cageman, grabbed this rebound for the Raiders, from an unidentified Hawk. No programs were available identifying the Hawks. The Raiders lost to the Hawks. (Reynoldsburg-Hartley photos by Ed Kiernan.)

Golden Gloves Has Tune-Up Matches

The fourth in a series of Golden Gloves Tune-up matches are scheduled for Thursday, November 29 at Windsor Recreation Center, 1424 Brooks Ave.

Twenty-five bouts are on tap.

Seven sets of brothers will appear on the 25 bout card. Representing Windsor, the Caldwell, Floers, Smiths, Robert, Alonzo Caldwell, John, Willie Flowers, Antwann, Paul Smith; representing Sawyer Boxing Club, Lawrence, Gerlad Rozelle; the newly formed Whitehall Boxing Club will counter with the Thorpe brothers, Donald, Ronald; the OYC Boxing Club, the Edmonds brothers, Kenneth, Robert; Beatty Boxing Club, the Kennedy brothers, Jonathan, Jeffery.

Eastmoor vs Athens

Opening Day Successful

Of the 223 hunters checked in District One on opening day on the 1973 hunting season, 6 out of 10 hunters had bagged a game animal.

Overall success was slightly better than last year with more rabbits taken than pheasants and .06 quail. There were .42 rabbits, .08 pheasants and .05 quail harvester per hunter. On the average, it took a hunter 3.04 hours to bag a game animal with .56 pieces of game per hunter.

During the 1972 opening day bag check it took 2.9 hours for a hunter to bag his game with .54 pieces of game per hunter.

Hunting pressure was moderate throughout the District with warm dry weather until noon. Afternoon showers curtailed most of the hunting for the restof the day.

Try Late Fall For Smallmouth Bass

Late fall fishingin Deer Creek and the headwatersof Deer Creek Reservior have been producing fine catches of Smallmouth Bass. An increase in stream flow due to recent rains is oneof the major factors responsible for the increased angler success. Live nightcrawlers and crayfish, along with spiners and shallow diving plugs have been producing the best results. The stretch of Deer Creek from Mt. Sterling south to the reservoir proper has been the most productive.

Both the Big and Little Darby Creeks are also producing fine catches of Smallmouth and Rock Bass. Permission to fish in both the Big and Little Darby Creek can be obtained from adjacent landowners with a polite request.

Statewide Bag Check Survey

A bag check survey by the Ohio Natural Resources Department's Divisionof Wildlife indicates six out of ten hunters were successful on opening day of the Ohio upland game season, Thursday, November 15.

Statewide, rabbits were more plentiful, pheasants slightly better and quail about the same as last year. Division of Wildlife enforcement officers conducted bag checks on 1,496 hunters and found 752 rabbits, 145 pheasants and 49 quail. This compares with 725 rabbits, 173 pheasants and 50 quail inlast year's opening day bag check of 1,882 hunters.

Heavy showers, moving from the northwest to the southeastern part of the state as the day progressed, caused thehunting pressure to vary fromlight to heavy during the 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. hunting hours.

Dan C. Armbruster, Chief of the Division of Wildlife, said enforcement officers arrested 73 hunters Thursday, an unusually high number. "Most of the violators were hunting before hours, he said, cautioning hunters to consult their hunting digests for the hunting hours on the various species ofgame animals and waterfowl.

The best opening day rabbit areas were in southeastern and south western Ohio. The best pheasant areas were northeastern and northwestern Ohio, while the best quail areas were in the southeast and central parts of the state.

Individual counties reporting the best rabbit success were Union, Hardin, Fulton Carroll, Belmont and Miami . Hunters had the best success with pheasants in Wood, Fulton, Williams, Columbiana an Ottawa counties, while Hardin, Union, Gallia and Jackson were the best quail counties.

No hunting accidents were reported, but onehunter was hospitalized after being struck by lightning in Ottawa County.

Adams, Snider Lead Capital

Mike Adams, a young man who wants to be an Air Force pilot when he graduates from Capital University this spring, has hit the heights of success in football on the Bexley campus.

The 6-1, 210 pound center and co-captain, has been named his team's Most Valuable player for 1973, named to the 2nd annual all-Ohio Senior Shrine Bowl game and is a prime candidate for Little All-America, Lutheran All-America and Ohio Conference honors.

He'll be joined on the West Squad in this year's Dec. 1 Shrine Bowl classic by senior halfback Craig "Cannon" Snider (Celina), who rushed for a team-leading 608 yards in eight games and also led the team in scoring with five touchdowns.

Snider was second team all-OAC a year ago and further post-season honors are also expected to be ahead for the 205 pound tailback.

Three other Capital students will participate in the Shrine Bowl festivities. Cards Will Bear 'Team' Label

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

LABEL them a TEAM and label him a real TEAM MAN.

Them, is Otterbein's frisky 1973-74 cage squad and that TEAM MAN is personable Card roundball coach Dick Reynolds.

FOR AN example of just how important the entire team is to Coach Reynolds, flash back to last year's tilt with Baldwin Wallace. The Cards needed this win to grab a share of the Ohio Conference campionship and just that they did using 11 of its 12 men in the process and having 10 men represented in the scoring column.

"The crux of our program is togetherness and teamwork," explains Reynolds, . "You must do well as a team, not just one or two individuals, and this is what we strive for. Nor just a togetherness on the court, but also off the court."

AND YOU might just credit that teamwork and togetherness as a supreme ingredient that helped Otterbein win 11 of its games by four points or less during last year's 19-6 co-championship season.

The Otters lose Steve Traylor, Otterbein's all-everything for four years, but have four juniors who started as sophs a year ago back in Bob Decqard, Mike Hays, Glenn Horner and Watterson grad Jim Reed.

"Jim (Reed) is small for a center)6-4) but he takes up a lot of room there and he really makes up for his size with his physicallness under the boards," evaluates Coach Reynolds.

AND THE physicallness and quickness which the Otters possess may be some great determining factor for the Card's cage hopes. It should be a much harder road for youthful Reynolds and his crew this year as Traylor and his young playmates were not looked to as contenders last year.

"These kids know some people will be gunning for us and they are working hard to improve," Reynolds modestly clued.

And of course, the Otterbein strength which can't be overlooked is that tenacious hustle and desire which the Otterbein kids bank on.

"WE'VE GOT a better attitude and more hustle now than ever and the desire of these kids...well...just great," explains Reynolds.

It will be a smaller group than most that they'll face, 6-4 across the front line, but, "We'll just have to harass and pressure on defense to make up for our lack of size," contends Reynolds.

Complimenting Reynold's four returning starters on the hardwood will be a couple of dandy 6-4 forwards, Jim Martin a transfer, and Bob Buchan a Whetstone product. Adding depth to the guard spot will be sophomores Terry Morrison and Dave Bromley. Scott Reall is also tabbed as a first line sub.

A pair of area hopefuls that Reynolds said were showing progress are Dan Wilmouth from Worthington and Eastmoor graduate Kim McCualsky. Both are being worked at guard, switching from their high school forward slots.

Reynolds labeled the OC as "unbelievably well balanced," as he named eight teams whom he feels "Can't be counted out." The boss man seemed enthused about the tough schedule the Otters face, small college power Akron in its initial December 1, encounter. And when you talk Otterbein don't forget that January 17, teaparty at the Fairgrounds Coliseum with Capital.

OH, DOESN't that just send something down your spine?

Card Cagers Continue Winning, Winning

By Bruce Reynolds

WORTHINGTON had good luck with schools up north last week as they knocked off Buckeye Valley 41-36 and Delaware 53-46 to raise their record to 3-0. The JV's also won their double-header, bursting loose against the Pacers in a 57-point offensive spree.

The Cards' two big juniors, Mark Kline and Don Brough, were the spark for the victories. Kline was the mainstay on Wednesday against Buckeye Valley while Brough played a spectacular game against the defending Ohio Capital Conference champs.

At Buckeye Valley, the Cards started out like a house afire, moving to a 9-0 lead after just three minutes of play. But the host Barons, with six free throws, narrowed the gap to 13-8 at the end of the period. Worthinggton forward Doug Burkhart and guard Ken Jones picked up two fouls in the first quarter.

IN THE middle of the second period, as Worthington began to have turn-over problems, Buckeye Valley gained the lead at 18-17. The Barons scored 10 points on their first six possessions of the quarter. The lead was exchanged several times before halftime, which brought a 23-23 deadlock. The third quarter remained close with Buckeye Valley taking a 31-29 advantage into the final eight minutes.

The Cards showed a definite height advantage throughout the evening, and this was a big factor in the final period. Buckeye Valley's fine outside shooting was cut off by the wide-ranging Cardinal zone.

This left gaps underneath trhe boards, but the Barons had no one big or good enough to balance their offense. The Cards won the overall rebounding battle 30-13.

Buckeye Valley had been capitalizing on Cardinal turnovers during the first three quarters, but the situation reversed in the last segment. The team that had lived by the turnover died by the turnover as the Barons had a streak of four errors in a row while the Cards played near-perfect ball.

THIS ALL resulted in a 13-5 Worthington fourth quarter advantage and a 41-36 final score. Kline was the star of the evening with 16 points, including eight for eight from the free throw line, and eight rebounds. Jones supported the totals with nine points. Murray Smith threw in 15 from long range for the losers.

Brough and his mates did the damage in the opening quarter again on Friday, jumping to a 13-5 first period lead. By halftime it was 32-11. In the second half, however, Delaware fought back to make the score respectable. The Cards scored only seven points in the final period while their hosts picked up 15.

Brough, with 20 points and 13 rebounds, had his best game as a Cardinal. Burkhart added six points while pulling down nine off the boards. The Cards nearly doubled the Pacers rebound total, 33-17. Mike Knnnaird had 14 points for Delaware.

THE RESERVES performed in opposite situations last week. At Buckeye Valley they could hardly make a shot, but against Delaware they hit 52 percent from the floor.

Wednesday, with the Cards shooting only 17 percent in the first half, they couldn't take advantage of the many Buckeye Valley turnovers. The Barons led 8-3 after one quarter, but the game was tied 10-all at halftime.

Worthington, with several substitutes in the lineup, took a 19-16 lead in the third period, which they expanded in the final six minutes. The team had a shooting percentage of 37 percent in the improved second half.

Pivotman Mike Carr again led the Cardinal scoring with 11 points. Coming off an injury which kept him out of the Whetstone game, newcomer Murray Armstrong added seven. He was three for 17 from the field, however, which helped lower the shooting percentage. Homer Clark led all scorers with 12 points in a losing effort.

The offense had no problems on Friday, scoring almost as many points as their combined two-game total. The 57-44 final was basically achieved in the third period as the Cards outscored the Pacers 16-6. Delaware's high turnover rate was a factor in their loss.

Worthington's win came without Tim Arnold, who had started at guard in the first two contests. He never saw any action. Armstrong came back with 23 points this time, and Carr added 13. Mike Bull came off the bench to add 12 points. Jay Coffman was the Pacer leader, scoring 16.

This Friday the Cards host Mt. Vernon as they attempt to hold their share of the OCC lead. Saturday night Worthington will attempt to revenge two losses to Arlington last year, in another home game.

Frost and ice many times form sooner and linger longer on bridges and overpasses. Pete O'Grady, Highway Safety Director, suggests that even if the rest of the road is dry, be cautious when approaching bridges and overpasses in winter.

Fireplace Must Be Closely Watched

In anticipation of fuel shortages this winter, fireplaces are often thought of as an emergency means for heating and cooking.

RESIDENTS should be aware of the hazards that may be present in burning wood, coal, or other high temperature fuels in fireplaces designed only for gas appliances. Many homes built prior to World War II had these gas fireplaces installed in them.

Officials of the Columbus Division of Fire and Building Regulation Department have stated that this is a very dangerous practice which could possibly cost you your life or cause major damage to your home.

Gas fireplaces are generally more shallow and narrow in design and are sometimes lined with decorative ceramic tile.

Woodburning fireplaces would generally have an ash dump in the floor and a cast iron damper inside the top of the opening.

Fire officials caution that fire prevention should always be kept in mind when using any type of fireplace.

Golden Age News And Notes

SHE'S THE first presiding officer we ever saw who greeted her luncheon guests, introduced the speakers' table, and served turkey gravy at the same time.

A large checked no-nonsense apron tied firmly about her waist, a ladle poised over a huge pot of turkey gravy on the moveable dolly by her side, Mrs. Ethel Furlough, supervisor of the Foster Gransparent Porgram for the Columbus State Institute, stood welcoming her delighted Foster Grandparents to a festive pre-Holiday Luncheon at the Institute.

THE UNUSUAL informality made everyone happy, the gravy was delicious, and very Foster Grandparent got an individual "hello" from her "boss" as she passed up her plate.

"She's the best boss you could ever have," said one of the Foster Grandparents. "She's never too busy to stop and talk and if you have problems, she helps you work them out. She believes in what we are doing and in us. I think she's delighted with us."

FOSTER Grandparents come in all shapes, sizes, colors and sexes but one and all they are cheerful, warm, outigiving Senior Citizens. There are 77 of them for the Columbus State Institute and Mrs. Furlough wishes there were more. She could use them. Especially she needs Grandfathers of which she is in short supply right now.

There are only four requirements for becoming a Foster Grandparent: you must be at least sixty years of age, you must be in reasonably good health, you must have a limited (not more than $2000 for singles, $2600 for couples), and you must have an unlimited love for children.

Foster Grandparents go through about 40 hours of training. They learn about mental retardation and work with an experienced Foster Grandparent before they are assigned their own children.

Foster Grandparents work 20 hours a week-2 hours a day with each of their two assigned children. They are paid $2 an hour.

THERE IS no thought that Foster Grandparents will replace the normal staff of this facility for retarded children. They are however in contact with the staff and made aware of any particular porblems concerning their own foster children. Thus they are able to reinforce the staff in learning situations. Mostly, though, when they go to pick up their "grand children" in the unit, they will do suc things as take the children on walks, teach them how to throw a ball, or talk about the nature they see together.

If it is bad weather, they can go to the recreation areas and take part together in the on-going handicraft programs. Primarily, it's just becoming fast friends.

It's a one to one program and it's an adventure in love. "When I match the children and parents up, I go by chemistry-sort of who fits who", declared Mrs. Furlough.

"PEOPLE need people," she continued. "Children benefit from a meaningful relationship with mature adult. Persons near the end of their normal working life must have a constructive base for living out their years.

The Foster Grandparent Progrtam evolved from this dual purpose base. The experience and wisdom of elder adults can be a key ingredient in the development of a child. Every child needs to be cuddled and spoiled a little. The staff doesn't have time, so the Foster Grandparent becomes the special friend.

IT'S HARD to say who benefits the most-the child, his nose pressed against the window watching for his "grandmother to come and take him out or just play with him or just love him, or the senior citizen hurrying to keep his meeting date and looking forward to seeing the happiness his arrival brings."

"If you are sick and can't come or have to go away a while" said one cheerful looking "grandmother" in her rosy dress, "they never forget you. As soon as you can come again, they know right away who you are and show their delight. What do we do together? Oh well, there are hundreds of things depending on what your grandchild is able to do.

One of my children told me 'Grandmas are the only adults who have time'.

"THIS program is federally and state funded," said Mrs. Furlough. It's for the benefit of the children and for the Senior Citizens too. There's a growing number of our older citiznes who would like to reach out for this rewarding experience.

I feel so good about all my "Grandparents" I wish I had a big Palace like the Buckingham Palace they have been showing on TV. I'd take all my Foster Grandparents to live with me and then I could enjoy them all the time."

The Wiener Defends Itself (Or You Can't Keep A Good Dog Down)

AMERICA'S favorite food for a hundred years recently has come under much criticism.

Can it be it's taken Americans 100 years to discover what's in the hot dog?

It's time the hot dog had a chance to defend itself – purely on an objective basis, of course.

It's also time the public knew the real truth about the hot dog before they begin to cross it off their grocery lists.

THE MAIN attacks against hot dogs have been (1) they don't contain enough meat, (2) they contain the wrong kinds of meat, (3) they have little nutritional value, and (4) they're loaded with fat, cereal and preservatives.

Taking one complaint at a time, let's examine the real hot dog.

Wieners contain 85 percent meat, including protein, natural fat and moisture (which is nothing more than a fancy word for "water").

LET'S realize that natural fat is an excellent source of energy and vitamins A, D, E, and K. It is an essential part of any diet and provides the juiciness and flavor in meat.

U.S. government-inspected hot dogs may contain no more than 30 percent fat, and that is less than what is naturally present in peanut butter, most cuts of meat and many [illegible].

Okay, so hot dogs are 85 percent meat; what's in the other 15 percent? Five percent is seasonings and curing ingredients.

The remaining 10 percent is water, which serves the same purpose as moisture added to meat loaf.

It facilitates mixing and assures uniform distribution of other ingredients.

SINCE ONE can't logically object to that remaining 15 percent, let's get back to the 85 percent of meat. Just what is the "everything" that some packers put into hot dogs?

"Everything" usually means the tongue, heart, liver and other animal parts generally known as variety meats. The use of variety meats in hot dogs has caused spirited debate.

On one side are some people who insist variety meats should be banned from hot dogs. Their arguments appear to be based on emotional reaction toward variety meats.

HOWEVER, the American Meat Institute has pointed out that variety meats are nutritionally rich. They are excellent sources of essential, complete proteins as well as vitamins and minerals.

Millions around the world consider "variety meats" gourmet delicacies. And in this era of high prices and shortages, many consumer advocates consider the use of variety meats an essential contribution to national nutrition.

THE United States Department of Agriculture permits variety meats as long as they are listed on the label along with the generic name of the product, e.g., "Frankfurters with Variety Meats".

Consumers have the choice of selecting wieners that contain solely raw skeletal muscle meat, or wieners made with variety meats. Labels clearly spell out the difference.

Just what do hot dogs have to offer nutritionally?

A WIENER averages 12 percent protein. To put it another way, one hot dog provides as much protein as one large egg, plus more thiamin, niacin and vitamin C.

Two hot dogs on buns afford a twelve-year-old with 42 percent of his daily protein allowance, based on recommended daily allowances established by the National Academy of Sciences. (A peanut butter and jelly sandwich would give him 27 percent.)

WHILE hot dogs have never claimed to be six-inch vitamin pills, they are a tasty and convenient source of essential proteins, B vitamins and minerals.

And hot dogs are not "loaded" with preservatives and cereal. Sodium nitrate, which has cuased some controversy, is permitted by the USDA only 200 parts per million. This is strictly enforced.

SODIUM nitrate is also endorsed by the Food and Drug Administration because of its long history of safety. It simply gives the hot dog its appealing color and, more importantly, inhibits the growth of bacteria.

(And a little lesson on bacteria – bacteria grows naturally on any food.)

AS FAR as cereals and other approved non-meat binders are concerned, they cannot exceed 3-½ percent of the finished product. The exact name of any binders used must appear on the label.

ALL ingredients are listed on the hot dog package in descending order of the amount used. No ingredient can be included without prior approval from the USDA.

The USDA stamp assures the consumer that the product has been examined by federal inspectors, is properly processed and packaged and truthfully labeled.

SO IT'S all right there on the label – everything the consumer needs to know. It's his choice which hot dogs to buy. And he's sure buying. Americans consume over 16 billion hot dogs annually, which roughly works out to 80 per person.

Statistics like these "boil" down to the fact the hot dog is still "red hot". It continues to be as welcome in American homes as mom's apple pie.

Darby Valley Has Garden Club Tour

Darby Valley Garden Club members will hold their 1973 "Tour of Homes" Sunday, December 2, from 3 until 9 p.m.

Five homes are being decorated by members for the pleasure and browsing of the public..

Included in this year's tour are the Werner L. Sloman residence, Zuber Road; the home of Jennie and Ralph Huffman in the Village of Harrisburg; the new country home of J. Berk and Rosemary Roach on Biggert Road; the country farm house of the Allen Grossmans; and the Timberlake home of Isabelle and Bill Lucas on Meadow Lark Lane.

Each features a different holiday theme expressing the artistic and individual talents of Darby Valley Members.

Those taking the tour will also be welcomed to Fellowship Hall of the Harrisburg United Methodist Church for refreshments.

Tickets at $2 each and tour maps will be available at the Church or advance tickets may be purchased from any member.

Mrs. Allen Grossman is serving as general chairman of the tour assisted by all club members.

Vision Center Industry Gives New Eyes To Many

"I'M SURE there are blind people who would never work if it weren't for Vision Center Industries," remarked Hattie Parrish, chairman of a newly formed employees committee at the sheltered workshop, 2470 Cleveland Ave.

The workshop is the industrial branch of the Vision Center at 1393 N. High St., a private, non-profit rehabilitation facility for visually handicapped adults.

Vocational evaluation, job training and employment opportunities are provided to blind persons at the workshop which engages in light manufacturing and assembly work for private industry. An aggressive contract procurement progra enables VisionCenter Indistries to employ between 75 and 100 persons per year.

"VISION CENTER Industries helps persons who are unable to work in outside industry, because of their blindness, to earn a decent living," explained Mrs. Parrish, who has been employed by the workshop since 1965. The workshop also maintains an active placement service which placed nine persons from the workshop into occupations in competitive industry within the last year.

In an effort to develop more industrial employment opportunities for blind persons, Vision Center Industries applied for and achieved certification status in National Industries for the Blind (NIB), a non-profit corporation which allocates pruchase orders from the federal government to qualified workshops for the blind.

THE COMMITTEE's chief res ponsibility, Mrs. Parrish said, will be to maintain effective communications between employees and supervisory staff.

Cards Will Bear 'Team' Label

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

LABEL them a TEAM and label him a real TEAM MAN.

Them, is Otterbein's frisky 1973-74 cage squad and that TEAM MAN is personable Card roundball coach Dick Reynolds.

FOR AN example of just how important the entire team is to Coach Reynolds, flash back to last year's tilt with Baldwin Wallace. The Cards needed this win to grab a share of the Ohio Conference campionship and just that they did using 11 of its 12 men in the process and having 10 men represented in the scoring column.

"The crux of our program is togetherness and teamwork," explains Reynolds, . "You must do well as a team, not just one or two individuals, and this is what we strive for. Nor just a togetherness on the court, but also off the court."

AND YOU might just credit that teamwork and togetherness as a supreme ingredient that helped Otterbein win 11 of its games by four points or less during last year's 19-6 co-championship season.

The Otters lose Steve Traylor, Otterbein's all-everything for four years, but have four juniors who started as sophs a year ago back in Bob Decqard, Mike Hays, Glenn Horner and Watterson grad Jim Reed.

"Jim (Reed) is small for a center)6-4) but he takes up a lot of room there and he really makes up for his size with his physicallness under the boards," evaluates Coach Reynolds.

AND THE physicallness and quickness which the Otters possess may be some great determining factor for the Card's cage hopes. It should be a much harder road for youthful Reynolds and his crew this year as Traylor and his young playmates were not looked to as contenders last year.

"These kids know some people will be gunning for us and they are working hard to improve," Reynolds modestly clued.

And of course, the Otterbein strength which can't be overlooked is that tenacious hustle and desire which the Otterbein kids bank on.

"WE'VE GOT a better attitude and more hustle now than ever and the desire of these kids...well...just great," explains Reynolds.

It will be a smaller group than most that they'll face, 6-4 across the front line, but, "We'll just have to harass and pressure on defense to make up for our lack of size," contends Reynolds.

Complimenting Reynold's four returning starters on the hardwood will be a couple of dandy 6-4 forwards, Jim Martin a transfer, and Bob Buchan a Whetstone product. Adding depth to the guard spot will be sophomores Terry Morrison and Dave Bromley. Scott Reall is also tabbed as a first line sub.

A pair of area hopefuls that Reynolds said were showing progress are Dan Wilmouth from Worthington and Eastmoor graduate Kim McCualsky. Both are being worked at guard, switching from their high school forward slots.

Reynolds labeled the OC as "unbelievably well balanced," as he named eight teams whom he feels "Can't be counted out." The boss man seemed enthused about the tough schedule the Otters face, small college power Akron in its initial December 1, encounter. And when you talk Otterbein don't forget that January 17, teaparty at the Fairgrounds Coliseum with Capital.

OH, DOESN't that just send something down your spine?

Card Cagers Continue Winning, Winning

By Bruce Reynolds

WORTHINGTON had good luck with schools up north last week as they knocked off Buckeye Valley 41-36 and Delaware 53-46 to raise their record to 3-0. The JV's also won their double-header, bursting loose against the Pacers in a 57-point offensive spree.

The Cards' two big juniors, Mark Kline and Don Brough, were the spark for the victories. Kline was the mainstay on Wednesday against Buckeye Valley while Brough played a spectacular game against the defending Ohio Capital Conference champs.

At Buckeye Valley, the Cards started out like a house afire, moving to a 9-0 lead after just three minutes of play. But the host Barons, with six free throws, narrowed the gap to 13-8 at the end of the period. Worthinggton forward Doug Burkhart and guard Ken Jones picked up two fouls in the first quarter.

IN THE middle of the second period, as Worthington began to have turn-over problems, Buckeye Valley gained the lead at 18-17. The Barons scored 10 points on their first six possessions of the quarter. The lead was exchanged several times before halftime, which brought a 23-23 deadlock. The third quarter remained close with Buckeye Valley taking a 31-29 advantage into the final eight minutes.

The Cards showed a definite height advantage throughout the evening, and this was a big factor in the final period. Buckeye Valley's fine outside shooting was cut off by the wide-ranging Cardinal zone.

This left gaps underneath trhe boards, but the Barons had no one big or good enough to balance their offense. The Cards won the overall rebounding battle 30-13.

Buckeye Valley had been capitalizing on Cardinal turnovers during the first three quarters, but the situation reversed in the last segment. The team that had lived by the turnover died by the turnover as the Barons had a streak of four errors in a row while the Cards played near-perfect ball.

THIS ALL resulted in a 13-5 Worthington fourth quarter advantage and a 41-36 final score. Kline was the star of the evening with 16 points, including eight for eight from the free throw line, and eight rebounds. Jones supported the totals with nine points. Murray Smith threw in 15 from long range for the losers.

Brough and his mates did the damage in the opening quarter again on Friday, jumping to a 13-5 first period lead. By halftime it was 32-11. In the second half, however, Delaware fought back to make the score respectable. The Cards scored only seven points in the final period while their hosts picked up 15.

Brough, with 20 points and 13 rebounds, had his best game as a Cardinal. Burkhart added six points while pulling down nine off the boards. The Cards nearly doubled the Pacers rebound total, 33-17. Mike Knnnaird had 14 points for Delaware.

THE RESERVES performed in opposite situations last week. At Buckeye Valley they could hardly make a shot, but against Delaware they hit 52 percent from the floor.

Wednesday, with the Cards shooting only 17 percent in the first half, they couldn't take advantage of the many Buckeye Valley turnovers. The Barons led 8-3 after one quarter, but the game was tied 10-all at halftime.

Worthington, with several substitutes in the lineup, took a 19-16 lead in the third period, which they expanded in the final six minutes. The team had a shooting percentage of 37 percent in the improved second half.

Pivotman Mike Carr again led the Cardinal scoring with 11 points. Coming off an injury which kept him out of the Whetstone game, newcomer Murray Armstrong added seven. He was three for 17 from the field, however, which helped lower the shooting percentage. Homer Clark led all scorers with 12 points in a losing effort.

The offense had no problems on Friday, scoring almost as many points as their combined two-game total. The 57-44 final was basically achieved in the third period as the Cards outscored the Pacers 16-6. Delaware's high turnover rate was a factor in their loss.

Worthington's win came without Tim Arnold, who had started at guard in the first two contests. He never saw any action. Armstrong came back with 23 points this time, and Carr added 13. Mike Bull came off the bench to add 12 points. Jay Coffman was the Pacer leader, scoring 16.

This Friday the Cards host Mt. Vernon as they attempt to hold their share of the OCC lead. Saturday night Worthington will attempt to revenge two losses to Arlington last year, in another home game.

Frost and ice many times form sooner and linger longer on bridges and overpasses. Pete O'Grady, Highway Safety Director, suggests that even if the rest of the road is dry, be cautious when approaching bridges and overpasses in winter.

Fireplace Must Be Closely Watched

In anticipation of fuel shortages this winter, fireplaces are often thought of as an emergency means for heating and cooking.

RESIDENTS should be aware of the hazards that may be present in burning wood, coal, or other high temperature fuels in fireplaces designed only for gas appliances. Many homes built prior to World War II had these gas fireplaces installed in them.

Officials of the Columbus Division of Fire and Building Regulation Department have stated that this is a very dangerous practice which could possibly cost you your life or cause major damage to your home.

Gas fireplaces are generally more shallow and narrow in design and are sometimes lined with decorative ceramic tile.

Woodburning fireplaces would generally have an ash dump in the floor and a cast iron damper inside the top of the opening.

Fire officials caution that fire prevention should always be kept in mind when using any type of fireplace.

Golden Age News And Notes

SHE'S THE first presiding officer we ever saw who greeted her luncheon guests, introduced the speakers' table, and served turkey gravy at the same time.

A large checked no-nonsense apron tied firmly about her waist, a ladle poised over a huge pot of turkey gravy on the moveable dolly by her side, Mrs. Ethel Furlough, supervisor of the Foster Gransparent Porgram for the Columbus State Institute, stood welcoming her delighted Foster Grandparents to a festive pre-Holiday Luncheon at the Institute.

THE UNUSUAL informality made everyone happy, the gravy was delicious, and very Foster Grandparent got an individual "hello" from her "boss" as she passed up her plate.

"She's the best boss you could ever have," said one of the Foster Grandparents. "She's never too busy to stop and talk and if you have problems, she helps you work them out. She believes in what we are doing and in us. I think she's delighted with us."

FOSTER Grandparents come in all shapes, sizes, colors and sexes but one and all they are cheerful, warm, outigiving Senior Citizens. There are 77 of them for the Columbus State Institute and Mrs. Furlough wishes there were more. She could use them. Especially she needs Grandfathers of which she is in short supply right now.

There are only four requirements for becoming a Foster Grandparent: you must be at least sixty years of age, you must be in reasonably good health, you must have a limited (not more than $2000 for singles, $2600 for couples), and you must have an unlimited love for children.

Foster Grandparents go through about 40 hours of training. They learn about mental retardation and work with an experienced Foster Grandparent before they are assigned their own children.

Foster Grandparents work 20 hours a week-2 hours a day with each of their two assigned children. They are paid $2 an hour.

THERE IS no thought that Foster Grandparents will replace the normal staff of this facility for retarded children. They are however in contact with the staff and made aware of any particular porblems concerning their own foster children. Thus they are able to reinforce the staff in learning situations. Mostly, though, when they go to pick up their "grand children" in the unit, they will do suc things as take the children on walks, teach them how to throw a ball, or talk about the nature they see together.

If it is bad weather, they can go to the recreation areas and take part together in the on-going handicraft programs. Primarily, it's just becoming fast friends.

It's a one to one program and it's an adventure in love. "When I match the children and parents up, I go by chemistry-sort of who fits who", declared Mrs. Furlough.

"PEOPLE need people," she continued. "Children benefit from a meaningful relationship with mature adult. Persons near the end of their normal working life must have a constructive base for living out their [illegible].

The Foster Grandparent Progrtam evolved from this dual purpose base. The experience and wisdom of elder adults can be a key ingredient in the development of a child. Every child needs to be cuddled and spoiled a little. The staff doesn't have time, so the Foster Grandparent becomes the special friend.

IT'S HARD to say who benefits the most-the child, his nose pressed against the window watching for his "grandmother to come and take him out or just play with him or just love him, or the senior citizen hurrying to keep his meeting date and looking forward to seeing the happiness his arrival brings."

"If you are sick and can't come or have to go away a while" said one cheerful looking "grandmother" in her rosy dress, "they never forget you. As soon as you can come again, they know right away who you are and show their delight. What do we do together? Oh well, there are hundreds of things depending on what your grandchild is able to do.

One of my children told me 'Grandmas are the only adults who have time'.

"THIS program is federally and state funded," said Mrs. Furlough. It's for the benefit of the children and for the Senior Citizens too. There's a growing number of our older citiznes who would like to reach out for this rewarding experience.

I feel so good about all my "Grandparents" I wish I had a big Palace like the Buckingham Palace they have been showing on TV. I'd take all my Foster Grandparents to live with me and then I could enjoy them all the time."

AMERICA'S favorite food for a hundred years recently has come under much criticism.

Can it be it's taken Americans 100 years to discover what's in the hot dog?

It's time the hot dog had a chance to defend itself – purely on an objective basis, of course.

It's also time the public knew the real truth about the hot dog before they begin to cross it off their grocery lists.

THE MAIN attacks against hot dogs have been (1) they don't contain enough meat, (2) they contain the wrong kinds of meat, (3) they have little nutritional value, and (4) they're loaded with fat, cereal and preservatives.

Taking one complaint at a time, let's examine the real hot dog.

Wieners contain 85 percent meat, including protein, natural fat and moisture (which is nothing more than a fancy word for "water").

LET'S realize that natural fat is an excellent source of energy and vitamins A, D, E, and K. It is an essential part of any diet and provides the juiciness and flavor in meat.

U.S. government-inspected hot dogs may contain no more than 30 percent fat, and that is less than what is naturally present in peanut butter, most cuts of meat and many [illegible].

Okay, so hot dogs are 85 percent meat; what's in the other 15 percent? Five percent is seasonings and curing ingredients.

The remaining 10 percent is water, which serves the same purpose as moisture added to meat loaf.

It facilitates mixing and assures uniform distribution of other ingredients.

SINCE ONE can't logically object to that remaining 15 percent, let's get back to the 85 percent of meat. Just what is the "everything" that some packers put into hot dogs?

"Everything" usually means the tongue, heart, liver and other animal parts generally known as variety meats. The use of variety meats in hot dogs has caused spirited debate.

On one side are some people who insist variety meats should be banned from hot dogs. Their arguments appear to be based on emotional reaction toward variety meats.

HOWEVER, the American Meat Institute has pointed out that variety meats are nutritionally rich. They are excellent sources of essential, complete proteins as well as vitamins and minerals.

Millions around the world consider "variety meats" gourmet delicacies. And in this era of high prices and shortages, many consumer advocates consider the use of variety meats an essential contribution to national nutrition.

THE United States Department of Agriculture permits variety meats as long as they are listed on the label along with the generic name of the product, e.g., "Frankfurters with Variety Meats".

Consumers have the choice of selecting wieners that contain solely raw skeletal muscle meat, or wieners made with variety meats. Labels clearly spell out the difference.

Just what do hot dogs have to offer nutritionally?

A WIENER averages 12 percent protein. To put it another way, one hot dog provides as much protein as one large egg, plus more thiamin, niacin and vitamin C.

Two hot dogs on buns afford a twelve-year-old with 42 percent of his daily protein allowance, based on recommended daily allowances established by the National Academy of Sciences. (A peanut butter and jelly sandwich would give him 27 percent.)

WHILE hot dogs have never claimed to be six-inch vitamin pills, they are a tasty and convenient source of essential proteins, B vitamins and minerals.

And hot dogs are not "loaded" with preservatives and cereal. Sodium nitrate, which has cuased some controversy, is permitted by the USDA only 200 parts per million. This is strictly enforced.

SODIUM nitrate is also endorsed by the Food and Drug Administration because of its long history of safety. It simply gives the hot dog its appealing color and, more importantly, inhibits the growth of bacteria.

(And a little lesson on bacteria – bacteria grows naturally on any food.)

AS FAR as cereals and other approved non-meat binders are concerned, they cannot exceed 3½ percent of the finished product. The exact name of any binders used must appear on the label.

ALL ingredients are listed on the hot dog package in descending order of the amount used. No ingredient can be included without prior approval from the USDA.

The USDA stamp assures the consumer that the product has been examined by federal inspectors, is properly processed and packaged and truthfully labeled.

SO IT'S all right there on the label – everything the consumer needs to know. It's his choice which hot dogs to buy. And he's sure buying. Americans consume over 16 billion hot dogs annually, which roughly works out to 80 per person.

Statistics like these "boil" down to the fact the hot dog is still "red hot". It continues to be as welcome in American homes as mom's apple pie.

Darby Valley Has Garden Club Tour

Darby Valley Garden Club members will hold their 1973 "Tour of Homes" Sunday, December 2, from 3 until 9 p.m.

Five homes are being decorated by members for the pleasure and browsing of the public.

Included in this year's tour are the Werner L. Sloman residence, Zuber Road; the home of Jennie and Ralph Huffman in the Village of Harrisburg; the new country home of J. Berk and Rosemary Roach on Biggert Road; the country farm house of the Allen Grossmans; and the Timberlake home of Isabelle and Bill Lucas on Meadow Lark Lane.

Each features a different holiday theme expressing the artistic and individual talents of Darby Valley Members.

Those taking the tour will also be welcomed to Fellowship Hall of the Harrisburg United Methodist Church for refreshments.

Tickets at $2 each and tour maps will be available at the Church or advance tickets may be purchased from any member.

Mrs. Allen Grossman is serving as general chairman of the tour assisted by all club members.

Vision Center Industry Gives New Eyes To Many

"I'M SURE there are blind people who would never work if it weren't for Vision Center Industries," remarked Hattie Parrish, chairman of a newly formed employees committee at the sheltered workshop, 2470 Cleveland Ave.

The workshop is the industrial branch of the Vision Center at 1393 N. High St., a private, non-profit rehabilitation facility for visually handicapped adults.

Vocational evaluation, job training and employment opportunities are provided to blind persons at the workshop which engages in light manufacturing and assembly work for private industry. An aggressive contract procurement progra enables VisionCenter Indistries to employ between 75 and 100 persons per year.

"VISION CENTER Industries helps persons who are unable to work in outside industry, because of their blindness, to earn a decent living," explained Mrs. Parrish, who has been employed by the workshop since 1965. The workshop also maintains an active placement service which placed nine persons from the workshop into occupations in competitive industry within the last year.

In an effort to develop more industrial employment opportunities for blind persons, Vision Center Industries applied for and achieved certification status in National Industries for the Blind (NIB), a non-profit corporation which allocates pruchase orders from the federal government to qualified workshops for the blind.

THE COMMITTEE's chief res ponsibility, Mrs. Parrish said, will be to maintain effective communications between employees and supervisory staff.

CLOSE-UP VIEWS OF COMMUNITY NEWS

Serving Bexley, East Columbus and Whitehall

Vol. VXI No. 1 Total 942 | Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday, December 5, 1973 | 15 Cents

ONE OF THE WHITEHALL TEENAGERS glues a picture on the living room wall the The House. A large number of the young people who have come to the House for relaxation, counsel and recreation stayed to add their bit to the collage of colorful photos, cartoons, and commercial art from magazines, plus headlines from newspapers and magazine story titles. The result is a contemporary background for activities at the house, therapeutic art project and probably best of all, a good way to cover up dingy old wallpaper. On the left is a rack with booklets covering contemporary problems which visitors are invited to browse through or take home. In the dining room of the House there is a picture post wall, as it is called, where the youngsters' original art work papers the wall from floor to ceiling, another eye-catching result of free-time creative outlet. They're 'Up On People'

Staff Helps Tie In Community Resources To Individuals' Needs

By ELSIE V. WEAVER

Whitehall-Of all the houses in the city of Whitehall, there is only one called, simply, The House. The House is not a home. The door is never locked when there is someone there and one does not knock before going in.

The unpretentious little white house at 3666 Etna Street seems to stagger under the subtitle "Community Crisis Center" on a sign on the siding near the front door. Under that comes the telephone number "239-9965" in letters so big they can be read from a passing car.

AT NIGHT the living room is quite dark as the two chandeliers have only red, blue and green bulbs in them. It's Saturday night "rap session" time and each chair and sofa is occupied. Some are seated on the floor. Most are teenagers. It's hard to tell some of the volunteer staff members from the teenagers, they are so young-looking. The youthful new social worker-director of The House, Dennis J. O'Connor, and outreach worker, Michael Murphy, blend well into the group.

A number of youngsters are making candles in the dining room, pouring the hot wax in coffee cups lined with damp sand. One fellow dips his hand in the leftover wax and wears a stiff blue wax glove on his fist like a cast for an hour or more, being sure that everyone sees it several times at least. A girl about eight years old is sitting at a table making designs with glue and pouring colored glitter on them.

A group of kids are in the kitchen talking and enjoying it.

PEOPLE drift in and out. Several come in to consult with Mike in the tiny office. A volunteer answers the phone and becomes engaged in a long conversation. O'Connor explains that she is working with someone who needs to talk to someone or gain support.

The House seems like a recreation center with informal atmosphere. Most of the people who drop in are teenagers who come to talk, to relax, and to get away from home or parents. But The House is much more than a place to come when they have no other place to come.

THE HOUSE is a place where many people from the Whitehall community come to get counseling for a specific problem they have. The youngest client is 11, the oldest in the late 40s. Some come with personal problems; some have family problems.

Because The House is funded by the Franklin County Comprehensive Drug Treatment Program, a division of the county Mental Health and Retardation Board ("648 Board"), counseling services are free. Because there are federal rules governing such services, all information is confidential. Even the telephone conversations O'Connor and Murphy have with clients are recorded in a log in such a manner that no one except the two would know who they had been talking with.

The House was started by the Whitehall Community Awareness Program (CAP) almost two years ago, under the leadership of Mrs. Jane Devine and Mrs. Peaches Martin, and was manned by volunteers only, including Michael Murphy, with a limited number of hours of operation, until October when O'Connor was hired to be a fulltime director, and funding was gained from the 648 board. Murphy was asked to assist him and help extend educational programs into the community.

The House is now open Monday through Thursday from noon until 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday, it is open from 3 p.m. to 3 a.m. the next morning.

STARTING in January, they hope it will be open until 7 a.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

Although counseling drug abusers, providing drug information and identification, crisis intervention and fostering community awareness of the drug problem is a large part of their program, the pair emphasize that they have reorganized the House's program since October and they are now working with all phases of community problems, "whether it's a hole in the road or a mental problem—anything that bothers people."

The director points out that, of course, if a mental problem is serious, he refers the client to the proper professional authority.

Both O'Connor and Murphy have certificates in Drug Abuse Prevention. He is a graduate of Wright State University in Social Work, has worked as a counselor and manager of a Dayton coffee house, a community youth leader, professional Boy Scout worker and as head of the drug program at the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield.

MICHAEL, in addition to his certificate from the Drug Studies Institute at Ohio State University, as a certificate in community drug programs from Adelphi University, New York, one of eight regional centers for the U.S. Office of Health, Education and Welfare.

Murphy has commenced working in the community education field, contacting and speaking before groups at schools, PTAs, VFW, Knights of Columbus, Kiwanis clubs and churches. He stands willing to speak to other organizations, helping with publicity and designing an educational program based on a survey of needs assessment.

Student Opinion Survey Shows

Students Satisfied With Education

BY SANDY SCHWARTZ
Special Staff Writer

Results of the 1973 Student Opinion Survey and a comprehensive report of the pilot industrial arts curriculum project were presented to the Columbus School Board at its Nov. 27 Committee of the Whole meeting.

It was disclosed that 74 per cent of the total 1973 high school enrollment took part in responding to the opinion poll. The survey contained 100 separate questions and included a number of queries in several broad areas such as curriculum, basic skills, vocational programs, human relations, drug education and general educational goals.

Ray Gugel, the professional assistant of evaluation, research and planning for the Columbus Schools, presented an outline of the survey to the board pointing out that "students want more help in planning their careers." Another area that Gugel said the students indicated that they wanted more help in was that of speech communications.

Sixty-seven per cent of the students recommended that greater emphasis on help in planning a career be made. Fifty-six per cent, though, said they had received information about career opportunities.

Thirty-eight per cent expressed dissatisfaction with their speaking skill before groups. This area was the one in which students seemed most dissatisfied.

Another area which proved interesting to the board was that of the total educational experience of each student. Fifty-five per cent of the students believe their schooling has done a good job in teaching them to use the knowledge they have, in solving problems and making decisions.

Fifty-three per cent of the students surveyed felt the schools are doing a good job in helping them think for themselves in this changing society.

Surprising, perhaps, only eight per cent of the students rate their relationship with teachers as unfavorable while 67 per cent voted it as good or very good.

Concerning the subject of drugs, 70 per cent indicated that drug education should be taught primarily in the school; twenty-one per cent said drug education should be taught primarily in the home.

The report also disclosed that 33 per cent of the Columbus Public School students had tried marijuana, comparing almost identically to the 34 per cent national statistic. Forty-two per cent favor legalization of marijuana, again close to the national level where 41 per cent favor legalization.

The point that contrasted with the national level most was that of the availability of drugs at the school, where 42 per cent said drugs were available. The national level shows 64 per cent of the students saying that drugs are available to them.

The Board seemed pleased with the results of the surveys and School Superintendent Dr. John Ellis said, "The results of the 1973 Student Opinion Survey portray a generally positive picture of the present generation of secondary-level students attending the Columbus Schools. The survey reports a student vote of confidence in the School System and points the way to areas requiring further improvement."

It was then reported to the Board that the new industrial arts program involves 10 secondary schools. Among the 10 are Eastmoor, Sherwood, Yorktown and Wedgewood Junior Highs.

The program presents broad concepts and principles. These principles are occupationally oriented and are designed to give the student a "taste" of an occupation.

Actual construction of such thingr as mini-houses to mini-cars are included in this program labeled in two parts as "The World of Construction" and "The World of Manufacturing."

Approximately 2,280 pupils are now being served by this program. Erwin Wagenknecht, Yorktown industrial arts teacher, was quite instrumental in developing this program, not only in Columbus, but throughout the United States.

A slide review narrated by Wagenknecht was included in the report. His presentation was concluded with a model car race between two junior high students. The model cars had been constructed by the students.

The Board seemed extremely pleased with the progress of the program and asked about possible expansion of the program.

Performances have been scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Dec. 7 and 8 at 8:15 p.m. in Mees Hall Auditorium on the Capital campus, and on Sunday, dEc. 9 at 4:00 p.m. in the Ohio Theatre.

In addition to a program of a capella choral works and the traditional signing of carols by the audience, this year's Christmas performances will feature the Benjamin Britten oratorio "St. Nicholas."

The work will be sung by the Chapel Choir and the Capital University Women's Chorus and will be accompanied by two pianos and percussion. Tenor Gene Allen of the conservatory of music faculty at Capital will sing the role of St.Nicholas.

The Chapel Choir has been receiving considerable recognition following its European concert tour earlier this year. (Continued on p. 2)

Compromise: BCA Tree Will Have A Star

Bexley–The program for the Bexley Celebration Association's traditional community Christmas tree-lighting ceremony, Sunday, Dec. 9, is being announced. Four p.m. is the time set for the event at Bexley Circle, corner of Drexel Ave. and E. Broad St.

The tree will not have colored lights on it as in the past, but will not be without all lighting as announced last week. As a concession to the energy crisis, it will have only an electric star on the top. Mayor Kenneth D. McClure will push the button to light the star.

The Rev. Floyd Faust, retired minister of Broad Street Christian Church and longtime Bexley resident, will bring a brief Christmas message.

Mrs. Alma McGuire will lead those assembled in the singing of Christmas carols.

At the appropriate time, Santa Claus will arrive with treats for the children present.

President James Hughes of the BCA will be master of ceremonies.

Staff Helps Tie In Resources With Needs.....

Murphy doesn't like the expressions "drug abuse" or "drug problem." He says, "You're really talking about how people deal with their problems, human problems."

He adds, "I cannot force someone to get off drugs; I can help him look at alternatives, other ways to solve his problems. I talk to him about realities, like the fact that smoking marijuana is illegal and that he could go to jail." He says he is not down on drugs, as such, but is definitely "up on people" and helping them cope with their problems.

DENNIS talks about responsibility to drug abusers, urging them to do what they know they should do, making the right personal choice in life. He tells them, "If you know yourself, your abilities, and face your problems in a rational way, you can do what you really want to do with your life." But he adds, "First they have to know they need help and then they have to try to help themselves. If they are 'in nuetral' we can't do anything to help them. They have to 'hurt' before they are in 'first,' ready to go 'up'."

They try to help people "put their lives back together." Some drug addicts are so "strung out" they don't even know they have a drug problem. Murphy offers, "Some people function well on heroin, are successful in business or profession; without it, they beat their kids."

O'Connor agrees and said, "We do not take a moral stand. We will tell him to look at other ways to live. Our role is finding out what needs the community has and help the community meets its needs, a tying in of resources with needs."

TO IMPLEMENT all phases of their program, many indirect and direct methods are used. The rap sessions, the informal counseling which may occur in a casual conversation on the floor of the dining room, listening to a record, creativity in art expression, or just relaxing in a chair, all have their therapeutic value. Murphy would like to see people "just relax and see themselves an integral part of the universe."

An example of direct action calls for quick action: a telephone call comes, "I took an overdose and don't want to call the emergency squad." Mike or Dennis will call the squad and by prearranged agreement, the patient will be taken to the hospital and no charges will be filed.

Started by volunteers who are members of Whitehall CAP under the leadership of co-chairmen Mrs. Jane Devine and Mrs. Peaches Martin, the volunteer program has grown until there are 16, including four shift managers. So important are they in the functioning of The House, the director says he wishes he had one for every person who comes in.

VOLUNTEERS take a seven-week basic training course, of four hours per week, along with 16 hours of work, four shifts of four hours, under a shift manager.

They have courses in pharmacology, psycho-social aspects of drugs, crisis intervention, basic transactional analysis, legal aspects of volunteer responsibility, suicidology and first aid.

One day recently Mike sat the kids down and asked them, "What do we need here?" On the list were, "Fishing poles, trips, horseback riding, auto mechanics, a workshop, basic self-defense, art supplies, black light and flourescent paint."

Dennis O'Connor, who knows well the limited budget on which The House operates, has a list of "wants", too. He wants people to take kids fishing, on trips, and horseback riding, perhaps a car dealership to donate space where the kids could build something like a dune buggy, or learn how to "strip a car" instead of stripping a car illegally, so they could learn to build up a car for a hobby or even a future career.

HE NEEDS volunteers with skills who could share them, especially on afternoons, and evenings on weekends. From organizations, he'd like funds. The material needs of the center are many: art supplies, pens, pencils, crayons, cleaning supplies, paper towels, toilet tissue, draperies, rug samples so the kids could sew them together or use them to sit on on the floor.

A box in the living room reflects the lack of petty cash in the setup of the center: The sign on it says, "Make contributions here for our House Christmas tree."

FROM THE BEGINNING, The House has enjoyed the support and cooperation of the fire and police departments and the city officials. The fire chief, a policeman, the assistant superintendent of schools, recreation department personnel and teenagers of the community have joined business and professional people and homemakers on the 16-member Board of Directors of The House.

The Whitehall Baptist Church has donated the house itself rent-free. The Whitehall VFW post helps by paying part of the utility bills.

The City of Whitehall gave the gravel for the driveway, loaned four picnic tables from the Recreation Department, a file cabinet and a staff mail box. They also offered the use of the basement of the Municipal Building for board meetings.

The House has been so successful in its field that it was chosen as a model suburban center to be featured in the first five minutes of a film commissioned by the Bureau of Drug Abuse entitled "Who Cares?" It is a documentary on different types of drug abuse centers, the others being in big cities like Cincinnati, Dayton, Cleveland, Youngstown, and Athens. (The movie is available to be shown to grownups in the East area of Columbus and Eastern suburban towns. Mike or Dennis could speak to groups in addition to showing the film.)

THE REAL TEST of the effectiveness and worth of The House is not too easily found. It lies in the hearts and minds of those whose lives have been put back together, because of something they did there, or something someone said there, for them to build on.

THIS IS THE HOUSE, 3686 Etna St., which was founded by members from the Whitehall Community Awareness Program, a committee of concerned citizens interested in the future of the community and particularly in that of its youth. It is open to anyone in the public who has a problem he thinks the House staff might be able to help him with. The house has a fulltime director who is an experienced counselor, and an assistant and outreach worker, plus a growing staff of 16 volunteers, all trained to help people.

European music critics have given their unbounded praise for the choir's 16 concerts in principal cities abroad.

Of special interest were performances in Berlin and in Leipzig, East Germany, where the choir became the first American choral group to sing J.S. Bach's former church, the Thomaskirche.

In addition, the choir performed at the historic St. Mark's Cathedral in Venice, and presented a final program in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City.

Each year, about 6,000 persons attend the Chapel Choir's holiday concerts. There is no admission charge, but advance tickets are recommended to guarantee seating.

Reserved tickets can be obtained by writing to: The Chapel Choir, Capital University, Columbus, Ohio 43209. Requests should state the performance date and the number of tickets desired.

Area Soldier In Army Exercise In Germany

East Columbus--Army specialist four Steven P. Stahl, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Stahl, 3458 Bolton Ave., participated with other American and allied troops in exercise reforger V in Germany, Oct. 10-16.

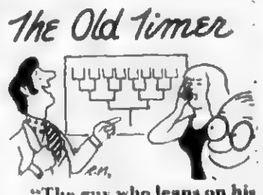
The military airlift command flew approximately 11,000 U.S.-Based soldiers and more than 1,000 tons of equipment to three different airfields in Germany in preparation for the event.

Immediately after arriving overseas, the redeployed units drew combat gear and vehicles from prepositioned storage sites in Germany and moved to the exercise area to begin the seven-day filed maneuver.

Pitted against the airlifted forces were Europe-based elements of NATO forces of the U.S., Germany And Canada.

The exercise, conducted by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and NATO, focused on the procedures and techniques for receiving, equipping, assembling and employing units after they arrive, rather than on rapid deployment of troops from the U.S.

Spec. Stahl is regularly assigned as a clerk typist in headquarters company, 10th engineer battalion of the 3rd Infantry Division in Kitzingen, Germany.



"The guy who leans on his family tree may end up never getting out of the woods."

Career Night To Become Annual Event

Groveport-From seven through nine p.m. on Dec. 5, the first annual Career Night will be held in the Groveport-Madison High School Cafeteria-Commons Area.

Representatives from colleges, technical schools, the military branches, and private industry will be present to talk with interested juniors, seniors and their parents.

The Guidance Department hopes to have good attendance to help make this first Career Night successful, according to David H. Lindsey, Director of Community Relations of the Madison Local School District.

Divided We Drive

A line is a line, unless it is yellow, white, solid or broken, then it is more than just a line. Nearly 1,900 miles of guide lines are painted on Columbus City streets each year.

Yellow lines indicate the other lane is for oncoming traffic; white means traffic in the next lane is going the same direction that the driver is. This is true regardless of whether the line is solid or broken.

The broken line is a permissive line. Changing lanes is permitted when the line is broken and other safety factors make the change possible.

The solid line is restrictive, no crossing permitted; safety factors make the crossing of the line dangerous. The width of the line indicates the degree of danger. Double solid lines indicate the maximum restriction.

The newest lane marking is the double white line. This indicates maximum restriction (no crossing) even though traffic flow is in the same direction.

An example of this is at a "T" intersection where one street dead ends into another. Traffic in the curb lane on the through street is continuous. Lanes will be divided by a double white line. Traffic turning left from the dead end street should turn into the center or closest lane to them. (Another traffic code also covers this regulation.)

The nearly 1,900 miles of lane marking is wasted unless the motorist knows and understands their use. Be sure and know why "Divided We Drive" and drive safely.

Christmas Seal Campaign Helps You Live And Breathe

AS YOU LIVE and breathe is the national Christmas Seal slogan for the 1973 Christmas Seal Campaign. It's a most important one to remember.

So often we take breathing for granted never realizing the miracle of life and breath. As you read this, take some time out of the pre-Christmas rush to think about the importance of each breath you take.

SECONDS AGO you inhaled a pint of air without even thinking about it. Just now you exhaled, and before a full minute races by you will breathe in and out about ten or 15 times...for as long as you live.

For you, breathing may be effortless, but for thousands of Americans, breathing easily is a luxury. For those who have emphysema and other lung diseases each breath is a struggle for breath and for life itself.

Emphysema is the second largest cause of social disability claims in this country. It is one of the fastest growing causes of death in the U.S.

EMPHYSEMA is only one of the many breath-robbing diseases that is being fought with Christmas Seal dollars. Much of the money collected locally, in fact 81 percent stays in local programs which serve the central Ohio area.

The Central Ohio Lung Association has many programs which serve the community. The following are just some of them: the emphysema screening program, professional education programs, anti-smoking educational programs for adults and children, a home care program for patients with respiratory diseases, films, leaflets and other educational materials, stop-smoking clinics, air pollution activities and fellowships and research monies for Doctors in pulmonary disease.

BY GIVING to Christmas Seals, you are giving a gift that works toward eradicating all lung diseases 365 days a year. Use Christmas Seals on all your holiday mail and help lick emphysema, TB, air pollution and other lung diseases.

United Community Council Helps Fill All Stockings

"I am the Christmas Spirit! I enter the home of poverty, causing palefaced children to open their eyes wide, in pleased wonder...In a thousand ways I cause the weary world to look up into the face of God, and for a little moment forget the things that are small and wretched..."
E. E. Baird

FOR MANY, the Christmas Spirit this year may take the form of one of our city's many dedicated family-service organizations which are striving to bring the joy of Chirstmas into the homes of the less fortunate by seeing that each child's Christmas stocking is filled, that there is food for the table, that money is available for much-needed new clothes.

The United Community Council is operating a Christmas clearing file for the tenth season for agencies and organizations in order to assure that the Spirit ofChristmas is felt in each and every home.

THE UCC CHRISTMAS Clearing House is a registry system which collects and gives out information or organizations so contributions will not be duplicated.

By clearing the families receiving checks or food baskets, the contributions can be spread more widely. Instead of one family receivingChristmas from four sources, four equally-needy families can be helped.

Experience has shown that Christmas contributions fall far short of meeting the needs of the physically and economically disadvantaged. But, the UCC clearing system helps close the gap between need and available service.

United Way agencies, schools, churches and other Christmas-giving organizations are cooperating with this program in the sincere desire to make Christmas a happy time for as many as possible.

THIS IS THE sixth year Mrs. Blanche Conrad has run the UCC Christmas Bureau.

Christmas is a time of shining children's faces filled with awe as they gaze on tinseled fir trees, glittering lights and Santa's long white beard.

It is a time for rejoicing; a time for singing and family togetherness.

THANKS TO the unselfish efforts of many good people and agencies in our community, like UCC, more children can know a Christmas filled with love and the Spirit of Giving.

Salvation Army Helps

THE SALVATION ARMY'S 1973 Christmas Cheer Committee finalized its plans at a recent meeting for its extensive program which is expected to touch the lives of approximately 20,000 individuals in the Greater Columbus Area, 2,000 families to receive food, more than 4,500 children to receive toys and treats, approximately 4,200 sick and shut-in ofConvalescent Homes and Correctional Institutions to receive Christmas remembrances, about 150 single indigent persons who are detached from family life to receive a "traditional Christmas Dinner" on Christmas Day and thousands of Service Men and Women to receive gift packs at the time of induction..

ALL OF THIS will be dependent upon financial gifts to The Salvation Army's Christmas Cheer Fund this year through the mail and gifts in the traditional "Christmas Kettles".

Heading this year's Christmas Cheer Committee are Mrs. Nelson Lancione and Dayle Frazier, Jr., with Charles W. Dozer serving as Treasurer. Other members of the committee include Robert D. Brown, James I. Graham, Dr. Frank P. Hall, Mrs. John G. Lambert, William A. Pepper, Saul Sokol, Clarence V. Tittle, Dr. Watson H. Walker, Martin J. Wickard and Lillian Yost.

APPLICATIONS for Christmas assistance have already reachedmore than 1,000 at the three centers receiving them: 138 East State Street, 28 E. Goodale Street and 2561 Pontiac Street. Volunteers have been working in theChristmas Office at 138 East State St. taking applications and will continue until Wednesday, Dec. 12, Mondays thru Fridays between 9:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. To avoid duplication of other agencies, organizations and individuals all appplications for food and toys will be cleared with the Confidential Clearing Bureau at the United Community Council.

Persons or groups desiring to make their contribution by mail may send it to the Christmas Cheer Fund, 138 East State St.

Financial Need Key

Supplemental Service Income Available

PEOPLE IN financial need in three classifications: 65 years of age and older, the blind, the disabled; are guaranteed a fixed monthly income as of January 1, 1974. The amounts are $150 for single persons and $195 for married couples per month. Supplemental Security Income is the title of this new Federal assistance program. The Columbus contact is Mr. Lonnie Grube, his office is at 170 N. High Street, and his telephone number is 469-7414. He is accepting applications now.

WHO CAN qualify? Anyone in the above three classifications of people who does not receive this much in monthly income.

Income includes social security benefits, veterans payments, workmen's compensation, pensions and annuities.

The first $20 does not count.

IN ADDITION, the applicant is allowed to own a home valued up to $25,000, a car up to $1200, insurance up to $1500.

For a couple the additional assets provision rises to $2,250. Those already on public assistance do not have to apply since their transfer to the new program will automatic.

"I AM anxious to get this information before the public," says Mr. Grube. "We want to start taking applications immediately. I want to be able to send them that first check as of January 1.

This is a great opportunity for those people who have been living on sub-marginal incomes and who have been reluctant to apply for public assistance. The new provisions for home ownership, possession of a car and other assets solves many of their problems.

"THE NEW payments will take the place of the basic cash payments now being made by state and local public assistance offices to the aged, blind and disabled. However, States will continue to provide other services and may add to the federal payment under certain circumstances.

The aim of the new program is to provide supplemental security income payments when they are needed so that everybody in these three groups will have this basic cash income. As of July 1, payments will rise to $140 and $210.

"You can have some money coming in-for example a social security check and still get SSI. The first $20 of income in a month won't affect your federal payment. You also may be eligible for the payments even though you work part time.

The first $65 in earnings during the month won't count against your SSI payments and only half of the rest of your earnings will count.

Apart from earnings, any other money you get after the first $25 will generally reduce the amount of the federal payment.

"EVEN THOUGH the Social Security Administration will run the new Federal program, Supplemental Security Income is not the same as social security.

The money to make SSI payments will come from general funds in the United States Treasury (collected from personal income taxes, corporation taxes, and other taxes).

Social security benefits are paid from contributions of workers, employers, and self-employed people. Social Security funds will NOT be used to make supplemental security payments. You can get both social security and supplemental income payments if you are eligible for both programs."

GRUBE PROPOSED the following two questions to help you find out for yourself whether you are eligible for SSI payments.

Question No. 1: If you are single, a widow, or widower, or married but living apart do you have an income of $150 or more a month?

(do not count earnings from a job or business but include all social security payments, veterans compensation, workmen's compensation, pensions and annuities).

Question No. 2: Do you have a bank account, stock, bonds, or similar assets worth more than $1500? (Do not count your home, car, furniture, clothing, or other personal affects). In the case of a married couple answering the same two questions, the income level is $215 and the assets amount increases to $2250.

"IF YOU answered no to both questions," concludes Mr. Grube, "You will probably be eligible for payments. However we will have to ask you for some more information as to supplemental earnings and whether you are living with other members of the family. Check right away on whether you are eligible. Write or call me at 170 N. High St. Telephone 469-7414.

Saturday Postal Hours Will Help Speed Christmas Mail

Ralph E. Haffenden, Officer-In-Charge, Columbus Postal District, has announced additional window service hours on Saturday at area post offices and neighborhood delivery units of the Columbus Post Office.

The added service will enable customers to meet the advanced Christmas mailing deadline caused by the fuel crisis affecting both air and highway transportation.

NEIGHBORHOOD delivery units of the Columbus Post Office will be open from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, December 8 and 15.

The use of airmail, special delivery or priority mail should be considered for gift parcels which haven't been mailed and greeting cards for delivery outside Ohio deposited after December 8.

TO ASSURE pre-Christmas delivery, greeting cards should be deposited on or before December 8. It is important that greeting cards be separated bundled and identified with the appropriate facing label delivered to each household.

There are three greeting card destination labels: Local (Columbus) "In State' (Ohio), "Out-of-State". The addresses on the cards should be placed in one direction, separated according to the mailing label identification and tied both crosswise and lengthwise with string or heavy rubber bands, available at all postal service windows.

BUNDLING cards secureley prevents their becoming loose and in scattered condition prior to receipt at the "Area" mail processing center in Columbus.

Postmaster Haffenden suggests the deposit of mail be at neighborhood postal stations or in one and two Star collection boxes located on main thoroughfares.

He suggests a morning deposit so that the cards can clear the mail processing lines prior to the afternoon and early evening deposits of business mail.

COLLECTION BOXES not identified by "Stars" are collected in the mid afternoon whereas "Star-ed" collection boxes are coolected frequently throughout the day. The last collection of one "Star" boxes is 5 p.m. and Two Star boxes are collected at or shortly after 7 p.m.

Every delivery address should bear the proper ZIP Code number. Automated mail processing of both handwritten and typewritten addresses is dependent on the use of ZIP numbers.

Items not bearing ZIP numbers are removed from the automated process for manual processing which is slower and more costly to the postal service.

SELF SERVICE Postal Units offer 24 hour, 7 day per week mailing service. SSPU's are located at: Main Post Office; Great Southern, Great Western and Graclenad Shopping Cetner and banking facilitieslocated at 2941 Olenangy River Rd., Morse and Mize Rd., 2385 S. Hamilton Rd., 2295 El Livingston Ave., and 1610 Fishinger Rd.

Glass Collection Bright

BUCKEYE Federal Savings and Loan Association is currently exhibiting a cut glass collection in the main lobby at 36 East Gay St. Most of the cut glass on display was produced during "The Brilliant Period", 1880 to 1905. During this period, more cut glass was made in America than in all the rest of the world. A feature of our cut glass exhibit is a Libbey Crystal Glass designed for the New York 1939 World's Fair. Another feature of the exhibit is a punch bowl, that would cost a minimum of $3000 to produce today, In 1910, $200 would have covered the cost of producing the same bowl. The exhibit is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Pool Patter

By Peg Pierce

Avast Ye Land Lubbers – The Jewish Center Day Camp site at Hoover Dam Reservoir now has two new wooded trails. The trails wind through pine woods, ravines and gentle slopes. The work was done as a conservation and community service project. Tom Thompson, the site's resident caretaker, is also assistant scout master to three Boy Scout troops in the City of Columbus. Boy Scout Troop 335 Christ The King completed the over 3,700 feet of trail work in two days. Seven boys armed with rakes, shovels, sickles, weeders, a wooden ladder, and small hand axes spent approximately eighteen hours at the task. The trails are marked green and yellow and will enable groups to use some twelve acres of the camp heretofor too dense to penetrate.

Those boys who will be rewarded for the project are: Mike Worner, Bob Baker, Joe Scholl, Jeff Sebenoler, Joe Altman, Tom Bogard, and Kevin Michaels. Troop 126 Jewish Center and Troop 8 of St. Thomas get honorable mention as having spent many hours at clearing the underbrush and providing wood piles for the shelters on the "Gan Mah Tov" Camp Site.

Tiller Tuggers – The Jewish Center Javelin sailboat is in dry dock and is undergoing a major face lifting. I was out to see her the other day and would like to report that you won't recognize the ol' girl. She has a new anti-foul bronze bottom, shiny deck, bright work on all hardware, and where many campers have left a few dents from poor landings, she is a smooth and graceful white hull. In the process of renewal t hey also found many, many gallons of Hoover Reservoir water trapped in her bilge. Now I know why the boat wouldn't point into the wind at the end of the season. With last summer's new sails and this year's maintenance you will think we have a brand new boat. A very sweet man, Ed, is doing the work at Delta Marina.

Last week, the new and old members of the Hartley chapter of the National Honor Society elected four members to act as the officers of the Society for the school year 1973-74. Those voted in were President Anne Lang, Vice President Dianne Schneider, Secretary Sue Ewing, and Treasurer Dave Whitlatch. Also at the meeting, the members signed a volunteer list to be on the publicity, or the constitution revision committee, to help with typing, to give service by preparing the honor roll list or tutoring. Members are also planning a dance to raise funds for scholarships.

Another set of officers was elected last week. Mary Beth Woerner, Becky Leiby, and Mary Jo Ryan were elected as President, Vice President, and Secretary-Treasurer of the Franch Club.

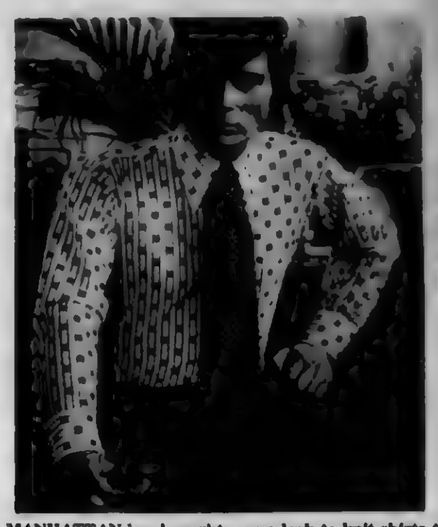
'IN' fashion with Tess Stern

DEFINITELY part of this season's fashions is MONET jewelry...a pendant necklace and matching drop earrings of finely textured gold or silver finish, in flared fan-shaped mull.

ELEGANT accent for the new holiday clothes is this hobo shoulder bag or clutch bag in multi-patches of gold, silver, copper and bronze, in a variety of shapes, with multi-mixture chains. By Morris Moskowitz Corp.



MANHATTAN has brought a new look to knit shirts this year...different patterns and fashion colors. Like this striking stripe and bullseye design of 100 percent polyester...with patented "Tailor's Collar".

IF YOU'RE already stumped by the Christmas Gift problem, have you considered the astrological approach? It's often as helpful in deciding "what to give" as it is "what to avoid". Here are a few suggestions:

Let's begin with CAPRICORN, December 22 to January 18, since their sign falls closest to Christmas. Capricorns are the politicians, managers and executives – they are often conventional but concerned with getting ahead. They love antiques with a sentimental history, initialed handkerchiefs, anything initialed or monogrammed-anything that's been advertised.

AQUARIUS, January 29 to February 17, are likely to be humanitarians – so a person born under this sign would appreciate a contribution to charity in their name. They also like fancy gadgets, prefer either the very new or the very old when it comes to furnishings, objects or music. They're not conventional, so don't give them cliche' presents. Their symbol is the waterbearer–some Aquarians are mad about fountains.

PISCES, February 18 to March 20. Piscean people deal in illusion. Give something romantic-colorful. The ladies of this sign appreciate cosmetics, perfume, floating lingerie, magnificent lace shawls, furs. They also have an affinity for water - nature lovers. Give men bathing suits, skin-diving equipment, fishing equipment, bath accessories.

ARIES, March 21 to April 19, are leaders, pioneers and often warriors–alert, energetic, even aggressive. Give men books on hunting or guns, if they're sportsmen. Give women things for the head–hats, wigs, earrings. Pure Arieans never collect things–they look forward, not backward–give something new, not antique.

TAURUS, April 20 to May 19, are homebodies who love food, drink, music and art–often in large quantity. It's safe to give presents that feather the nest–a hi fi, records, or even a plum pudding. Give the practical as well as the frivolous.

GEMINI, May 21st to June 20th (since it's a Dual sign) often welcome things in pairs. They like the newest gadgets, read periodicals and current fiction. They're easy to find gifts for since they're interested in dozens of things at one time and likely to talk about all of them.

CANCER, June 21 to July 22, are lovers of the home with a flair for the dramatic. Give bed linens, colored bath towels. Cancer people are influenced by the moon so give them pewter, silver, not gold. Some treasure family and roots, and might like a genealogy. They are sometimes property hungry.

LEO, July 23 to August 22. Leo's get their impressive drive and energy from the sun–never give them anything ersatz. Jewelry must be real, not fake–gold not silver. Never try to impress a Leo by giving quantity instead of quality. They are often knowledgeable in the world of art, but not at the Contemporary level. They're also Zodiac enthusiasts, so give them a horoscope reading.

VIRGO, August 23 to September 22, like utilitarian things. There is a hard-core practicality in all earth signs, coupled with extreme idealism. Give them gadgets, but be sure they work. "How to do it" books, plants, closet organizers and good soap. If there's not a pet in their house, you'll be the best Santa, if you give one.

LIBRA, September 23 to October 22, represents balance. Librans are likely to be charming, so they are popular socially. Give party clothes and accessories–anything graceful and pretty. Libra people are sensitive to color, and usually prefer the luxurious to the spartan.

SCORPIO, October 23 to November 21. Since Scorpio is the detective sign, give jigsaw puzzles. Scorpio's are likely to be secretive and possessive–a jewelry box or handbag will be more appreciated if it can be locked. Scorpio is also a water sign - try bath oil.

SAGITTARIANS, November 22 to December 21, are travelers and gamblers–they'll take any chance. Travel books or clothes will please, as will binoculars. They are outdoor people who like cold weather as a rule–if athletic, they ski - so give ski accoutrements. Philosophy and religion are important to them - often they're extremely talkative - give a color telephone. In fact they hate to miss anything - give anything current and fashionable.

Raider Matmen Zingo Grove City, 33-29

Last Saturday was a banner evening for the Reynoldsburg Raider matmen as they defeated Grove City's defending district champions, 33-29, in a grueling evening of mat action.

Cheered on by a full house of spectators and the fabulous matmaids, the Raiders had a streak of six straight wins after being down by a score of 18-3. Four of the six wins were pins.

The Raiders, with only three returning experienced members, looked doomed as Grove City's veterans tuned in to a 12-0 lead before the Raiders took on new life in the heavier divisions.

The reserves also defeated Grove City by a 51-15 margin with pins by Dave King, Mike White, Criss Johnson, Tim Willison, Mark McGee, Paul Holland, Rick Cochran and Andy McConnel.

The "Raider of the Week" award was split between Bull Dozier and Dan Noles.

The varsity is idle this week but the reserves will take part in the 16-team Worthington reserve invitationalSaturday, Dec. 8.

The Raiders next match is against Whetstone there Friday, Dec. 14 starting at 7:30 p.m. with both varsity and reserves competing.

Meanwhile Coach Roger Anderson continues to bring Reynoldsburg top-flight high School wrestling for another season.

Bexley vs St. Charles

Reynoldsburg vs Westland

PIN! PIN! PIN! PIN! was the name of the game for Reynoldsburg's wrestlers last Saturday as they opened their season with a convincing 33-29 win over defending district champions Grove City. Four pins proved to be the deciding factor in the match. From top to bottom in these Ed Kiernan photos are (1) Paul Wade (185 lbs.) pinned Burny Catti; (2) Ron Nole (126 lbs.) pinned Rick Stough; (3) Bob "Bull" Dozier (heavyweight) pinned Herman Spence and (4) Dan Nole (138 lbs.) pinned Jeff Curry.

Whitehall vs. Mt. Vernon Tops Card

League Battles Highlight Early Season Cage Play

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
SPECTATOR Sports Writer

THEY'RE "The Toast of the East".

Yes, Whitehall, Eastmoor and Walnut Ridge are the talk of the east side, even at this early roundball date.Whitehall and Walnut Ridge scored impressive wins last week while Eastmoor dropped an air tight decision to state toughie Chillicothe, a team that could very well rank among the state's top ten, when the polls come out.

Whitehall's Russ Gregg coached Rams come fresh from its 60-54 slapping of defending Ohio Capital Conference champion Delaware with all-state center candidate Terry Burris popping 28 through the hoop to lead the charge. Junior guard Bill Besalski added 10 for the Rams while also aiding in the ball-handling department.

BUT THE big challenge for Burris and his young playmates comes this Friday night when they travel to Mt. Vernon to match 2-0 league marks and vie for the league lead. Its early in the calender to label this a showdown but don't grade the idea totally invalid.

Mt. Vernon boasts an all-state center candidate themselves in pivot smoothie Ted Williams. With the possibility of Burris and Williams offsetting each other it looms heavily that the performance of Besalski, Chris Zag, Benton Teddie and Jerry Montgomery could be a real determining factor in this OCC headliner.

WALNUT RIDGE streaked to an 85-70 victory over Hartley in the Scot season opener. This group looks to be extremely well balanced for 24 year coaching vet Jack Moore. (12 years at East and 12 at Ridge).

The Hartley win had cool striding Ron Marshall leading the scoring with 20 points and Todd Lowe (18), Nick Vollman (16) and Bob Bardelang (17) close behind.

Most have already labeled this Ridge Five as the City League favorite as they begin their league campaign Friday at Whetstone.

Eastmoor, tabbed as a darkhorse in pre-season pools, is now labeled a bonifide contender.

It will be a trip to North High Friday night for Eastmoor that helps kickoff the 61st running of City League basketball.

In other action creeping before us this weekend West will entertain East in the other City League encounter and Worthington will travel to Westerville, Gahanna to Westland and Reynoldsburg to Delaware all in the Ohio Capital Conference.

BEXLEY plays host to Groveport in the Mid-Eight and Franklin Heights jaunts to Olentangy in the Metro. Central Catholic play pits DeSales at Ready, Watterson at Wehrle and another rivalry contest for St.Charles when they welcome fellow eastside buddy Hartley.

In other action last weekend East opened impresively with a 75-73 squeeker over visiting Cincinnati Withrow with the trio of Mike Hall, Hilton Hale and Terry Jameson doing the damage.

Worthington contracted a severe case of the turnoveritis dropping a weekend pair, to Mt. Vernon and Upper Arlington. Reynoldsburg's Ed Williams went on a 41 point scoring spree in helping the Raiders whip Westland while Larry Ferst's 20 markers couldn't offsett a Franklin Heights loss to Dublin.

In an interesting rivalry staged in the community of Bexley Eric Stinson, Mike Husfeld and Jim Carlisle swished double figures in leading St.Charles over Bexley and perennial toughie Ready found the going tough in a 20 point loss to Marion Franklin.

East Stars Win, 8-6

By SANDY SCHWARTZ
Spectator Sports Writer

A safety and a pair of field goals by Otterbein College's Leif Petterson lifted theEast all-stars to 8-6 victory over the West all-stars in the second annual All-Ohio Shrine Bowl played before some 22,000 well entertained customers in Ohio Stadium last Saturday.

Petterson, a wide receiver and punter, took on place kicking duties for the East and connected perfectly from 20 and 30 yards for his three-pointers.

But the victory margin came when Baldwin-Wallace tackle Claude Butler and Akron's Rick Madden blitzed the West line in fourth quarter action to tackle West-QB Tim Dydo in the end zone for the last two points.

Complimentng Petterson's brillant performance was a fine showing by Otterbein end Tom Cahill and Capital's Mike Adams, the center for the West. Halfback Craig Snyder of Capital also chipped in for the West.

It was a fun-filled football day as all the proceeds went to the Burns Foundation. The Shriners staged a colorful halftime show which along with the roving clowns on hand seemed to entertain all.

FALL FINALS--After viewing both football spectacle's two weeks ago, the Ohio High School state finals in Akron and the Big Ten tussle in Ann Arbor, this reporter sees glaring resemblances in the running of Youngstown Cardinal Mooney's TED BELL and Ohio State's super back ARCHIE GRIFFIN.

Get something good out of your old battery.

If your car's battery has been in service three years or more, it's time to see one of the Delco dealers listed on this page. First he'll check your old battery for signs of age like leaks and loose terminal posts.

Then, if it cannot be serviced and it needs replacement, he'll make you an offer — and let you trade in your old battery on a new Delco Longevity. Select either a conventional top post model or a new sealed-terminal design with connections on the side.

Both are vacuum sealed for freshness. And all Delco batteries are built to give you that big burst of starting power. Even in extremes of heat or cold.

Get your battery checked today. And trade it in before it lets you down.

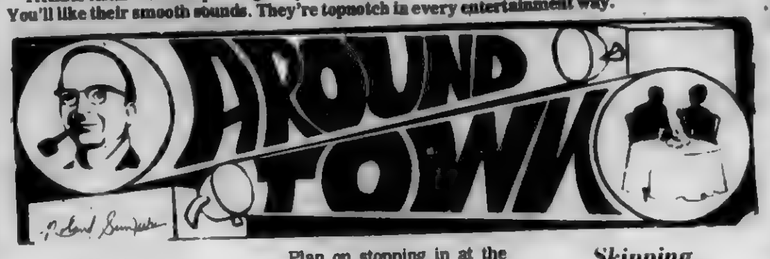
THESE ARE "The Paper Highway" who are currently appearing at the Holiday Inn-OSU. You'll like their smooth sounds. They're topnotch in every entertainment way.



All New At Scioto Inn

Well Columbus, we have another new club offering good entertainment, food and plenty of friendly atmosphere. It's called the New Scioto Inn. Actually it is the old Scioto Inn. But it has a new name, new owners and a complete new format of operation.

Owned and operated by Mike Croft and Garry Huston, The New Scioto Inn has undergone many changes under their leadership. The lounge is completely remodeled, with a brand new stage, balcony seating and all new carpeting. It is a beautiful spot, that's for sure.

You'll find lots of action in the lounge. Easy Feelings, a five piece outfit, featuring singer John Pond, perform Wednesday through Saturday. John is sure to grab your attention and keep it. Much of his material sounds like Elvis or Tom Jones.

On the other side of the New Scioto Inn is the dining area. The food is tops, believe me. There is a complete luncheon and dinner menu. The prices are very reasonable. I have to recommend the place just on the food alone.

Within the next couple of weeks, I'll give you a full review on both the food and the entertainment at the New Scioto Inn. But, don't wait, take my word for it, and head to the place soon. I know you will enjoy the food as well as the entertainment. You will also like the friendly, atmosphere in the lounge. See you there soon.

Howard Johnson South Is New

The brand new Howard Johnson's Motel South held its grand opening last week. Wait until you see this new Howard Johnson', located on Stringtown Road, just off I-71 south. The outside looks like a typical Howard Johnson's Motel, with the orange roof and the familiar architecture.

There, the familiarity stops. Once inside, you "see" anentirely new Howard Johnson's. The interior of the lobby, restaurant and lounge, as well as the rooms, are simply beautiful. The decor is modern, plush and very relaxing.

The motel consists of 116 rooms, four BIP suites, a restuarant seating 140 patrons, a cocktail lounge seating fifty and banquet facilities for 180.

Eileen Pullin, better known as Scotty in the motel business, is the general manager. She is well known to the people of Columbus, having worked at various motels in the area.

Appearing in the Rum Keg Lounge is a fellow by the name of Paul Click. While I haven't heard him yet, the people I have talked to tell me that he is excellent. Paul sings and plays piano. He seems to be pleasing the crowds. You'll find Paul at the Rum Keg Lounge Tuesday through Saturday from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. You'll find me there one night this week, also.

Plan on stopping in at the brand new Howard Johnson's Motel-South real soon. I know you will enjoy the excellent food and entertainment. By the way, the restaurant still has 28 flavors of ice cream. So for a meal fit for a king, a cocktail, a sundae or a meeting or banquet, visit Howard Johnson's-South, [redacted].

Bob Braun Has Hit Album

While I don't normally review records in this column, I came across one the other day I felt you should know about. It's Bob Braun's latest album, titled, "Easy River Ridin'," The best way to describe the album is to copy the linrs on the back of the album." "As you've never heard him before...light, exciting toe-tapping music presented with a "down home" flavor added to the familiar Bob Braun polish. This is an album that will brighten your day everytime you play it." Amen.

This album is one of the finest discs I've heard by anybody in a long time. The songs, all original, are great, the arrangements simply fascinating and ear appealing and Bob Braun was never better.

For you fans of Braun's this one has to be a must. From the first cut, "Easy River Ridin" right on down to the last cut on the flip side, you'll hum, sing and be moved with the quality and material on the album. By the way, their production is superb.

Some of the songs are light hearted, while others such as, "Daaym Meet A Man," and "God's Factory," are very touching. This disc will appeal to young and old alike.

I have already played it about a half a dozen times, and I'm certainly not tired of listening to it. The songs and music puts you in a happy frame of mind.

As I said, all the tunes are original, with the material and arrangements leaning towards the nostalgic. From the title, you may guess that the album is based on the days of the old riverboat.

As you know, I always try to keep you informed of the best entertainment Around Town, I feel this is one of the biggest favors I have done for you by telling you about Bob's latest album, "Easy River Ridin." It's simply wonderful.

Skipping Around Town

Rumor has it that a couple of the Holiday Inns in our city are going to build night clubs in their motels. This includes the one on West Broad St. and the Holiday Inn at Broad and Hamilton. Reason being to make up for loss of revenue in room rentals due to the gasoline shortage. Night life is expected to get better Around town, come the first of the year. Many clubs are gearing up for the local trade, since most of us will not be traveling around the country ... In the above column, I told you about the Howard Johnson's. But, don't forget Neil Donnelly at the Howard Johnson's-East. Neil is a literaly fantastic entertainer. This one is a must ... Look elsewhere on this page for a good christmas gift for young or old. It's the gift certificate for Kings Island. A nice gift and a good bargain... For the time of your life, it's the Holiday Inn OSU with two separate rooms of top entertainment. I know you'll enjoy this spot... The colossal Caliope finishes out this week at Marco Polo's Lounge. For you young swingers, this is the place. Plenty of good action. Everytime I go there, Marco Polo's is loaded with girls. Stop in just to hear Caliope, though they are very, very good...Jerry and Nic, continue to hold forth at theHoliday Inn - North. These two are something special with their nice soft music for easy listening and dancing. The lounge is a fine place for lovers or quiet conversation, with its dark lighting, and such cozy atmosphere. Jerry is a whiz on the organ. I could sit and listen to him all night. Pat and Diann have been held over at the Lincoln Lodge. They are a good duo, dishing out pleasing vocals and instrumentals. Give them a listen to, this week...Get out and enjoy yourself this week, Have Fun! See you Around Town.

Deercreek Tailwater

Recent survey efforts conducted by the Ohio Divison of Wildlife indicate the presence of an excellent game and panfish fishery immediately below the Deercreek Dam. Muskellunge, Walleye, Largemouth and Smallmouth Bass, Channel Catfish, White Crappie and Carp exist in good numbers, along with excellent populations of forage fish.

THE ABOVE listed species were found to be concentrated along both shorelines and in the turbulent area at the base of the dam. The midstream section of the tailwater area contained large numbers of Gizzard Shad and other forage fish, but very few game fish. Suggested baits include minnows, crayfish, spinners and an assortment of both shallow and deep diving plubs.

Deercreek Reservoir is located approximatley 2 miles east of State route 207, 9 miles south of Mt. Sterling. The tailwater is that area immediately below the dam.

Shining Prohibited At Night

It is unlawful in Ohio to use artificial lights at any time from a vehicle to locate wild animals while having hunting implements in possession. Ohio law further provides that from the first day of September each year through the following last day of February, it is unlawful from 10 p.m. until sunrise the following day to shine, weather there are hunting implements in the vehcile or not.

Planting Stock Available

Trees and shrubs for wildlife food and cover are available from the Divison of Wildlife, Ohio Department of Natural Resources. Interested farmers and rural landowners should contact their local game protector by February 1, 1974 to apply for wildlife habitat planting stock.

A SHORTAGE of food and a lack of well distributed cover make the winter and spring a critical period of the hear for wildlife. Supplemental plantings of desireable wildlife habitat are important to the maintenance of existing wildlife populations.

Farmers and landowners with 30 or more acre, who permit some hunting on their land, are eligible to receive planting stock. Planning services and several publications on wildlife food and cover plantings are also available.

Several varieties of trees and shrubs including white pine, autum olive and multiflora rose may be obtained from The Division of Wildlife. Anyone desiring to receive the planting stock, be sure to contact your local state game protector or the Wildlife District One Office, 1500 Dublin Rd., Columbus, Ohio 43215, phone 466-3337. Application period ends February 1, 1974.

Woodwind Trio Available

An Otterbein College faculty woodwind trio has been organized to provide chamber music in concert and make guest appearances in Ohio and neighboring regions.

The group is interested in performing for organizations and schools and will provide a special clinic for interested students if desired.

Offering a program of light music with standard pieces, the trio also provides the possibility of a quartet by Milhaud with the addition of Otterbein chairman of the department of music Dr. Roman Lavore at piano. The woodwind trio consists of Phyliss Hlasten, flute, and Jim Prodan, oboe, both members of the Columbus Symphony, and Dr. Lyle T. Barkhymer, clarinetist.

The trio or quartet may be scheduled during the month of December by interested organizations or schools, or other appropriate groups by calling Dr. Barkhymer at the Otterbein College department of music, 891-3113.

School Crisis Committee Acts

Cuts Suggested In Use Of Heat, Electricity, Gas

Columbus-The Energy Crisis Committee of the Columbus Public Schools, appointed recently by Dr. John Ellis, superintendent, has submitted a set of specific as well as general recommendations for saving energy. They are under consideration by the school board.

Detailed recommendations for conservation of heat, electricity and gasoline follow:

CONSERVATION OF HEAT

Students, parents and all staff members should be informed in advance of plans to reduce temperatures. This will permit all concerned to dress accordingly and should serve to avoid some negative reaction to the change.

Specific heat-saving suggestions given by the committee are:

BE SURE windows are closed tightly.

Keep classroom doors closed.

Pull available blinds on windy, cold days. If sun is out, open blinds.

Pull blinds after school to reduce heat loss.

Pilot lights on stoves and incinerators should be shut off on weekends.
